The Diamond Edition of The BLACK and GOLD Proudly Presents:

Back in 1906, the McKinley High School publications staff produced the first volume of The Black and Gold. Now, seventy-five years later, the staff of 1981 has produced the seventy-fifth anniversary volume, thus making the 1981 Black and Gold the Diamond Edition.

The many different facets cut into a diamond are what make the diamond sparkle with such brilliance. The same can be applied to McKinley, for it is the many and diverse facets of our school together that make McKinley shine.

Tiger Individuality Reflected In Varying Interests

Amid the hustle and bustle of everyday school life, McKinley High School is comprised of a multitude of individuals, personalities, and activities. Its students, organizations, athletic events, faculty, and academics are each separate facets within themselves, but together make up the diamond that is McKinley.

The student, being his own person, strived to attain his own goals and morals in life. Diversity among ourselves, whether religious or ethnic, made each of us an individual. Despite being segregated into grade levels, we were united into the "ohana" of McKinley. Through clubs, organizations, and sports, we ventured into areas perhaps new to us or that we enjoyed. Extracurricular activities such as the basketball team, the Winter Prom committee, or the Hawaiian Club enabled each of us to learn the essence of teamwork, to meet new friends, and to gain a better perspective of life.

The faculty and administration, still other facets of McKinley, stressed the importance of education and learning. They encouraged us to learn from new experiences and to gain knowledge from the courses that we enrolled in. The diversity of subjects, ranging from Polynesian Literature to Calculus to Family Foods, enabled us to explore our various fields of interest and to gain insight into our futures. Subjects such as Ceramics, Chorus, Newswriting, Drama, and Graphic Arts permitted us to express ourselves in our own unique ways.

McKinley High School's unity is based on the spirit, pride, and teamwork that emanates from each facet of our school. Cheering for our class levels during a spirit competition, working diligently to make an event successful, and striving for a victory as a team---each is unity in itself. But because of thousands of personalities, all marked by individuality, McKinley is indeed a multi-faceted school, a school which exemplifies the unique characteristic of Diversity Within Unity.

McKINLEY AND BEYOND:

Library Rises, 'Empire Strikes,' Politicians Campaign, Asbestos Interrupts

Although McKinley was a microcosm of the real world within itself, local as well as national and world happenings affected each student at McKinley in one way or another.

1980-81 marked a big year in politics on both national and local levels. Nationally, the Presidential race took shape as the candidates squared off to determine who would lead our nation for the next four years. The three major candidates were President Jimmy Carter, having won the Democratic nomination over Senator Edward Kennedy, Republican nominee Ronald Reagan and Independent John Anderson.

Locally, politics were also in full swing with candidates campaigning hard for terms in the State Senate, House of Representatives, as City Prosecutor or as Mayor. The big surprise came in the Honolulu Mayor's race as former State Budget Director Eileen Anderson defeated incumbant Mayor Frank Fasi in the Democratic primary.

On campus, construction began on the new McKinley library to be located between the Administration Building and the Multi-Purpose Auditorium. The completion date was set for December of 1981.

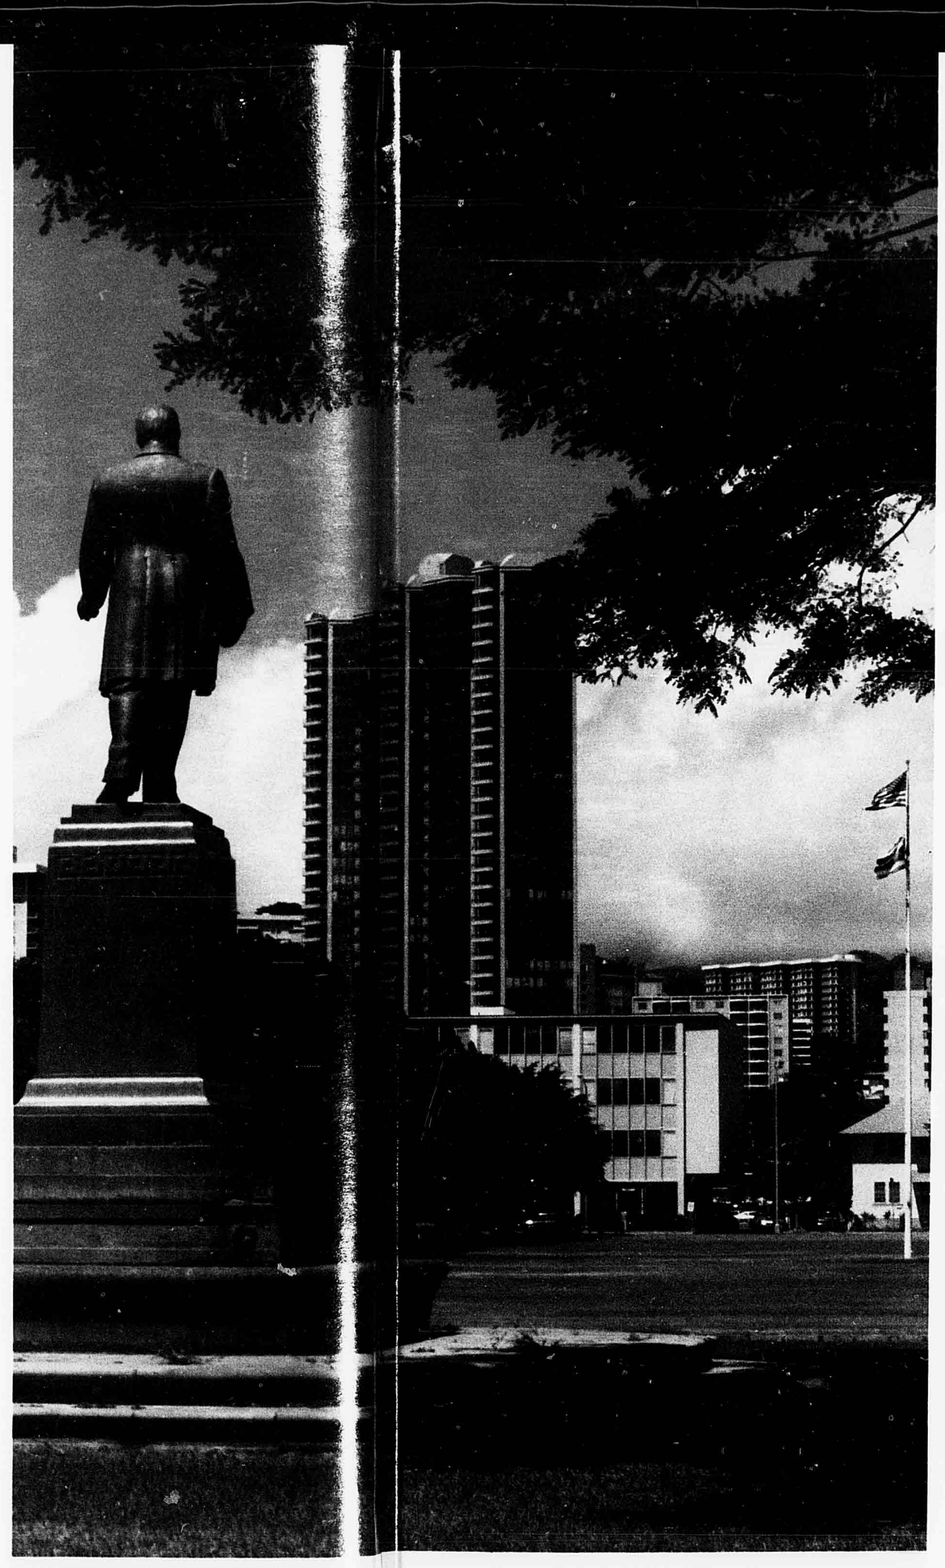

Twenty-eight public schools underwent a "facelift" during the summer to remove ceilings containing asbestos, which presented a health hazard to both teachers and students. McKinley was one of the high schools renovated, having ceilings replaced in classrooms of the Social Studies building as well as the Science building. The work was completed just in time for September 3, when McKinley once again opened its doors for business.

The Admiral Thomas, a new 34-story condominium dominated the ever-changing skyline in front of the campus. President McKinley's statue took on a different look with the condominium looming on the horizon.

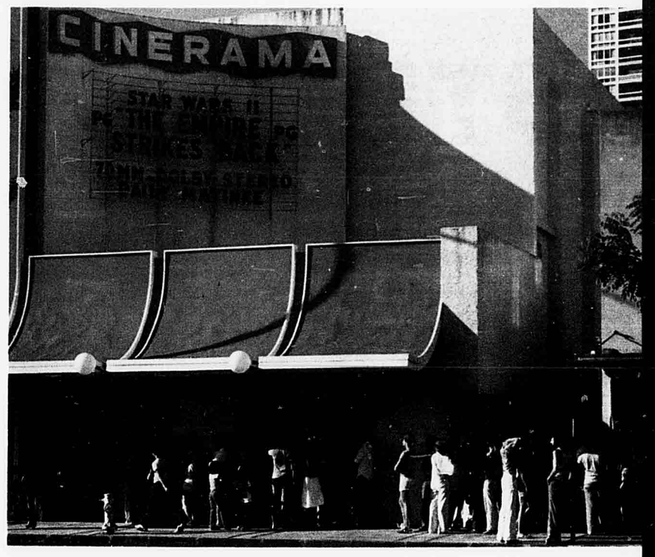

Further down King Street, Star Wars fanatics flocked to the Cinerama Theatre to see the long awaited sequel to Star Wars, "The Empire Strikes Back." The continuing adventures of Luke Skywalker and company once again sent lines of moviegoers snaking up Punahou Street for several blocks.

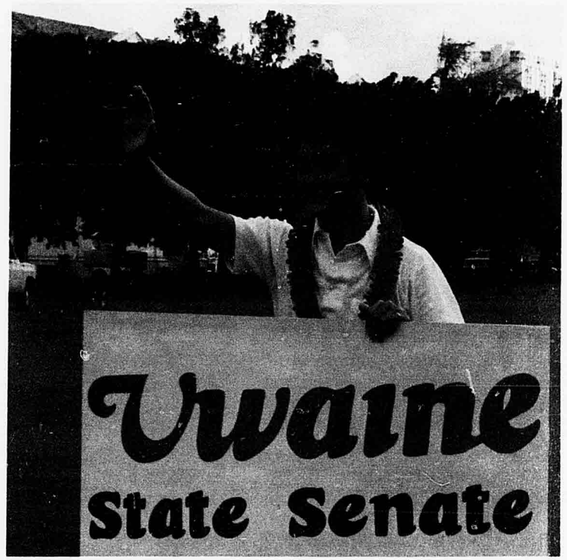

As "The Empire Strikes Back" swept the nation over the summer, another kind of strike was taking place in Hollywood, California. The Screen Actors Guild went on strike for eleven weeks due to contract disputes. The strike came just before production began on the new fall seasons of the three major networks. With no actors or actresses available, the new fall season had to be postponed indefinitely, as reruns filled the vacant prime time slots.

The headlines and happenings of 1980-81 touched each individual in a different way, and added yet another facet toward the completion of the diamond, that is McKinley High School.

STUDENT LIFE...

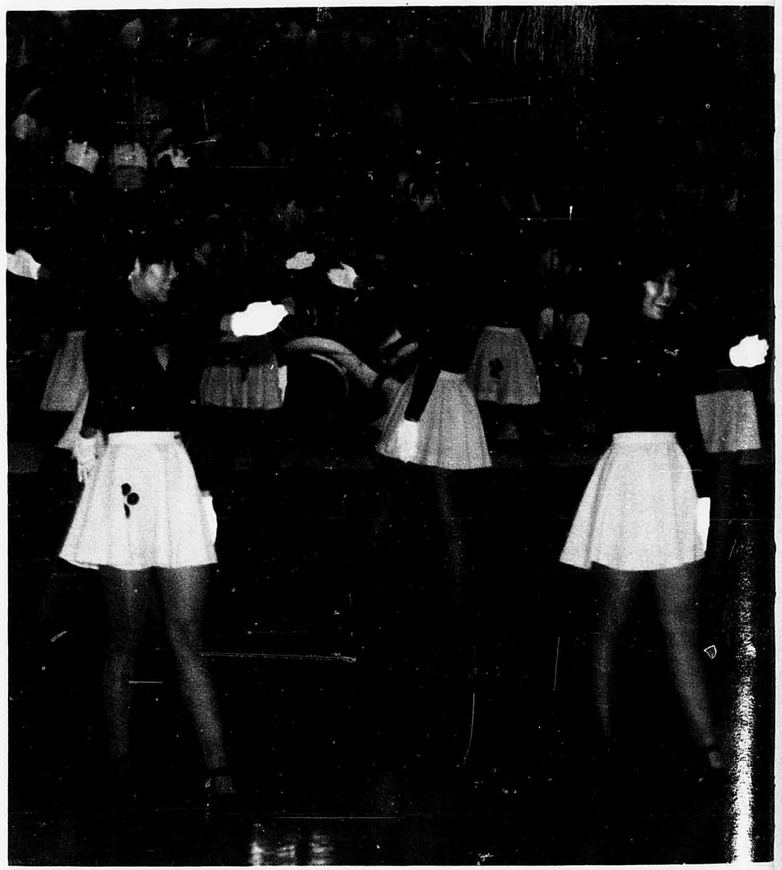

A combination of both academic as well as extracurricular interests was reflected in the facet of student life at McKinley.

A diversified curriculum of core and elective courses gave the student many options in choosing classes that would prepare them for the world beyond McKinley's campus. Tutorial periods twice a week, in addition to three double periods a day gave, what most students felt, more than enough instructional time in classes.

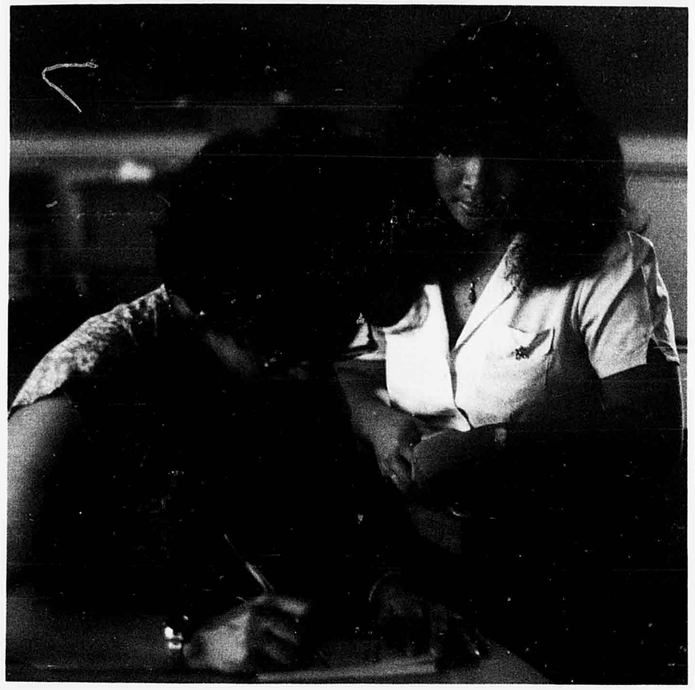

Although education was primary, student life beyond the classrooms, in the form of extracurricular activities was just as important.

A sampling of the many extracurricular opportunities at McKinley, could be seen in the wide scope of activities that took place on campus after the final bell marked the ending of another day in the classrooms. Committees met to plan proms, the carnival, club activities, and service projects. The volleyball team worked out in the gym, while both the jayvee and varsity football squads practiced hard on the gridiron. The Black Knights as well as the Taikas drilled to perfect their precision moves, while in the bandroom, sectional rehearsals improved the harmony of both Wind Ensemble I and II. Over in the publications room, both yearbook and newspaper staffs worked to meet upcoming deadlines.

'Tiger Sensation' Prevails Over Homecoming

King HERMAN ISHIBASHI and Queen LISA KUBOTA
Trophy Bearer HOLLY CASPER

With crossed fingers and anticipation for the "Tiger Sensation," MHS fans sat restlessly as they watched the annual Homecoming Game against the favored Governors. Lady Luck wasn't with the Tigers for the Governors won, 13-0, but only after a tough fight by the mighty Tiger Team.

Pregame festivities took place with three class level competitions, starting with the dummy and banner contest. Seniors took first with their version of a Farrington football player being electrocuted by the powerful "Tiger Sensation." Band won first in the banner division of the contest, with their banner depicting a take-off from a popular movie, "The Empire Strikes Back." Seniors also grabbed the spirit competition.

The customary Homecoming Dinner and Bonfire took place the night before the big game. The dummies were tossed into the fire in hope of a glorious victory. The dance after the bonfire was in the gym, which was packed to a full house.

MHS fans were saddened at the defeat against the Governors. However, they were still proud of the team and "Tiger Sensation" prevailed.

Vivacious Alumnae Carole Kai, Valerie Siu Emcee 17th Annual Queen Pageant

The M. M. Scott Auditorium was the setting for the 17th Annual Miss McKinley Pageant, held on the night of Nov. 15, 1980, as eighteen excited senior girls waited anxiously for the moment for which they had all worked so hard. Judging the contestants were seven distinguished members of the community, Miss Rhonda Adams, Miss Sheron Lehua Bissen, Dr. Steve Jackstadt, Mr. Rod Aoki, Mrs. Margaret Wilson '37, Mr. Jake Manegdeg, and Mrs. Char Pidot-Buchner, who had a difficult job ahead of them that night.

Co-emceeing the program were two McKinley alumnae, the vivacious, talented entertainer Miss Carole Kai and last year's Miss Chinatown Hawaii '80, Miss Valerie Siu.

Miss Kai's easygoing, fun personality soon had everyone at ease. The Loyal Sons of McKinley provided mellow music throughout the evening, as contestants went through the beauty and poise phases.

After intermission, there was a preview of the upcoming M.T.G. production of "Stop The World, I Want to Get Off" by Cecilia Kim and Uriah Pahio. And then Miss Kai graciously agreed to sing "Looking Through the Eyes of Love," much to the audience's delight.

With tabulations completed, Miss Congeniality Maria Aurelio and the runner-ups were named, with the much awaited announcement of Miss McKinley 1980, Janice White.

Miss McKinley, Janice, along with her court served as the Public Relations for the school, especially for the '81 Tiger Carnival and helped to bring about its success.

McKinley Publications: The Black 'n Gold Celebrates 75th Birthday, The Pinion Turns 60 Years Old

The publications department of McKinley High School celebrated two very special birthdays this year. The Black and Gold annual marked its 75th anniversary with a special Diamond Edition, while the Daily Pinion newspaper went into its 60th year of circulation.

The very first edition of the Black and Gold, edited by Ral Soares appeared in October of 1906. Back then it was not an annual, but a monthly literary magazine featuring the works of students. Eventually it evolved into a yearbook and since then has won numerous awards of distinction. Last year's book was rated medalist by the Columbia Scholastic Press Association.

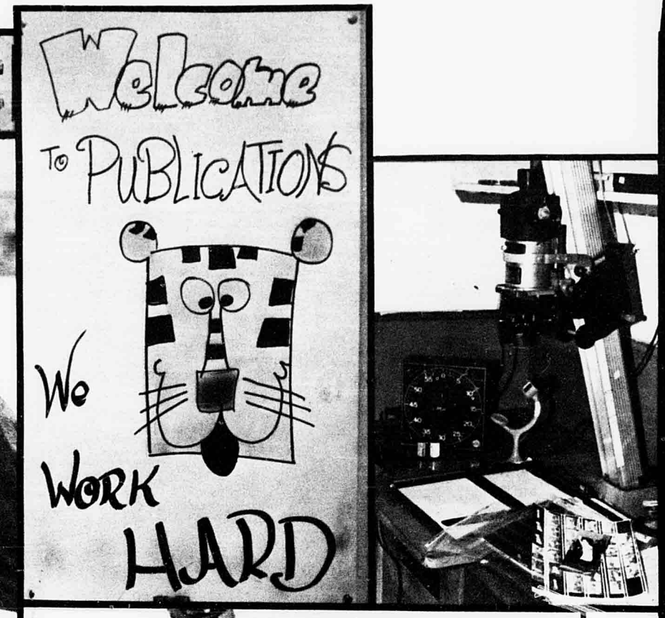

Truly unique is the Daily Pinion, first printed in 1920. The Pinion went into daily publication on September 1, 1935, and since then has been the only daily high school newspaper in the state, and one of only five "dailies" throughout the entire nation, an accomplishment McKinley can be very proud of.

Whether it was typing copy, writing captions, printing pictures or pasting up a layout, both the newswriting and yearbook staffs worked diligently to meet the ever-present deadlines. The yearbook staff faced monthly deadlines as they fought to finish the 232 pages in six months to insure the arrival of the books in May. Meanwhile, the Daily Pinion staff had to meet a one o'clock deadline everyday in order to provide McKinleyites with the only daily high school newspaper in the state.

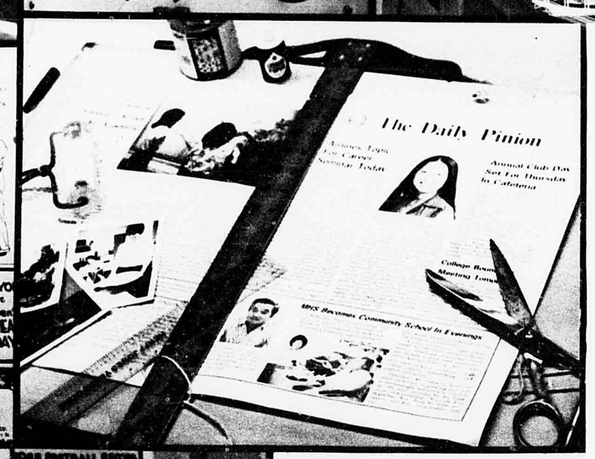

Although the publication staff put in much extra time and effort, the production of the Black and Gold and the Daily Pinion would not have been possible without the guidance, perseverance and drive of advisor Mrs. May Lee Chung. Few outside of the publications room were aware of her endless devotion to both staffs or of the countless extra hours she put in on weekends and afterschool to assist her students. Working side by side, both the publication staff and Mrs. Chung upheld McKinley's long tradition of excellence in the field of journalism.

Student Life: Concerts, Turkey Trot, Dances Comprise Year

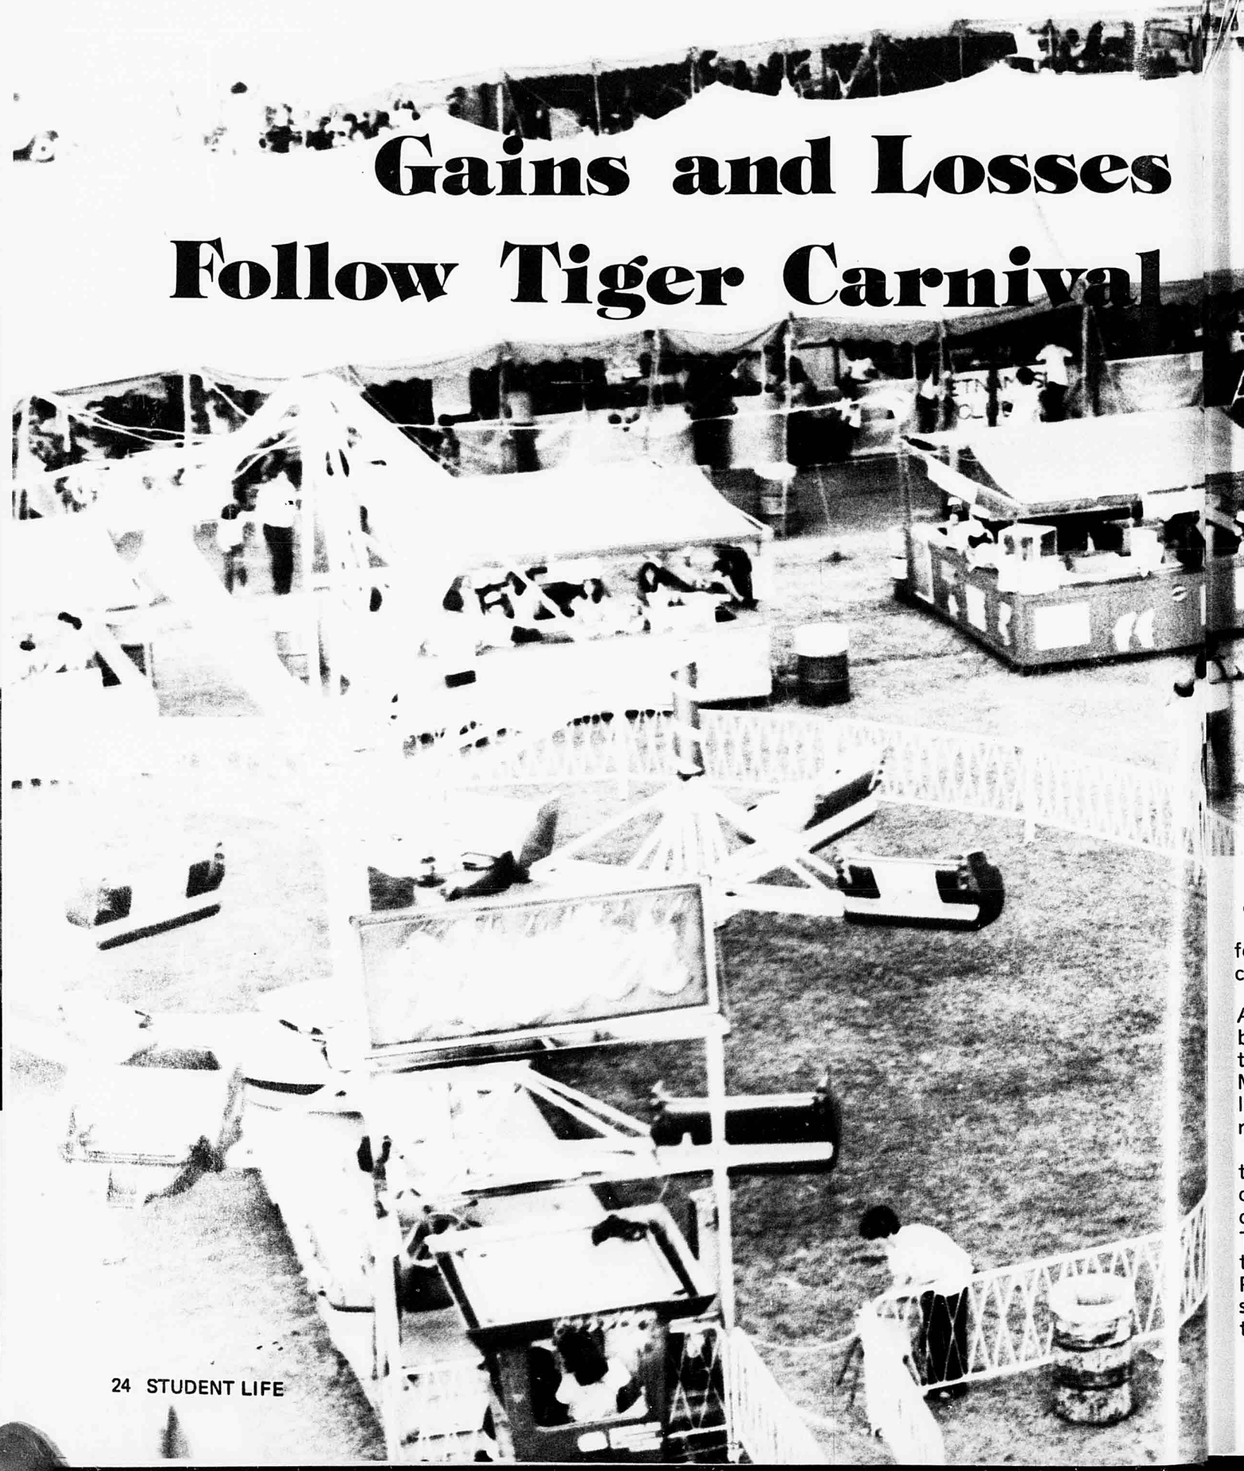

The 1980-81 school year was an event-filled one for McKinleyites. Seniors were enthusiastically preparing for that important day in their lives--graduation. Meanwhile, Juniors worked diligently to fulfill requirements as they looked forward to their own graduation just a year away. Sophomores gradually adjusted to the changes that high school had brought.

Many of the events that helped bring together grade levels, clubs and organizations in spirited competition were the Halloween Jamboree, Homecoming Festivities, Turkey Trot and the Christmas Songfest.

While these events were designed for competition, still others were designed solely for relaxation and enjoyment. The Welcome Back Assembly and the Welcome Back Dance helped to greet students back to another school year, while the Homecoming Dance, Winter Prom, and Band and Choir concerts offered students the chance to get together and have fun.

Gains and Losses Follow Tiger Carnival

The 17th Annual Tiger Carnival featured rides, games, food and competitions for everyone to enjoy.

On the first day, the Rev. Abraham Akaka traditionally blessed the carnival, then untied the maili lei, along with Miss McKinley Janice White, to officially signify the opening of the carnival.

A competition that followed in the afternoon was the booth decorating contest which clubs and class levels matched artistic talents. The Junior Class won depicting the carnival theme, a "Tropical Paradise", with a three-dimensional King Kong setting from the movie.

Mr. and Ms. Tropicana competition involved two representatives from each club or organization dressed in "exotic" tropical attire. Winner was the Japanese Club.

Little Miss McKinley, Little Tiger, Tiny Miss McKinley, and Tiny Tiger contests held on both days were again a hit with youngsters, parents, and students.

Chartered clubs manned food or game booths throughout the two-day event. Unfortunately, there was a loss instead of a gain, compared to last year's carnival profit of $30,000. Approximately $3,500 was lost perhaps due to a poor turnout. for reasons such as Chinatown festivities on both nights, the Holiday Faire a few weeks before, and a poor economical climate.

Although there was no profit, there was a chance to promote much school unity, pride, and spirit. All in all, those who participated had fun in this annual event.

Jobs Take Up MHSers' Weekends, Nights

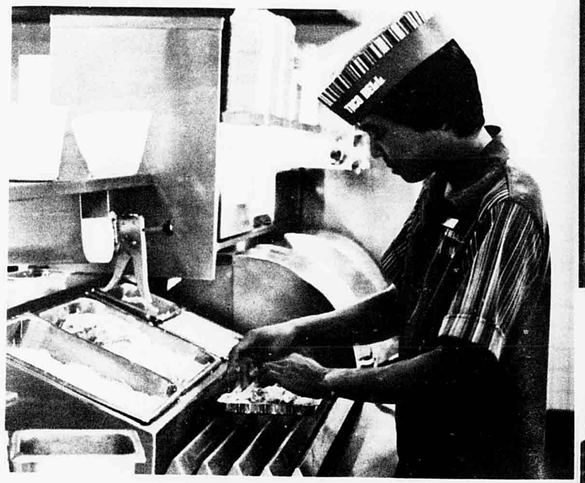

Many seniors and juniors as well as sophomores found week nights and weekends occupied with jobs that were as diverse as the students themselves.

Walking around Ala Moana Shopping Center, Waikiki, and other shops, many McKinley salespeople could be found. Various fast-food outlets were also very popular as places of employment, along with many service stations around town.

Why do students sacrifice their precious time on a job? Many did it for experience in preparation for more important jobs in the future, while others saved to pay their way through college. Others just worked for extra money to spend on luxuries they could not afford otherwise.

For whatever the reason, employment gave McKinleyites a chance to work with others and a means to gain a feeling of independence, so necessary along the path to adulthood.

Many students looked forward to Friday assemblies, rallies, and concerts, which offered a change of pace from a whole week of classes. It gave students an opportunity to scream out frustrations at rallies, or to relax at concerts.

Football season in the first quarter of school saw rallies in the gym to cheer on the team. At the Homecoming Rally, the court was presented, and alumni pep squads returned from the past two years to present action-packed routines.

The gym was jam-packed on the day the '81 Seniorettes made their debut, as the student body waited in excited anticipation. The energetic seniorettes proved to be a hit as they presented a hilarious routine, much to everyone's delight.

The KIKI sponsored "Brown Bags to Stardom" featured school talent that impressed fellow classmates as well as faculty and administration. Winner of the contest, Liuaki Maka, went on to the statewide contest held at Castle Park.

As a result of having one of the most seniors attending a "Salute to the Seniors" show last year, a free concert was given in the gym by the Fabulous Krush. Students greatly enjoyed their song, dance, as well as their comedy routines.

Presenting rock, disco, and "new wave" dance numbers were the '80-'81 LH Hi-Board, making their appearance at McKinley in a year. They also acted out a few skits on the winter prom.

The Black and Gold Assembly featured a slide show on McKinley High, concentrating on the past. Students expected a "hum-drum" type of assembly until a surprise was given to the student body, none other than Frank De Lima and Na Kolohe. Everyone enjoyed his hilarious ethnic jokes as not one racial group was excluded from his program.

Thus, McKinley students were given a chance to enjoy a year of rallies, assemblies, and concerts that would later create fond memories of the school year.

Winter Prom, Ancient Hula Dancers, Mr. Leu Mark ...

SPECIAL EVENTS

Spicing the Tiger year were several special events; one included the whole student body, another was a group of highly talented students and the last, faculty, friends, students and well wishers.

McKinley's only student body semi-formal affair was the Winter Prom. An elegant banquet room, dim lights, delicious dinner and music by Greenwood were the setting of this night themed, "A Winter Fantasy." Reigning over the promenade were the royal couple, Queen Kelly Amino and King Nelson Oyadomari and their court.

A special group of students endured the strenuous tryout sessions of ancient hula dancing taught by master teachers Daryl Lupenui and Florence Kongkee. If the students made it past the first cut, there was even more training involved, until finally a small group was the cream of the crop. These specially talented students entered the Kualoa Ancient Hula Competition in May. Each dancer wore an expensive costume designed especially for the competition.

February fourteenth was a special Valentine's Day for Vice Principal Mr. Loy Fook Leu, when MHS faculty and Mrs. Leu put together a surprise banquet in honor of his retirement in December. This gala event featured Emcee Charles Higa, art teacher, who read off the program as a morning bulletin with commendations from the various departments. It was a hilarious and delightful way to honor his retirement.

TRENDS... McKinleyites K ep Up With Fashion, Entertainment and Music

The new decade brought exciting and unique trends of fashion, entertainment and music. McKinley, being an urban and centralized school, got caught in the latest fads. MHSers rocked out to the "new wave punk" music, got hooked on the "Space Invaders" game and dressed in the latest fashions.

With disco music slowly fading out, students went back to the sounds of rock and decided to try the different type of music- new wave rock. DEVO, The Cars, Pat Benatar, AC/DC and The Police were a few of the popular groups students listened and danced to.

McKinleyites weren't left out in the very catchy "Space Invaders" craze. Game parlors sprang up all over town including many near McKinley, where students spent endless hours and countless quarters enjoying the various electronic game games.

Very fashion conscious, McKinley students kept up with the styles of today. The preppy look with pastels, ribbons and plaids were very popular as well as clamdiggers, bright colors and bold stripes, which were a part of the new wave. Jeans, sweaters and aloha print attire were still old time favorites. Girls turned away from those high-heeled, uncomfortable shoes, opting for flat, soft and mainly comfortable "kung fu" shoes, sunjuns and the elastic strapped Apache sandals. The casual mesh shoes were seen all over campus, but boys still preferred Hush Puppies, sneakers and slippers.

Movies were still a popular favorite pastime, despite the rising cost of admission. The Christmas holiday brought many entertaining movies to the local theatres, such as "Nine to Five," "The Jazz Singer," "Stir Crazy," "A Change of Seasons" and "Any Which Way You Can."

ORGANIZATIONS...

The cast of the McKinley Theatre Group's production of "Stop the World I Want To Get Off" rehearse one of the musical numbers, "Gonna Build A Mountain!"

The diversity seen in the organizations on campus reflected yet another facet of McKinley. Over 30 different organizations provided students with unique opportunities and experiences, which were all integral parts of student life at McKinley.

Organizations such as the Band and the Choir gave students a creative outlet for their musical talents and interests. Students interested in their cultural roots could join ethnic based clubs such as the Hawaiian, Korean or Japanese Clubs. Athletics, the outdoors and keeping fit brought students together in clubs such as the Girls' Athletic Association, the Sierra, Barbell and Letterman's Club.

Serving the community as well as the school were the Key, Keywanettes and Junior Civitan Clubs. These organizations performed numerous service projects throughout the year such as sponsering a canned goods drive for the Salvation Army, "trick-or-treating" for UNICEF and assisting the annual registration known as "Scramble."

Academically oriented clubs took part in activies related to school, such as quiz bowls and math meets as well as many social activities and service projects. The National Honor Society, DRIPS, Math Club and Chemistry Club were included in these types of clubs.

McKinley's various clubs and organizations tried to accomodate the diverse needs and interests of the equally diverse student body. Whether the individual wanted to join one, two, or more clubs, there was always a wide variety to select from.

Execs Establish Quad-Council for SC, Classes

The '80-'81 Student Council officers were elected early in May, and were anxious to start planning the next year.

President Helen Lau and Vice-President Eric Chong were elected by the student body, while Secretary Joy Sato, Treasurer John Yuen, Social Board Coordinator Allyn Lee, Student Services Board Coordinator Doris Yoshioka and Senate President Ann Miyasaki were selected by application to complete the Executive Board. Mr. George Maeda served as the first full-time Student Activities Coordinator MHS has ever had.

The execs met regularly during the summer, setting up goals, plans and materializing ideas. One was the establishment of the Quad-Council, made up of the SC and the class execs. Its purpose was to open relations between the class and SC councils, having monthly meetings to air out concerns.

Promoting pride and unity, and to make people aware of SC and its services were the opening assemblies held on the first three days of school. In their skit, the execs explained their jobs in humerous costumes. Another was the distribution of "Tiger Pride" bumper stickers, a hit with many on campus.

The Senate worked on several resolutions during the year, a major one was one to make people aware of the run-down and hazardous condition of the auditorium.

Social, Service Boards Coordinate Student Affairs; Grievance Board Airs School Concerns

As the name implied, the Social Board was made up of chairpersons overseeing "social" activities under the Student Council. Coordinator Allyn Lee held meetings bi-weekly to have committees give reports on their difficulties as well as progress.

The Assembly committee was responsible for planning interesting rallies and concerts throughout the year. Assemblies arousing much interest were, "Brown Bags to Stardom", the B & G assembly with Frank De Lima, and a concert with the Fabulous Krush.

The Winter Prom committee planned "Winter Fantasy" weeks ahead to give students an event many would cherish. Held at the Pacific Beach Hotel, many MHSers experienced a romantic evening.

The Halloween Jamboree and Turkey Trot were fun outdoor relay competitions between clubs and organizations planned by the Special Activities committee. The Valentine Gram delivery service, whose proceeds went to the Heart Association, was another one of their projects.

Similarly, the Student Services Board consisted of chairpersons who were in charge of service committees. The board met twice a month to keep Coordinator Doris Yoshioka informed of problems and progress. Activity Card, Bookstore, Elections, Handbook, I.D., Leadership Camp, Lockers, Lost and Found, Special Programs, and Uni-Club were the committees that made up this board.

The Uni-Club was an organization that held together chartered clubs in MHS. Participation from the clubs in activities such as Songfest and the May Day food festival was sought through this organization.

Offering various opportunities for students to enter contests and win scholarships throughout the school year was the Special Programs committee. This committee screened and chose representatives for many things such as the Hawaii State Student Conference, Who's Who, and the Advertiser Young Achievers, to name a few.

Elections was a major committee, as it held elections in the beginning of the year to fill up vacant positions, and again at the end of the year to fill next year's offices. It also oversaw all special elections during the year.

Grievance Board Chairperson Kathy Tamura acted as an ombudsman to the students who had grievances on policies, etc. Using the Senate as her voting body, she investigated complaints throughout the year.

McKinleyites Sharpen Skills in Graphic Arts, Photography, Electronics, and Chess

Located in the shop building, the Graphic Arts, Radio and Electronic, and Chess Clubs met weekly to improve their skills in those areas. Similarly, the Photography Club met upstairs in the Administration Building's A-V room.

Graphic Arts Club members were busy with silk screening and offset printing after school. They did everything from T-shirts, note cards, to The Daily Pinion. Under the instruction of advisor Mr. Charles Nakamura, members learned a wide range of techniques in all kinds of printing. Touring Edwards Enterprises and the Star-Bulletin helped widen their perspective in the printing industry.

For the Radio and Electronics Club, the main concern was to establish a network--an exchange between students from such places as the Mainland, Australia, New Zealand, and Japan. For some members, their objective was to become licensed operators, by passing the FCC License Test. Mr. Emil Bruner was advisor.

The Photography Club, leaning more towards the artistic areas, clicked and snapped its way from one end of Oahu to the other, at the same time learned about the many varied and interesting aspects of photography. Members gained invaluable practical experiences working with photographic processes in the darkroom, printing, developing, and enlarging photographs.

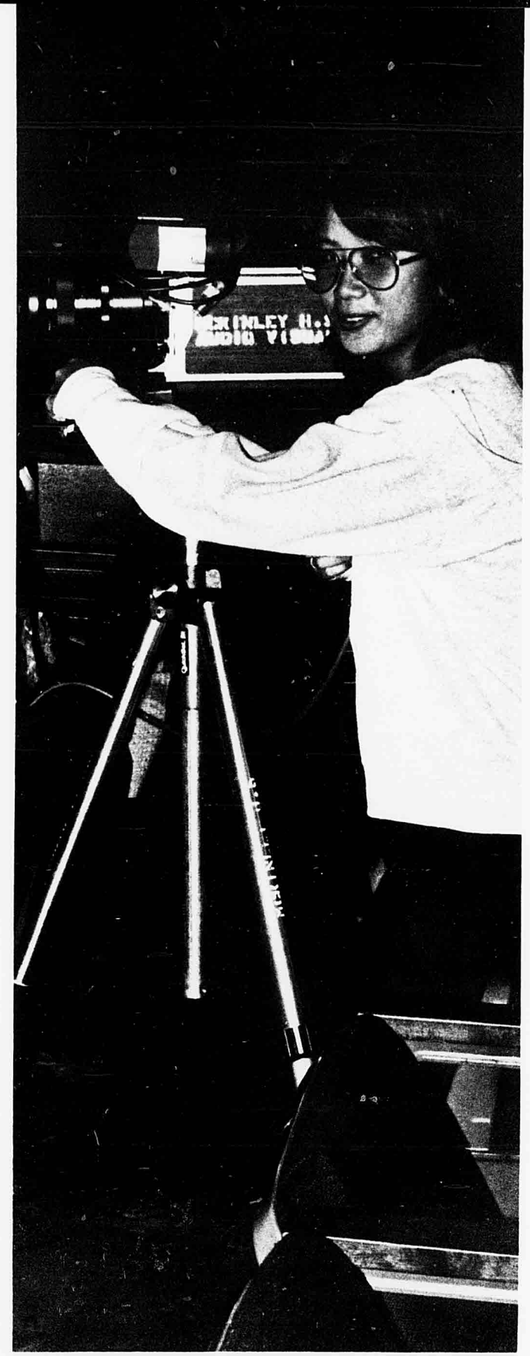

Exhibitions, field trips to the zoo, and lectures helped them to better understand the use of a camera. The members have also broadened their knowledge by entering their own pictures into contests with advisor Dennis Sakata's instructions.

Through practices and chess tournaments, the Chess Club learned strategy and the ability to solve problems. With the help of advisor Mr. Bruner, they strengthened their manuevering techniques.

Combining quick thinking and strategic moves also helped to further develop a chess player's skills.

Academically Oriented

Clubs Encourage Interschool Competitions

Academically oriented, the National Honor Society, Math and Speech clubs offered students a chance to meet new people and participate in various activities.

Led by officers Joyce Baker, Gary Amuro, Leslie Poon and Jackie Downs, the Speech Club participated in weekly competitions at various high schools. The club members met during lunch to practice their selections and speeches with Mrs. Fely Serra, advisor.

Stressing scholarship, service, leadership and character, the NHS participated in many school activities. Members helped with the Alumni Luau and worked in the business and registrar's office when needed. Besides volunteer work, they competed in monthly quiz bowls with other high schools on Oahu. Officers were Debora Onaga, Bertha Tomiyasu, Miki Masaki, Allyn Lee, Henry Wong, Ann Miyasaki and advisor Mrs. Yun Soong Jim.

Producing the literary magazine, Writers Inc., was the main goal of the Literary Club. Completed by the end of the year, the magazine displayed the creative talents of McKinley's students. The conscientious officers of the club were Mari Taketa, Adrienne Nowaki, Judy Lam and Sharilyn Nakata who were advised by Mrs. Patricia Lau.

The Math Club, under the leadership of Allyn Lee, Sharilyn Nakata, Julie Teruya, Darwin Linn and advisors Mr. Lester Chuck and Mrs. Claire Mizokami combined academic and social activities. Members started the Christmas vacation with a second place victory in the school's Songfest and anxiously awaited the anual Christmas party. Initiated this year were guest speakers who discussed such topics as computers, calculators, and other math-related areas.

Sponsored by the Math Club, the Math Team, with hard work and rigorous training was a top contender for this year's Oahu Math League title. Coaching the team were Mrs. Reverie Suzuki and Miss Raynette Takizawa who were aided by the rest of the Math Department.

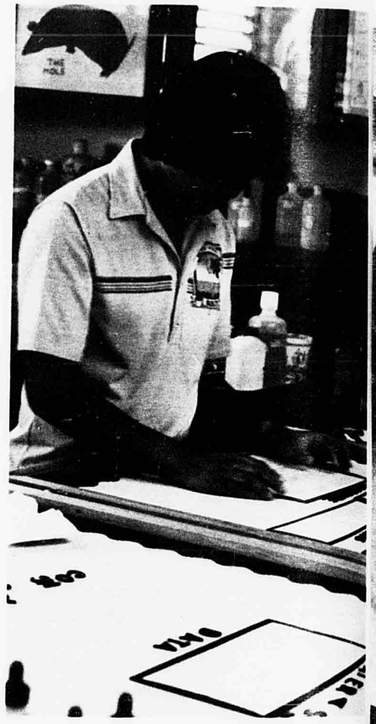

As the yearbook went to press in February, the defending OML champion Math Team was once again in the race for top honors. Making an impressive comeback from fifth place, the McKinley team worked it's way up to a tie for first place with Iolani, with four meets left in the season.

Research, Exploration Revolve Around DRIPS, Chemistry, Friends of the Animals, Science Clubs

Centered around science and biology, the DRIPS, Chemistry, Science and Friends of the Animals Clubs filled the year with research and exploration into their particular fields of interest.

The Directed Research in Practical Science Club participated in the MHS Carnival as well as in the Science Fair. This club focused mainly on working on projects to enter in the annual Science Fair. President James Lee, with the assistance of Vice President Sharilyn Nakata and Advisor Miss Barbara Rogers, arranged meaningful projects for club members.

Chemistry Club members involved themselves in all kinds of activities ranging from a welcome back picnic to workshops and scientific demonstrations. Every month, on the first Friday, members were lectured by speakers from the University of Hawaii.

Members of the Zoo Instructor Program were interrelated to the Friends of the Animals Club which enabled them to spend a night at the zoo. Students learned about various nocturnal animals and became better aquainted with fellow club members. Friends of the Animals also took advantage of an opportunity to stay at the Molokai Ranch.

Athletic Groups Attract Physical Fitness Enthusi sts

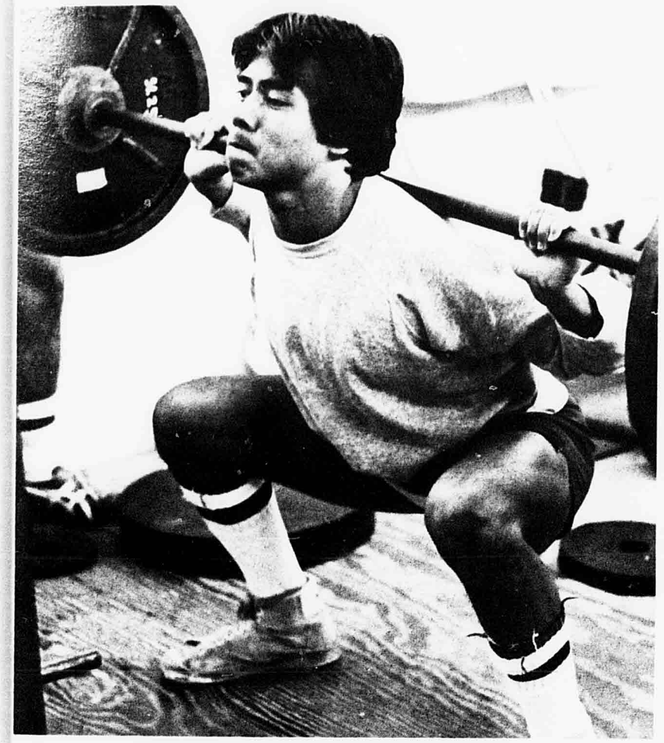

The Girl's Athletic Association, Lettermen's and Barbell clubs were open to McKinley students who were interested in athletics and physical fitness.

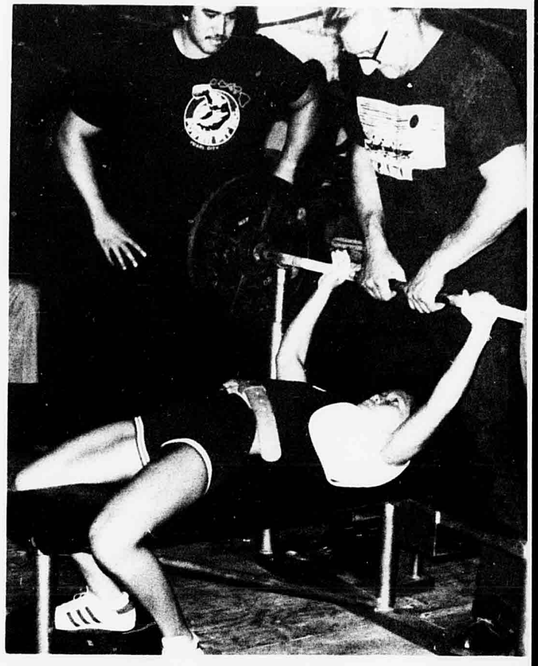

The Girl's Athletic Association was an enthusiastic group which provided community services and participated in intramural sports events. The club was advised by Mrs. Jane Schroeder and led by President Lynn Okazaki, First Vice President Shanti Mizuno, Second Vice President Carol Chun, Treasurer Sandy Ejercito, and Secretary Janice Wong. Having won Club of the Year awards as well as first place in the annual songfest competitions for two consecutive years, this dedicated group showed tremendous pride in being a part of McKinley High School.

The Lettermen's Club was open to those athletes who received a letter in one or more varsity sports. Advised by Ms. Bobbi Kakuda and Mrs. Lorraine Yoshimoto, the Lettermen undertook projects such as a fund raiser of selling lollipops, manning a carnival booth, screening their club T-shirts, and doing volunteer work at the Festival of Trees. The Lettermen's club was an organization which promoted interaction between male and female athletes, and placed emphasis on supporting others in their respective athletic endeavors.

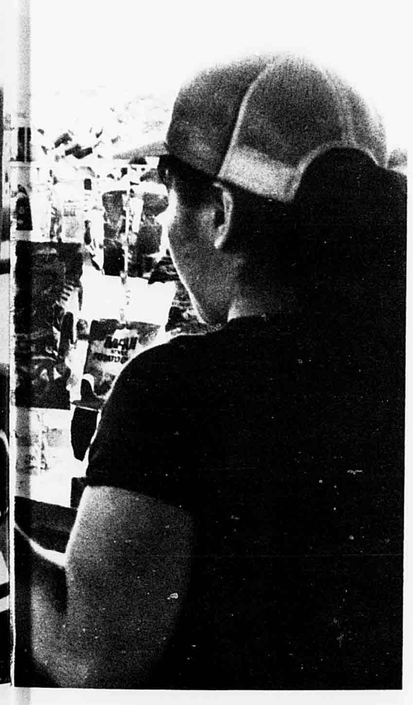

The Barbell Club met after school to work out on barbells and flex their muscles. Advised by Mr. Franklin Chang, club officers were President Kyle Ebisutani, Vice President Talia Nicolai, Secretary Lori Okami, Treasurer Kahale Richardson, and Sergeant at Arms George Yoon. A few members entered weightlifting and body building competitions, and this year senior Lori Okami managed to break four state and three world records. In the Miss Physique Hawaii Women's Body Building Competition, Lori placed fifth out of twenty-two contestants. Events such as these made this year at McKinley an exciting and memorable one.

McKinleyites Get Involved in Community Service

Various clubs were open for students who were interested in pursuing the lighter side of school. Specializing in service on campus and in the community were the Key, Keywanettes and Leo Clubs. These organizations participated in beneficial events.

The Key Club, made up of 25 spirited young men, were led by President Paul Tsuchiya, Vice President Dayton Asato, Secretary Jon Morikawa, Treasurer Arthur Furukawa, Sgt.-at-Arms Brian Yoshii and Advisor Dennis Sakata. Members participated in the annual Kiwanis Pancake Breakfast at the Waioli Tea Room in September along with its sister club the Keywanettes who served as hostesses. The Key Club received treats for UNICEF on Halloween and in December, both clubs lent their melodious voices to the Songfest. January was a busy month with the annual Mr. McKinley birthday bath and the operating of the Kiddie's Games at the carnival. A special activity for the club was the Carole Kai Bed Race, in which the members collected money from the crowd.

The Keywanettes Club kept its 30 members occupied throughout the year, under the guidance of President Carol Matsumoto, Vice President Kathy Hasebe, Recording Secretary Lori Fujishige, Corresponding Secretary April Muromoto, Treasurer Lynn Watanabe and Advisors Ron Kishimoto, Ray Minami and Neal Takamori. The Keywanettes assisted with registration, sponsored a canned goods drive in which the proceeds went to the Salvation Army and worked the corn booth at the carnival.

The club also participated in divisional projects such as the selling of sweetbread tickets and helping with the Mother's March of Dimes. To celebrate the children's theme of Keywanettes Week, January 12-18, the McKinley Keywanettes visited the Makiki Christian Church Preschool and attended a picnic at Ala Moana Beach Park along with handicapped youngsters. Members went to the Hawaii State Youth Volunteer Board Conference, followed by a dance at the Prince Kuhio Hotel and spent three days at a convention at the Pagoda Hotel in March.

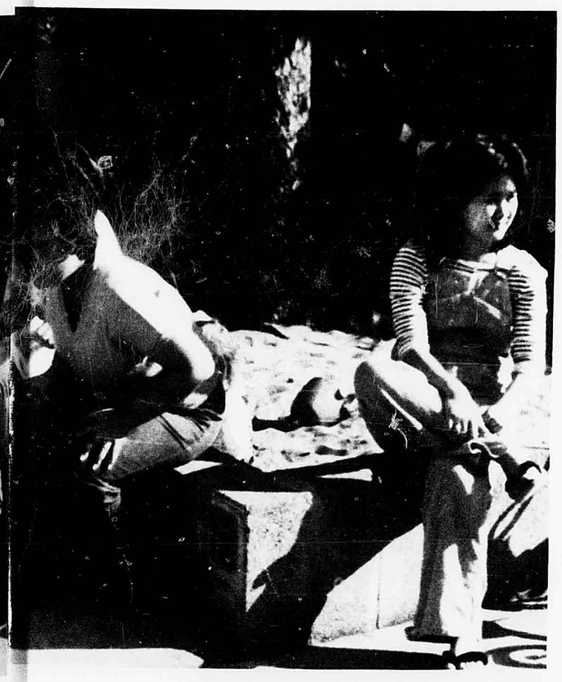

The Leo Club with its 20 dedicated members, were directed by President Carole Leong, Vice President Ramona Young, Secretary Valarie Kop, Treasurer Debbie Valentin, Sgt.-at-Arms Greg Suzuki and Advisors Hiroko Murakami and Barbara Takara. They worked the Dart Throw at the carnival and aided the Lion Club at their Huli Huli Chicken Sale in March. An added highlight was the annual convention on Kauai.

Band, Choir, MTG, Perform for Community, School

Performing for the public as well as for the school, the McKinley Theatre Group, the Choir and the Band have set traditions and goals for each of their performances.

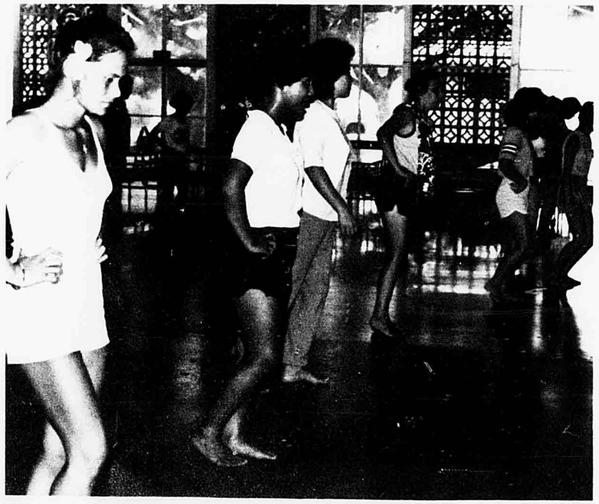

Plays such as "Stop the World, Want to Get Off," and "Story Theatre" has been put on by the McKinley Theatre Group. Leading this group of highly motivated actors are Dennis Crane, Janice White, Cecilia Kim and Uriah Pahio. As part of the International Thespian Society, the M.T.G. took its production of "Stop the World" to the state conference on Maui. Though McKinley was one of two schools asked to perform, they received a perfect review from Mr. Terrance Knapp. In addition to plays and performances, the M.T.G. held a year end banquet at the Ala Moana Hotel's Banquet Room, with friends, family, alumni and their own talent for entertainment. The McKinley Theatre Group under the advisorship of Mr. Ken Fryer and Ms. Sylvia Lee worked hard to take the place of Mr. Jim Nakamoto who was on sabbatical leave.

Throughout the year, the McKinley Choir put on many performances at various places in the community, including Royal Elementary the Waikiki Shopping Plaza, Kahala Mall Shopping Center, Fort Street Mall, Kawananakoa Intermediate and at McKinley assemblies. The choir entertained at the December Songfest with two selections, "Nu Oli" and "Sing and be Joyful." A special Spring Concert was scheduled for April 10. A unique feature was the choir uniform. President Jennifer Leslein with co-workers Blaine Kia, Kahalepuna Richardson, Luwella Naeole, John Lacio and Robey Phillips picked out the fabric for their professionally sewn uniforms.

"Our Spirits Flow in Harmony" was the motto for the 1980-81 McKinley High School Band. The idea was that of playing and feeling as one when they performed together. Known for their exellence in both technique and sound, the band has sent many students to the Hula Bowl Band, the High School Select Band and the Solo and Ensemble competition. As an organization, they have supported McKinley at football games, pep rallies and assemblies to promote pride and spirit. Throughout the year the band conducted money making projects which included their annual performance at the State Farm Fair, and a Huli-Huli Chicken and Sushi sale to raise funds for their trip to Japan.

Special Interest Clubs Involve MHSers In Canoeing, May Day Festivies, Songfest, Public Appearances

To further fulfill students needs and interest, several clubs offered events that tied in with extracurricular activities.

The Canoe Club, affiliated with Na Opio Association, practiced everyday afterschool in the back of the Waikiki Natatorium to prepare for weekly races and regattas at Keehi Lagoon and Kailua Beach Park. Under the watchful eye of their advisor Mrs. Momi Phillips, the Canoe Club worked hard toward the State Championships in March where clubs came from Molokai, Maui, Kauai, and the Big Island of Hawaii. Membership consisted of eight crews, sophomore, junior, and senior divisions, with six members in each crew.

With the advisorship of Mrs. Lois Mui, the Vietnamese Club planned several outings and events including the Christmas Songfest and working at the carnival. After weeks of difficult preparation and unselfish devotion, Mrs. Mui carefully prepared her students for the songfest. They sang, under the guidance of their president, Minh Chieu Quach, "Silent Night" in the Vietnamese and American dialect. Members attended classes on Saturdays and Sundays as an extra tutorial period to help newer arrivals in their studying. The club also spearheaded a group of Vietnamese students including those from Farrington and Roosevelt to return services to the community. Special projects were planned as an appreciation gesture for all the community has done for them.

The Samoan Club, under the advisorship of Mr. Joe Afoa, got together and organized their club by the middle of the year to participate in such activities as the May Day program and the Samoan Flag Day event.

The Hawaiian Club, aiming to learn more about its culture, planned fundraising projects to prepare for the May Day program and the Kualoa Festivities. The club also practiced dances and singing weekly to prepare for musical performances. Club members made public appearances at the Alumni Luau and Ala Moana Center. Led by President Venus Vanderford and Vice President Queenie Kaeo and advised by Mr. Raymond Chung, the club strived to continue interrelationships of Hawaiian clubs by getting a guest speaker from the Office of Hawaiian Affairs to help plan in future plans for Hawaiians.

Cultural Groups Increase Membership on Club Day

Many clubs took advantage of the Uni-Club sponsored Club Day, which was held afterschool on October 9. This gave students a chance to preview and select a club. Special interest clubs such as the Japanese Club, Chinese Club, and French and Spanish Club gained many new members through this Student Council activity.

Under the leadership of President Lynn Takata, Vice President Hugh Fuchigami, Secretary Sharon Sadoyama, and Treasurer Julia Nakasone, the Japanese Club met every first and third Thursday of each month to plan and discuss club business. Most activities were culture oriented such as attending a Japanese tea ceremony, flower arrangement, and helping with the Cherry Blossom festival. Members started off the year with an orientation picnic at Ala Moana Park and closed with a banquet. The advisor was Mrs. Meg Uehara.

Songfest, carnival, and May Day were just a few of the events that the Chinese Club participated in. This is a club which provided service projects for the benefit of the community. The club's willingness to work proved to be an asset to both the school and the community with projects such as assisting in the cafeteria kitchen during the Tiger carnival. Advisors were Mr. Stephen Choy and Mrs. Lois Mui.

Under the guidance of advisors Ms. Jean Matsuo and Ms. Sharrie Lee, planning events for the French and Spanish Club was underway early this year. One of the club's many activities was helping with the state's AEP (Asian, European, and Pacific) Languages Survey, which helped the state to determine whether or not the foreign languages offered in the public schools were satisfactory. With meetings held every third Thursday of each month, the club also planned events such as a Christmas dinner, banquet, and a camp.

Uni-Club Coordinates SC Chartered Organizations

Clubs filled an important part at McKinley High School. Under the Student Council and the Uni-Club organization, they fostered educational as well as fun-filled activities.

The Business Club, sponsored by the Downtown Business Council, participated in promotional activities for the downtown area. One of the events included members playing Santa Claus and wrapping gifts at Fort Street Mall. Members also volunteered their services by decorating the McDonald's on Beretania Street during the holiday season.

The Future Homemakers of America (FHA) was a noncompetitive club focused on personal growth and special interests. It also strived to improve family life, build leadership qualities and stimulate total health awareness. FHAers were busy all year around with workshops, state conferences, community service projects, career seminars, Uni-Club events and the Tiger Carnival.

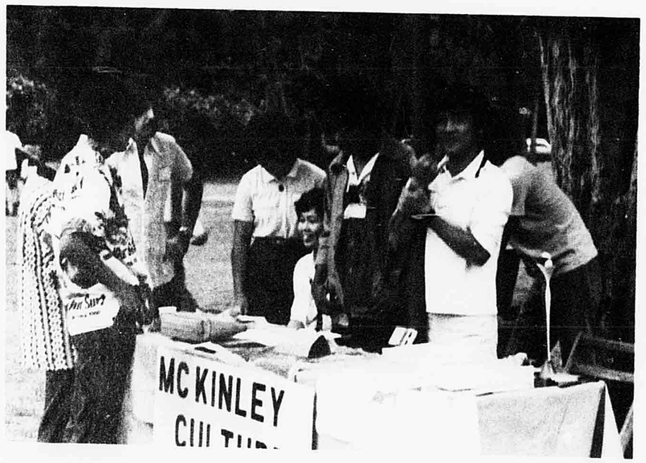

At the FHA Oahu District meeting in January, the club was awarded the overall second place trophy for its spirit, banner and cheering. Three delegates from the McKinley chapter attended a statewide conference at the Napualani Hotel on April 3,4 and 5, which focused on the theme, "Families Are You There, You Bet!" The year closed with the annual Senior Luncheon prepared and served by the underclassmen.

Civic-Minded Clubs Contribute To Well-Being of Community

Several groups concerned themselves with helping people and the enviroment. The Sierra Club, Junior Civitan and McKinley Christian Fellowship as well as the Cultural Studies Group selflessly aided the community while strengthening their self-images.

Founded in 1975, the McKinley Sierra Club is the oldest high school hiking program in Hawaii and has long helped the community by building and expanding trail systems. Moonlit campouts and adventurous hikes over the trails of Hawaii were only a small part of the many activities the Sierra Club embarked on in the past year. Educational benefits available to members included study of wildlife engineering and deep sea oceanography and an Ecology Camp held in Hauula with various Oahu Sierra Clubs participating.

Junior Civitan, a community service club, served as an integral part of communications between the school and Hawaii's handicapped.

Hawaii's only high school Civitan Club, this organization has done much to foster goodwill within the community. One of the many projects undertaken was their performance at the Shriner's Hospital in December, when members entertained children with songs, guitar playing and handicrafts.

Public relations, helping the handicapped and encouraging good citizenship are some of the goals set by the club of the future.

The McKinley Christian Fellowship sought to build a better understanding of the Bible and of Christianity.

Open to students of all religions, the Fellowship's activities included rap sessions, Bible studies, hosting guest speakers and attending meetings and socials with other Christian Fellowships.

Members conducted themselves under the motto, "Know God and help others know Him."

One of the newest clubs on campus this year was the McKinley Cultural Studies Program. Advised by Mr. Bob DeLorenzo, club members met in the Cultural Studies Room in the social studies building where ideals of the American culture and world influences were discussed.

Some of their activities included group discussions and participating in last fall's Cultural Fair at Kapiolani Park where members exhibited products from different Asian countries.

The club was organized to help foreign students adjust to new lifestyles and to become a contributing part of the American society.

HS JROTC, One of Four in Public Schools on Oahu

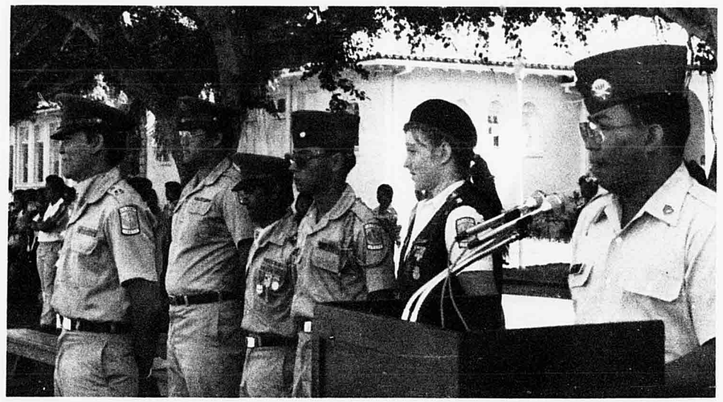

One of four JROTC units in public schools on Oahu, McKinley stands out as one of the best. Instructed by Sgts. Kenji Ito and Dan Abella, the young men and women are drilled in leadership, citizenship, and most importantly team work.

Every year, the prestigious Sabre and Chain, a JROTC officers' club, planned various activities for the JROTC cadets. These socials provided an opportunity for the cadets to get together in a fun-filled way. This year, the club planned socials for special events, including Christmas and Valentine's Day.

The annual Military Ball is always the largest and most time consuming project. With chairperson Frances Leong, nearly all members participated in the Ball Committee. This ever-popular event took place at the Ilikai Hotel , on March 28.

The dedication of the club members was evident from attendance at early morning meeting every Wednesday. Led by President Shannon Miyoi, Secretary Lynette Leger, Treasurer Joyce Baker, and Projects Chairman Maria Apo, the Sabre and Chain Club was one of McKinley's most well organized and fully participating clubs.

Precision Drill Team, Taikas Captivate Audiences

With rhythmic and synchronized beats, the JROTC Drill Team and the Taikas captivated many student audiences as they perfected their many drills during after school hours.

After a lapse of two years, the Taikas made a tremendous comeback. There was great support for the revival with an enthusiastic turnout of girls. The Taikas were McKinley's exclusive Precision Girls Drill Team. Performing at times with the JROTC Drum and Bugle Corps, they executed precision manuevers, kicks, and splits.

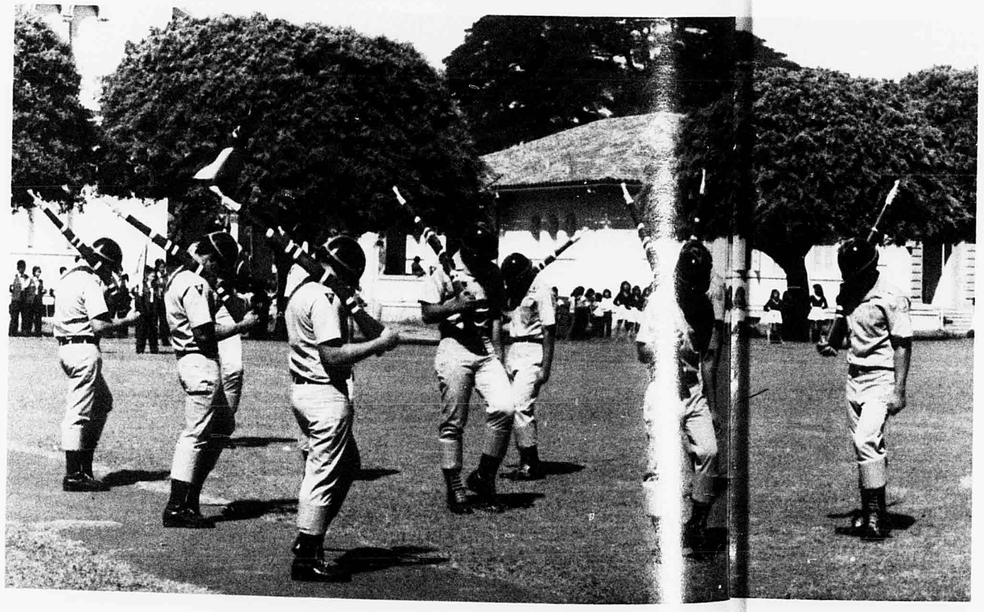

Captained by President Carol Nakamura, Squad Leaders Jody Eggleston, Ann Seo, and Carol Kida and advised by faculty member Ms. Peg Anderson, the girls took part in numerous worthwhile community service projects. The team manned an aid station in the Wheelchair Marathon, were volunteers for Easter Seals and were even usherettes for the car show. Proving they could hold their own in competition, the Taikas took second place in the Kaneohe Christmas Parade.

The JROTC are equally outstanding as one of the state's top precision drill teams. In November, the JROTC Drill Team placed third ahead of all the other high school units in the Waianae Veteran's Day Parade. Its performance was surpassed only by the UH Senior ROTC and the 25th Infantry of the United States Army which came in first and second, respectively.

During the year, the all male JROTC Drill Team decided to go co-educational with the membership of females Ruby Dean and Beverly West.

International Q & S Recognizes Student Journalists

Quill and Scroll, and international organization for high school journalists, operates at McKinley with members drawn from two publications. Newswriting students held the responsibility of producing The Daily Pinion almost every day of the school year, while those enrolled in yearbook classes worked on the 1981 edition of the Black and Gold.

With a total membership of 18, the McKinley chapter of Quill and Scroll served to reward distinguished publication students. A minimum of two years of enrollment in newswriting or yearbook classes was required of each member, along with outstanding journalistic qualities. Quill and Scroll sponsored many of the activities publication students were involved in throughout the year, paying registration fees for various workshops and serving the McKinley community at the annual Tiger Carnival.

One of only five high school dailies in the nation and the only one of its kind in Hawaii, The Daily Pinion celebrated its 60th year of publication as a daily newspaper. Although declining enrollment in newswriting classes and several other factors raised doubts about its continued existence as a daily, a survey taken by students and faculty revealed that an outstanding majority favored a daily paper, and the existence of The Daily Pinion was ensured of a few more years.

Newswriting students reported, wrote, typed and designed their paper each day to produce over 150 issues of The Pinion, and with the help of the graphic arts students, printed and distributed them.

High standards of journalism at McKinley were revealed and reinforced when five newswriting students placed at the Second Annual University of Hawaii J-Day Write-Off. First place awards went to Benjamin Seto, Features; Mari Taketa, Editorials; Aldin Baroza, Cartoons and second place to Yasmin Catalan, Editorials and Joan Fukumoto, Cartoons.

Yearbook staffers worked to produce the diamond edition of the Black and Gold to celebrate its 75th year of publication. With all veteran section editors on the staff, starting on the book was a bit easier, despite the asbestos problem that hit McKinley and prevented the staff from working during the summer. Work picked up rapidly as students learned the fundamentals of layouts, taking pictures and writing copy. They gained better writing skills and improved their creative thinking by producing the Black and Gold. Staffers were not only "enclosed" in room 152, but were able to venture forth and explore the many activities that were happening on campus as well as in the community. Endless hours of labor and dedication filled the atmosphere of the yearbook classes.

The Columbia Scholastic Press Association, the organization that critiques yearbooks and newspapers, rated the 1980 edition of the Black and Gold as a medalist, the highest honor of recognition that it gives to an outstanding yearbook.

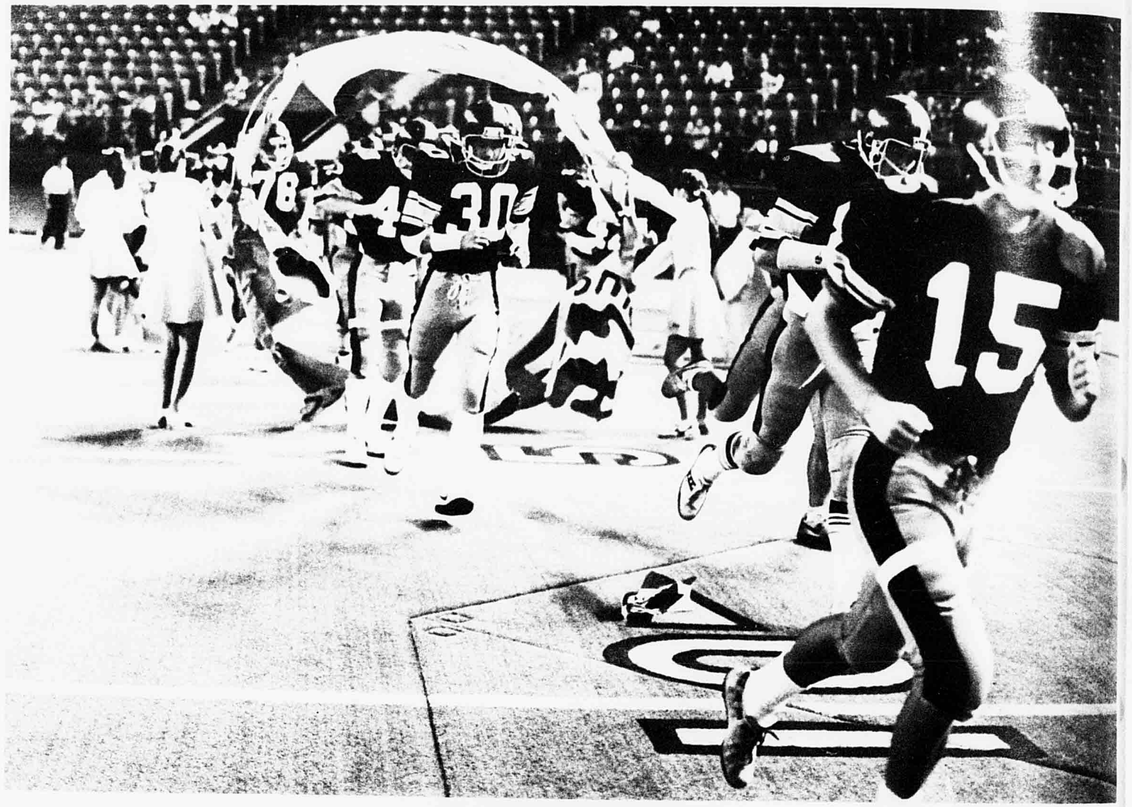

Quill and Scroll, The Daily Pinion and the Black and Gold staffs were the links to McKinley's informative and enjoyable news to the students themselves.

One of the most exciting facets of McKinley was the athletic program. Coaches stressed the importance of pride, dedication and good sportsmanship as teams practiced after-school and on weekends to prepare for O.I.A. competition.

Athletes dedicated both their body and mind to perfecting their skills as well as developing good teamwork, vital elements to any winning effort. Star or bench-warmer, each individual made an important contribution to his or her team. Whether in victory or in defeat, the McKinley Tigers always showed a lot of class.

Supporting all the Tiger teams were the exuberant girls of the Varsity and J.V. Pep Squads. Under the guidance and leadership of Miss Gaile Sykes, both squads kept the Tiger spirit rolling throughout the competitive season. In addition to cheering on the Tiger teams, the Pep Squad also participated in the Special Olympics and the Hula Bowl, as well as serving as the official host cheerleaders of the Carole Kai Bed Race.

Christmas caroling at Kaiser Hospital, a trip to the Lahina-Luna Invitational Basketball Tournament with the basketball team, and winning the Spirit Stick Award at the National Cheerleading Association Clinic were just a few of the events that made "Being on the pep squad such an exciting, challenging, and rewarding experience."

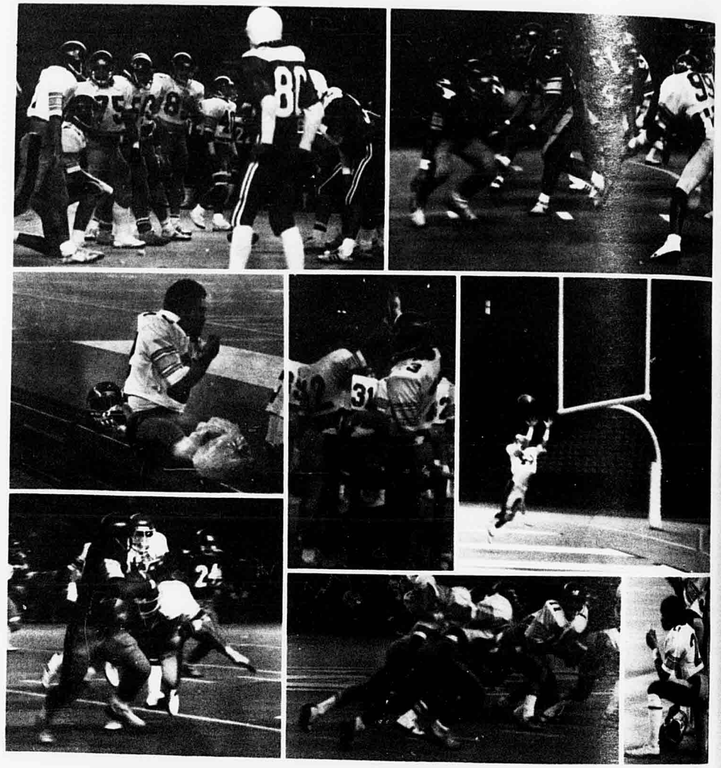

With United Efforts, Tigers Rally To 4-4 Record

When the going gets tough, the tough gets going. And this was certainly the case for the McKinley Tigers football team.

Though the Homecoming Game was lost, the unified spirit and Tiger Pride never diminished from the players and the fans that watched. For it was this same quality that kept the team together to work and strive harder in its efforts which so many times were instructed by the coaches and enhanced by Principal Richard Sakamoto.

The team began its season with a very difficult schedule. In fact, their first several games were a line up of top contenders such as OIA Champions Waianae, 1979-80 Prep Bowl Champs Kaiser and highly favored in the district Farrington.

But this alone was not the only difficult task for Head Coach Neal Takamori. He and his staff continually stressed the importance of teamwork by inculcating this thought into the hearts and minds of the players. And through positive persistence, this quality sparkled as they defeated their opponents by 30-point scoring averages to rally from a 1-4 record to an even 4-4 by the end of the season. This gave them a hard earned third place in the highly competitive Honolulu District.

JV Tigers Dominate Honolulu District With Undefeated Regular Season

In mostly every team sport, the varsity level seemed to draw more crowds, attention and publicity due to it's experience, discipline and popularity. But here at McKinley, the JV football team appeared to have captured some of these qualities, and the crowd turnouts and gossip were turned on to this young inspiring ball club.

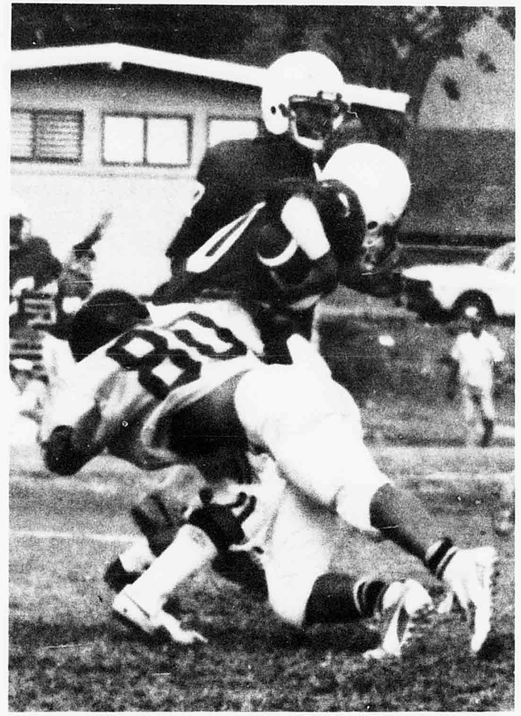

The reason?--Well, never losing a regular season game was one, and domination of the Honolulu District was the other. These statistics of course, spoke for themselves, but to the players and coaches it was a goal that took enduring hours of practice and training which resulted in a truly satisfying accomplishment.

Under head coach Darryl Sakai's supervision and the leadership of team captains Guy Kamealoha, Michael Mills and Kevin Phillips, they proved, in several games, that giving more than enough was not enough to this young football team as they devastated some of their opponents by such scores as 28-12, 28-6 and 34-0.

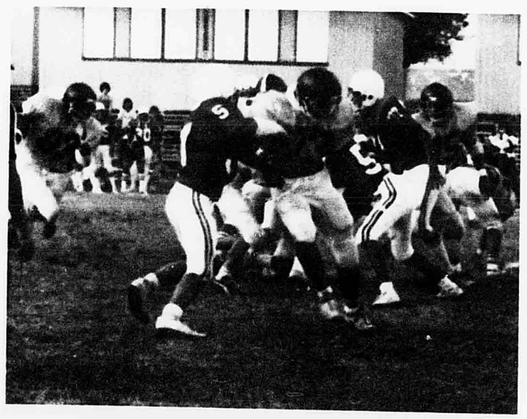

With such impressive statistics, it was likely the JV Tigers would lead as the top contenders next season while many other players moved up to the varsity level with their already proven potential.

Harriers Clinch Top Honors in District and Eastern

Cross Country

Considered one of the top contenders for the OIA and State titles, the cross country teams fared well this season. The team placed second overall at the Pacific TAC Championships, held at the University of Hawa Hawaii Manoa Campus. The team also entered a meet held on Molokai in which they finished first overall.

Captain Debbie Onaga led the varsity girls to a third place finish at the State Championships. They also clinched a first place standing in the district and eastern divisions. With no seniors on the team, the varsity boys, led by co-captains Jonathan Lyau and Eric Arndt finished thirteenth in the State Championships. Junior varsity girl, Sylvia Valentin qualified for the state team. Junior varsity boys Barrett Hayashi and James Lyau also qualified for the the state team. Special recognition should go to head coach, Tom Marks and his assistant coaches, Dan Yahata, Peter Tong, Cliff Steele, and Tart Sing Lee.

Female Spikers Resumes OIA Competition After One-Year Lapse

Girls' Volleyball

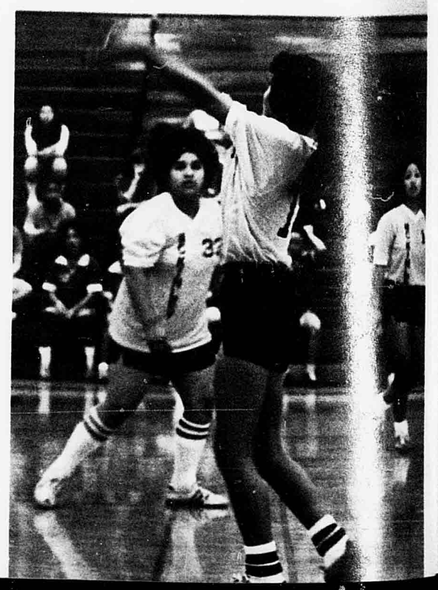

he girls' volleyball program has built itself up after a one year absence. There is not only a varsity team but also a junior varsity team, under the coaching of Kenneth Rowe and assistant coach Kendra Brooks. Practicing serves, spikes and various other drills were just a part of the rigorous training regime the teams went through. Teamwork played an important role in bringing the teams together. With the strong comeback that the two teams displayed, the year brought renewed hopes for a strong girls' volleyball program next year.

Boys' Volleyball Team Go to Third as

Boys' Volleyball

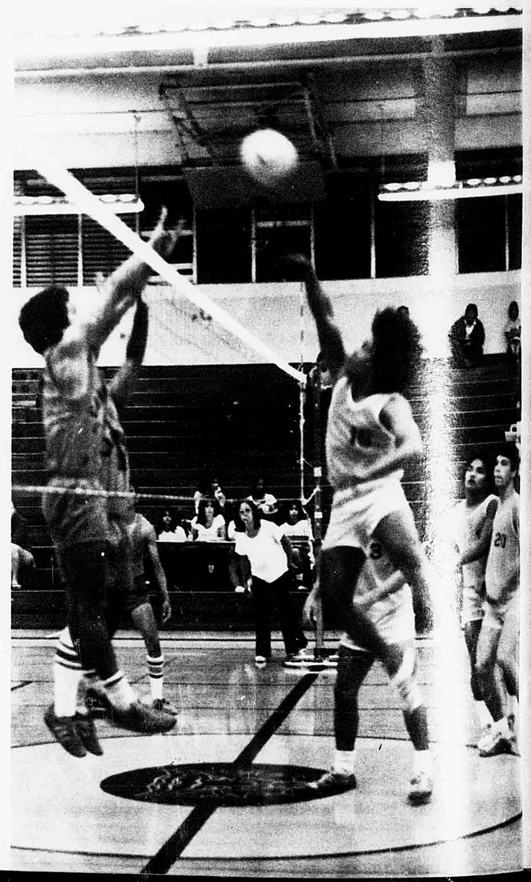

With only three returnees, the boys volleyball team had a long season ahead of them. But this did not seem to stand in their way. With team captain Jeff Bardon leading the way, the boys practiced vigorously for three hours each day. Practicing their volleys, bumps and spikes were a basic part of the boys' training. The long hours of practice and hard work seemed to pay off, the team rose to a third place standing in the OIA East Division. Guiding the team through this season was new Head Coach Anthony Paiva.

Bowlers Regain Fourth Place Standing In OIA

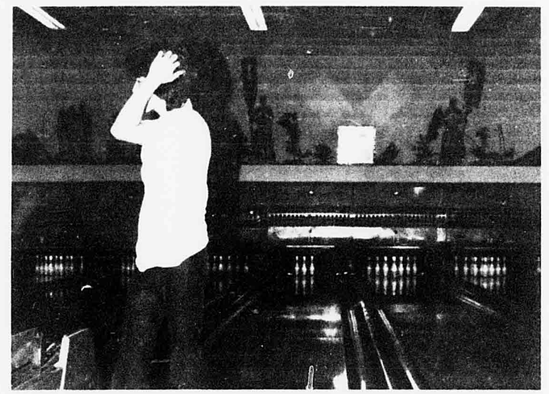

Bowling

Having its daily practices and meets at Stadium Bowl-A-Drome, teams captains Varren Murakami and Gregory Fong led the bowling team, with four returnees and one newcomer, to maintain its previous years fourth place rating in the OIA under the supervision and coaching of Guy Masagatani.

Sharpshooters Aim Their Way to Fine Finish;

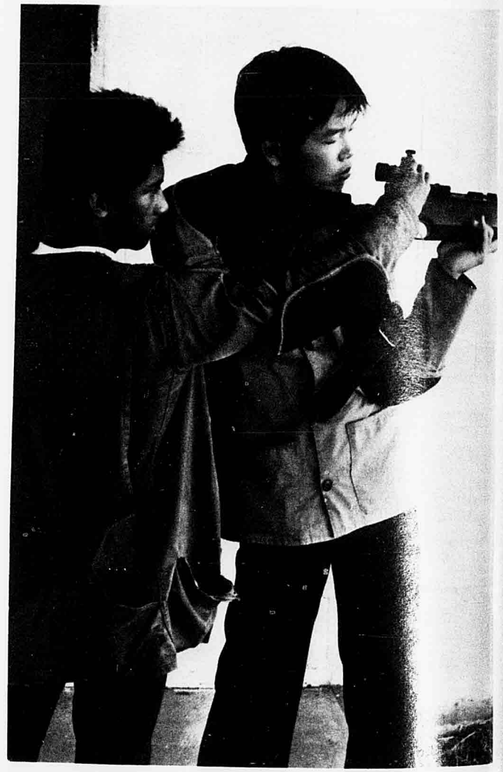

With team captain Edward Kamaka and top shooters Rey Cabradilla representing the boys and Yeoug Jeoung for the girls, it placed second in the Honolulu District and and OIA Championships.

The squad consisted of five returning members with the addition of four girls and six boys that was coached by Alan Tokumura and Sergeant Kenji Ito.

Sluggers Share Best Season Record In State

Not many times will a team continue its winning streak for several weeks and end up in the playoffs. Because during the process, due to unforseen occurrences, a loss eventually pops up that can heartbreak a team from continuing its former course.

On the other hand, the girls on the McKinley Tiger's softball team forgot about that formality and went undefeated for ten games of their 14 game regular season. And after that "meaningless" loss they continued their winning streak once more to end up in the OIA playoffs. However, along the way, their almost perfect 13-1 regular season record was at times in jeopardy. But the hard working effort of Head Coach Anita Malama developed and rejuvenated the team to have a positive attitude in every game it played. This was evident in such matches against former state champion Castle (1-15) and former Honolulu District Champs Kaiser (0-1), (0-2).

The 1980-81 softball team will be remembered as a group of girls that never gave up even though the circumstances and odds were not always in its favor. It was good and everyone knew it, with statistical proof for its quality and dedication to the sport.

SOFTBALL TEAM--FRONT ROW: Lorna Ancheta, Audra Halmos, Valerie Ogawa, Karen Fujimoto, Mary Halmos, Jocelyn Perry. SECOND ROW: Leilani Okuda, JoAnn Yatogo, Gina Tamura, Rona Halmos, Lynne Motoyama, Karen Masuda. Varsity Cagers Rejuvenate Spirits Through Inspiring Performances

Playing an excellent brand of team basketball, the Tigers finished with a 10-4 record taking second place in the Honolulu District and a berth in the OIA playoffs. The team was coached by Ernie Nihi with assistant coach Lui Faleafine.

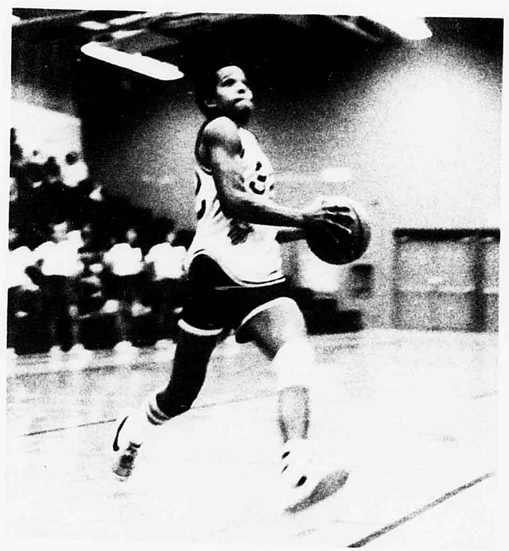

Although the team fell short in the playoffs, it was an exciting season for McKinley as the cagers surprised many teams with their hustle and determination. It was the highest finish for any McKinley basketball team in many seasons, ending years of frustations and anxieties.

This year's team brought excitement back to the basketball and sports program at McKinley. Fans came in by the hundreds to support the team effort as it pushed to the top.

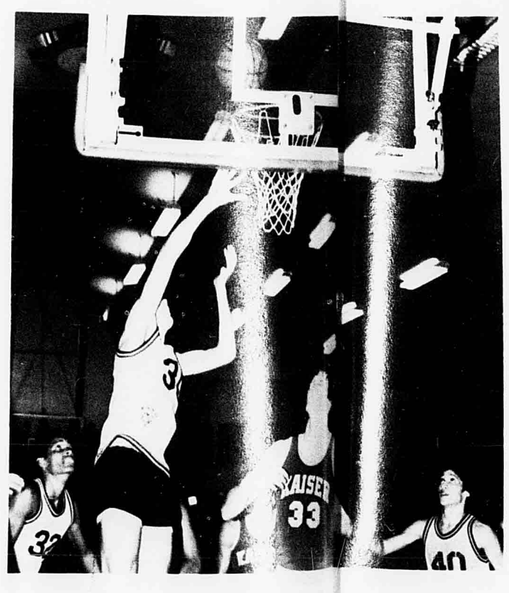

It will be a year to remember for the school as this year's 10-4 finish, coupled with last year's 8-6 record, could be the start of a winning tradition here at McKinley.

JV Cagers' 10-4 Record Ranks High; in District, Placing Second in OIA East

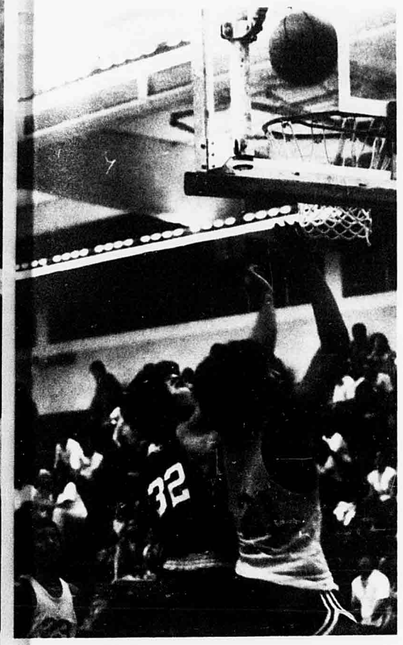

The JV Basketball team finished with an impressive 10-4 record. It started off losing to Kaiser, but got on track by winning several games in a row, until facing district rivals later in the season. Still they took second in the OIA East with many of its players moving onto the varsity level during the play-offs.

Playing much the same style as the varsity, the jayvee pressured the opposition with a full-court press, causing turnovers which they converted into easy baskets. This should help as McKinley will probably use the same hustling and pressuring brand of basketball next year.

As varsity assistant coach Lui Faleafine said at a pep assembly, "McKinley's basketball future is in good hands with the fine season enjoyed by the JV squad."

McKinley Fields First Girls Soccer Team; Boys Rate Credible Defense, High Scorer

Girls' Soccer

Fresh and optimistic, the first female soccer team in McKinley High School history got off to a good start.

With the majority of members never having played the game before, the soccer team's main objective was to learn techniques and gain experience.

Coach Lois Tiedman and Assistant Coach Ramona Uehara had the team practice on weekdays as well as a few weekends and holidays to improve their offensive and defensive plays.

The Tiger kickers exuded much effort and determination during games. The team soon evolved into a unit, winning and losing as one.

With mostly juniors, the team did quite well for its first season and expect to climb even higher in the years to come.

Boys' Soccer

With sufficient returnees, the 1980-81 soccer team had potential for an outstanding season but they had a season more difficult than they expected.

Coach Thanh Huynh experiencing his first year as head coach found consistency in his players a problem.

Defensively, the Tigers were credible. However, their offensive drive needed more teamwork. One standout member of the soccer team was Tang Van who scored 12 goals to rank third in the Eastern Division.

The team captains Ki Nam Kim and Myong Yol Kim led the team to a season record of 4-5-3.

Consisting mainly of juniors, the team has a good outlook for next year.

Varsity Wrestling

Though an inexperienced team, the wrestlers managed to finish the season with a 4-3 record. They were led by Head Coach Leigh Tonai, Assistant Coaches Keith Matsumoto and Gary Higashi and tri-captains Brian Yoshii, Nelson Oyadomari and Keith Shiroma. Finishing the regular season, the Grapplers went on to tournament competition.

In the Eastern Division Championships, McKinley finished third overall. Frank Isara, Henry Wong and David Saito finished first in their respective weight divisions. Also placing were Dickson Falafia, second; Scott Ando, Greg Maeda, Jon Morikawa and Keith Shiroma, third; Sam Lam, William Lee and Ralph Nishimura, sixth.

The OIA Championships brought all the public schools together for competition. Several Tigers placed: Frank Isara, second; Henry Wong and Keith Shiroma, third; Dickson Falefia, fourth; and David Saito, fifth.

JV Wrestling

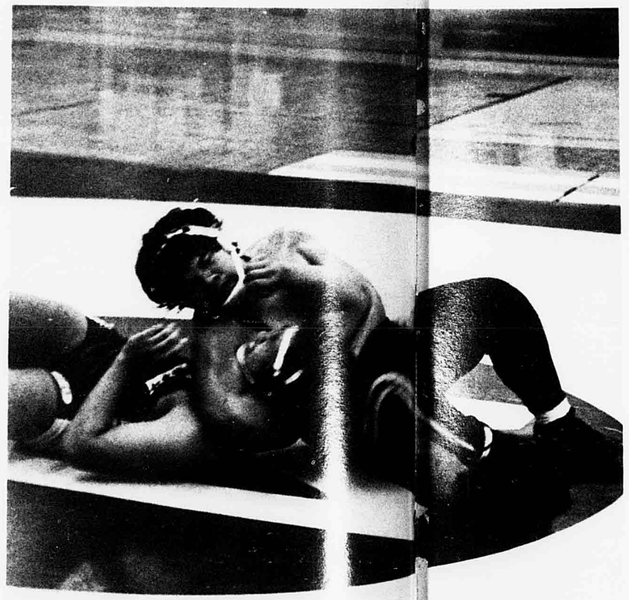

The junior varsity wrestlers had only eight out of thirteen weights. But this did not seem to be a disadvantage to them. They ended the season with a 4-2 record. The Tigers finished third in the East Division and OIA Championships behind Kahuku and Kaiser. In the Eastern Division Championships, Clayton Kaneshiro placed first in his weight division. Also, bringing home the OIA crown in the 114 weight division, was Timmy Teruya.

JV Baseball

The McKinley jayvee baseball team suffered a hard 1-9 season, with many of their infirmities due to inexperience. The team consisted of three freshmen and nine sophomores. Coached by Patrick Ganeku, the JV sluggers advanced four of their players -- Kevin Ebisuya, George Ishikawa, Michael Simao and Brian Yoshikawa -- to the Varsity level.

Varsity Sluggers Win Season O eners

Consisting of nine seniors, three juniors, four sophomores and one freshman, the varsity sluggers diligently trained to undo the poor publicity that was given to them by the local newspapers before their season started.

With a confident attitude going into their first game against Kahuku, the Tigers put them away in the seventh inning with a 13-2 stomp over the Red Raiders. Then they beat the Kailua Surfriders 6-2, making their starting season a winning one.

Head Coach Paul Valentine felt optimistic about the team's outcome that was led by team captains Hugh Fuchigami and Herman Ishibashi.

Integrated Track Team Results in Strongly Competitive Season

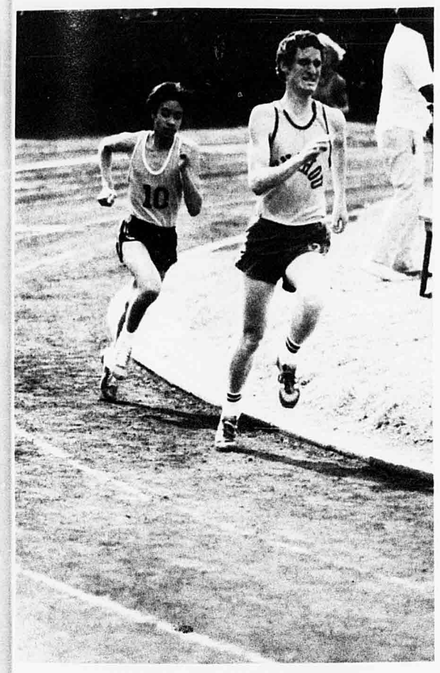

Track

"This is the first year the boys and girls have been integrated in one program and the effect has been nothing short of stupendous," said Coach Tom Marks.

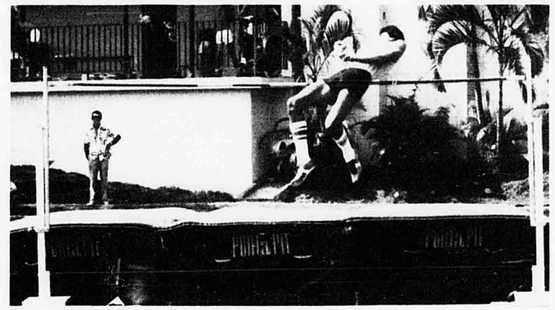

After just two meets, three new school records have been set, one by Debbie Onaga in the 3200, and two by Maria Apo in the high jump and long jump. Qualifying for the state meet were Debbie Onaga, Maria Apo, Shanti Mizuno and Sylvia Shim. Qualifying for the girls JV Championships were Sandra Shim, Sylvia Valentin and Maureen Lee. Qualifying for state in the boys division were Jonathan Lyau, Eduardo Apo, Manny Guerrero, and Chester Oshima. Qualifying for the JV Championships were Farrell Kanoho and Lance Kaneshiro.

Netters Place Third, Fifth in OIA East;

Tennis

Consistence and placements were the key words to the McKinley tennis team. Daily practices were run by coach Richard Yaginuma and assistant coach Leonard Loventhal. Members of the team were mostly seniors, with several underclassmen.

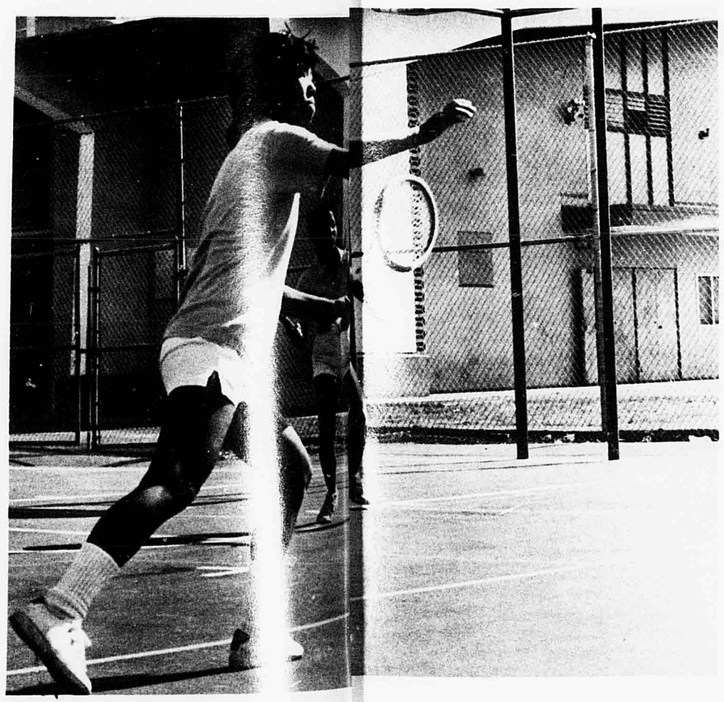

The boys team, which had a long hard season with many new members, placed fifth in the OIA East Division. It was a year to gain tournament experience for most of them. The girls team, made up of mainly returnees, placed third after Kailua, Kalani, who were the state champs. It was a very good year for the girls. Their only lost came against Kalani in which they took one game.

The post season tournament which took place at Kaiser brought together netters from all ten schools. State championships later took place on the Big Island during the Spring Recess.

Swimming

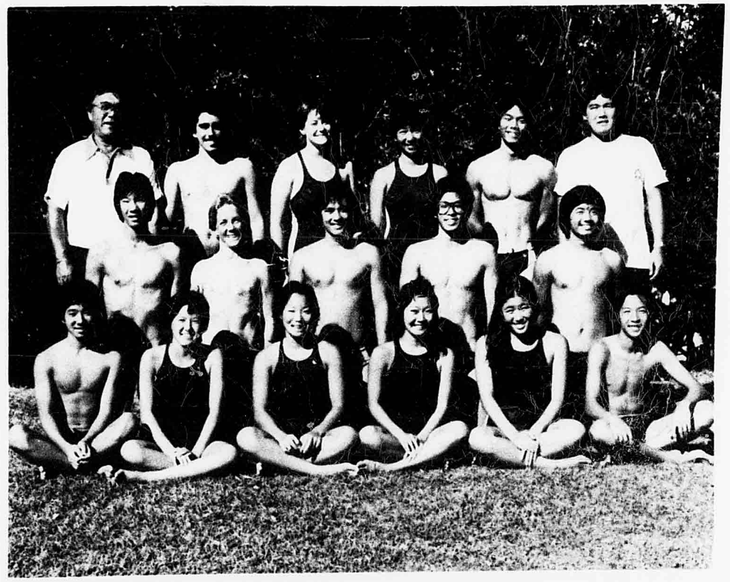

In OIA Championships, McKinley won ten medals; eight from relays and one from each the 100 Butterfly and 500 freestyle.

The three-month swimming season was better than expected as the girls placed fourth and boys, fifth in the Eastern Division Championships.

Ending the season was the State Championships where eight tiger swimmers qualified for relay events, with four of them also participating in individual events.

Under the coaching of Harry Mamizuka and Larry Oshiro with Assistant Coach Alan Yoshikawa, the team had a good, competitive season.

Varsity, JV Teams Pursue Good Season

Eight returning lettermen formed the nucleus of the 1980-81 girls varsity basketball team. Led by Kahala Richardson, Nancy Tapia, Mary Halmos, Melissa Guerreiro and transfer Rhona Halmos, the Tigers played good defensive basketball and always made the most of opportunities in the offensive game. Although the Tigers lacked height on the court, they made up for it with their speed and versatility. Several players were used both at the guard and forward positions.

Head Coach Lui Faleafine and Assistant Coach Ernest Nii stressed fundamentals and speed as well as teamwork. Long hours of practice were devoted to developing the potential of the team now in its third year here at McKinley as a varsity sport.

The girls' junior varsity basketball team was in its initial year and had an excellent turnout that worked at learning the fundamentals of the game. Led by Mia Okinaga, Valerie Tanele, Karen Masuda, Sandy Borges and Audra Halmos, the junior varsity played exciting basketball and had a loyal group of McKinleyites who followed their game. They will form a good basis for the 1981-82 team when they team with the returning varsity players for next year.

Girls jayvee head coach was Warren Kawakami who was assisted by Ivan Celebrado and Mike Echiberri.

Although there is so much more to McKinley than just books and homework, perhaps the most important of McKinley's multi-facets was the area of academics. With the number of credits needed for graduation increasing in the coming year, students had to choose their courses carefully to meet the new requirements.

Offering a diverse curriculum which included courses such as Polynesian music, horticulture and computer math, as well as "old favorites" such as Calculus, expository writing and band, McKinley strove to meet the different educational needs of each individual student.

Educating over 2000 high school schoolers is no easy task, however, the faculty, administration and staff pulled together once again to provide the students with an ideal learning environment. A faculty just as interesting and diverse as the student body added unique dimensions to the classroom with their different personalities and teaching methods. The custodians and campus security kept the campus safe and clean for the students to enjoy, while the cafeteria staff worked hard to keep everyone well nourished. Everyone worked together as a team to make principal Richard Sakamoto's goal of making McKinley "the number one school" a reality.

LAD Concentrates on Communication, Composition

Registration day brought many students to realize the wide variety of English courses offered at McKinley. The Language Arts Department offered courses in communication, which enabled students to understand causes and solutions of problems which may arise while communicating. Also offered were courses that dealt with the world, such as World Literature, Polynesian Literature, and American Literature. These studied the different lands, cultures, and people of other countries. Writing courses attracted many to improve composition habits, while many took on the challenge of Honors IV and V.

For the first time, the Language Arts participated in an unique program designed to help our immigrant students with their language production skills. The three courses especially designed to meet these needs were Oral Communication, Writing Lab, and American Literature.

Ten lingual part-time teachers were deployed into classrooms with a concentration of immigrant students to provide bi-lingual assistance.

Building of the new library brought changes and adjustments for the Title I Program. This language improvement class not only only moved to a larger location in the old library, but the program itself was enlargened. Designed for those who needed extra help in reading, this program was federally funded, which allowed an increased amount of help for the students. The staff of the Title I program is a unique program in which students work in smaller groups for more progress per pupil.

U.S., Modern History of Hawaii Required for Graduation

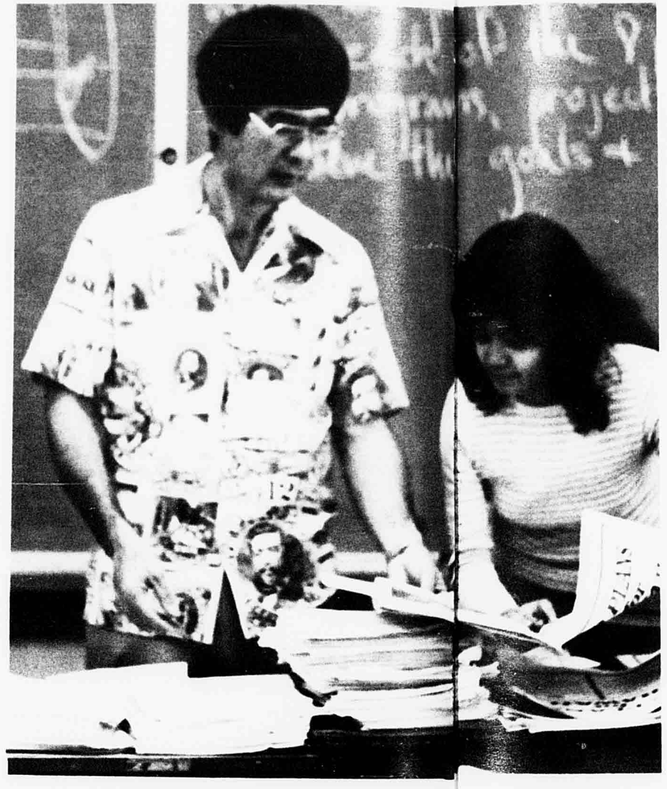

The Social Studies Department has made several changes the past three years. Now required beginning with the Class of 82, are U.S. History and Government (one year, two semesters) and Modern History of Hawaii (one semester).

U.S. History and Government focused on the history of the past. It helped students to understand and learn the American heritage as well as historical events leading up to Modern times.

In the Modern History of Hawaii, lifestyles were studied as having gone through gradual change, with a strong influence by the new generation today.

Popular courses, besides the two required courses, were Sociology, and Psychology. Sociology delved into human relations, particularly the different cultures all over the world, while Psychology explored the human mind and behavior.

Unique Program Assists Student Advancement In Mathematics Essential for Future World of Work

The McKinley High School Math Department had a unique program which enabled students to take more than one math course per semester. Many students were found "doubling up" on courses such as Geometry A, Geometry B, Algebra IIA, Algebra IIB, Trigonometry, Algebra III, and Analytic Geometry. This allowed students to reach Advanced Placement Calculus without having to attend summer school. For the past five years, McKinley students who took the Advanced Placement Examination in Calculus were consistent in achieving high marks.

Another unique feature of the McKinley Math Department was the division of each course into semesters, with Advanced Placement Calculus as an exception. If a student failed to pass a course in the first semester, he could repeat it in the second and advance to a higher level the following year.

Emphasis on the importance of math was stressed by Department Chairman Lester Chuck..."Whether one takes math just to meet the credit requirements, the importance of the subject in preparation for the future cannot be overlooked. When entering the world of work, preparing for vocational or technical careers and college, every student needs math. Nearly half of the questions in civil service, military, apprenticeship, and employment placement tests demand a knowledge of math. Two out of five questions in the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT), the college entrance exam are math related. Out of sixty questions, thirty percent are in Geometry, forty percent in Algebra, and thirty percent in basic math."

The way in which the math program was designed proved to be a significant aid in the students' advancement.

Throughout the school year the Industrial Arts Department offered knowledge of pre-vocational work as well as practical training. Courses such as automotive, woods, metals, and drafting prepared students who will enter industrial fields. EGO (Equal Goals in Occupation) was really in opperation in the IA classes. Girls worked beside the boys in the printshop as well as in the metal and electronic shops.

Objectives for the program were to develop an understanding of the principles and problems of industrial technology.

The Junior Reserve Officers Training Corps was a program with the cooperative effort on the part of the army. This program included four years of leadership development. The first year course restricted many to first aid, field sanitation, and weapons, while the program's fourth year course included exercises in command and leadership. In an advanced course, the cadets were able to instruct lower JROTC classes.

Similar to other male dominated courses, JROTC enrolled 46 girls. Several joined the drill team, which permitted girls for the first time. One of the program's goal was to give insight into ethical values and principles that underlie good citizenship.

ADA- omm.

Considered one of the best high school science departments in the state, McKinley offered students a variety of courses. A new addition to the science curriculum was the Skills In Science course. Students with little or no background were encouraged to take this laboratory course to develop scientific skills. Emphasis was placed on development of the student's self-concept while combining as many of the process skills as possible.

For students with more experience in science, the Advanced Placement Chemistry course was another alternative. Prerequisites for the class were Physics, Chemistry, and high mathematical ability. The course was designed to assist the students in preparing for the AP exam in May. Students planning to go into the field of science were encouraged to take AP Chemistry, which would help them get college credit.

The Zoo Instructor Program provided a change of pace from the regular classroom routine. Students reported to the Honolulu Zoo instead of class during periods two and four, and worked with the zoo staff. They were also utilized as instructors for the zoo's school and general public tours. Class excursions included visits to the Humane Society and Aquarium. Students who enrolled in the Zoo Instructor Program must have taken a biology course.

To fill the one science credit required for graduation, courses such as biology, chemistry, physics, Marine Science, Directed Science, and Physical Science were offered. Each course was geared to different student abilities and tastes.

Art Adds on Crafts and Appreciation Courses; Home Ec. Extends Child Care to Two Periods

The Art Department offered two new courses this year. They were Crafts and Art Appreciation under the SLEP program to help foreign students to communicate in different ways, using art and its many activities to learn about society.

McKinley has been blessed with many talented teachers. Mr. Charles Higa, department chairman, Mrs. Margaret Leong, and Ms. Carolyn Chang have all exhibited their works over the past ten years in the community. In the fall, Mr. Higa and Mrs. Leong exhibited their work with the Art Teachers Exhibition at the Prince Kuhio Building, which featured ceramics and paintings of all kinds. Mr. Higa was one of the artists honored by the Academy of Arts in the Annual Artists of Hawaii Exhibition from December 5 through January 4. Mrs. Chang is presently working on her Hawaii inspired paintings, featuring local scenes.

With increased enrollment, the Home Economics Department increased its number of courses. Child Care Service was extended to two periods. It is a two-semester preparation vocational course. Students who took class gained experiences needed for career in teaching in preschool, elementary school or day care centers.

Students in Family Foods placed special emphasis on the study of nutrition, diets, chemical and physical properties of foods, sanitation and safety. This course was home oriented compared to Food Service which was vocational oriented.

Personality Development was open to boys and girls to help them understand themselves and to develop their inner qualities and strengths enabling them to adjust to various life situations.

Language Teachers Make Learning Fun, Effective

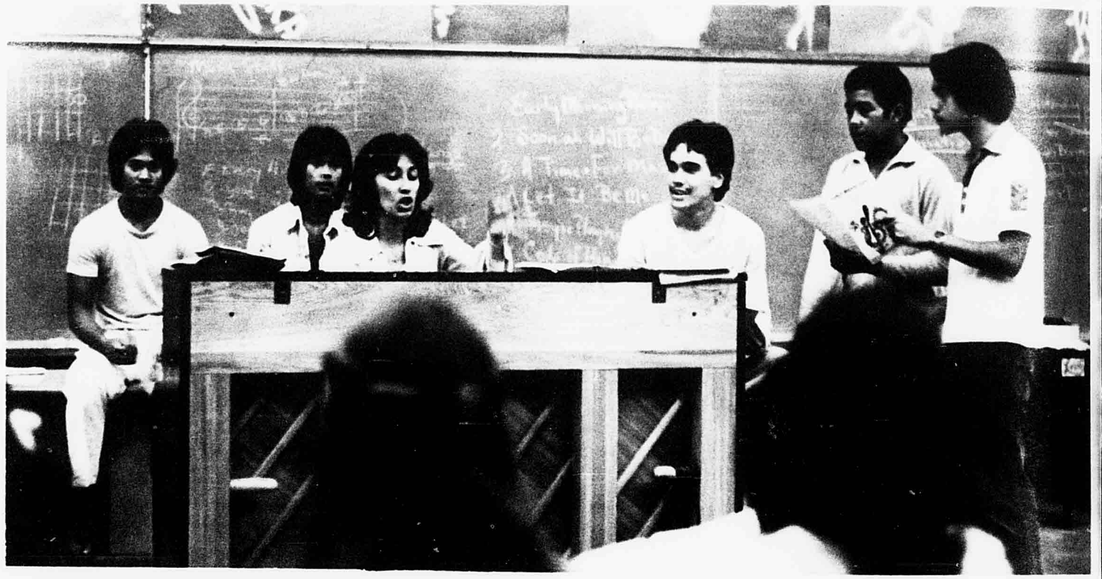

The Foreign Language Department has provided enlightening programs and activities for all students determined to master the Chinese, French, Japanese or Spanish language. The various courses offered had four levels to accommodate students from those with no background to those with more experience, also providing insight into the cultural aspects of each country.

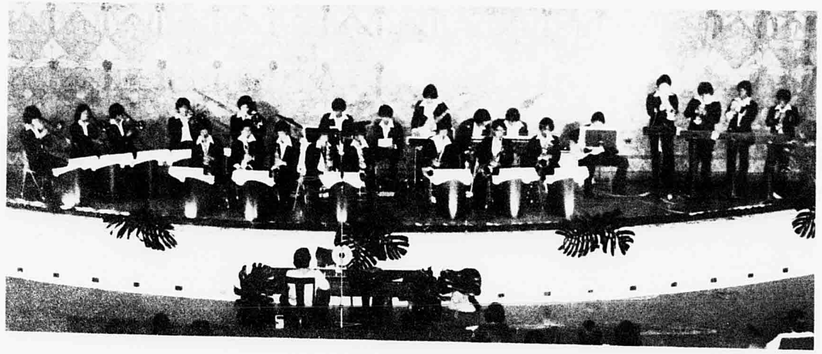

The different classes utilized pictures, special activities and educational excursions to arouse students' interests and involvement. For example, French classes visited Liberty House's display, "Images de France", and accumulated a wealth of information through exhibits of French lithographs, Aubusson tapestry and demonstrations on the hand-painting of exquisite Limoges porcelain. Students sailed French racing boats in Tuileries Pond, strolled down a Paris street and sampled French delicacies. They also experienced French culture through a film shown at the Academy of Arts and appetites were whet over French cuisine by another film shown at school.

Japanese classes savored an "oishii" luncheon at Benihana's and acquired greater knowledge about Japan through films and games such as Go, the Japanese type of checkers.

Spanish students had a real fiesta when they made their own piñatas in every shape and color. Winners were chosen, and to conclude this special event the piñatas were broken open and the candies were eaten.

All in all, foreign language teachers made their courses both fun and effective, with each student having a better understanding and fluency in each language.

Music Involves Studies in Theory, History, Literature As Well As Performance

Frequency of musical concerts on campus as well as public performances was only a small indication of the number of students involved in musical activities.

The Music Department's aims were to promote understanding and enjoyment of music at large and to provide specialized training for those who plan careers in music as composers, performers, or research scholars.

Though the department concerned itself both with studies in performance and studies in academic music (theory, history, and literature), it placed no distinct emphasis on one over the other. Instead, academic study and performance of music were seen as closely inter-related.

The many interesting courses included orchestra where students were introduced to a variety of orchestral composition!; class piano for students who intend to go into elementary education as a career; Polynesian Music is basically geared to students who wish to learn to play guitar. Stage Band was newly formed this past year. It began at 7:15 in the morning and was composed of mainly brass instruments with a couple of saxes, percussions, pianists and guitarists. This band held performances at places such as our own Alumni Luau, McDonald's of Makiki, and at K.C. Drive In of Manoa.

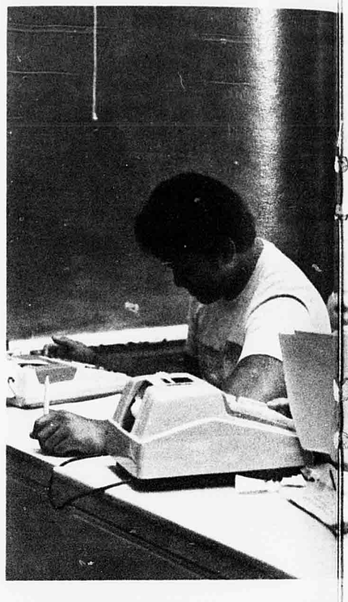

These organizations were open to all qualified individuals, whether general students or intending music majors. All the opportunities were balanced out by ample exposure to the academic aspects of the music curriculum.

Business Council Advises On Current Job Trends

Federal law mandated that business advisory councils be formed "to work together to serve our students, so they may have a smoother transition into the world of work." Business department faculty members met with the advisory council, which included prominent members of the community. Among them were Wally Amos, president of Famous Amos Chocolate Chip Cookies; Lex Brodie, president of Lex Brodie's Tire Company; Vance Cannon, president of Office Thing, Inc.; Wayne Jack, president of First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Hawaii; Jennifer Lim of J.C. Penney; Sharon Wago, personnel director at the Hyatt Regency Waikiki; and Charles McGee of First Insurance Company.

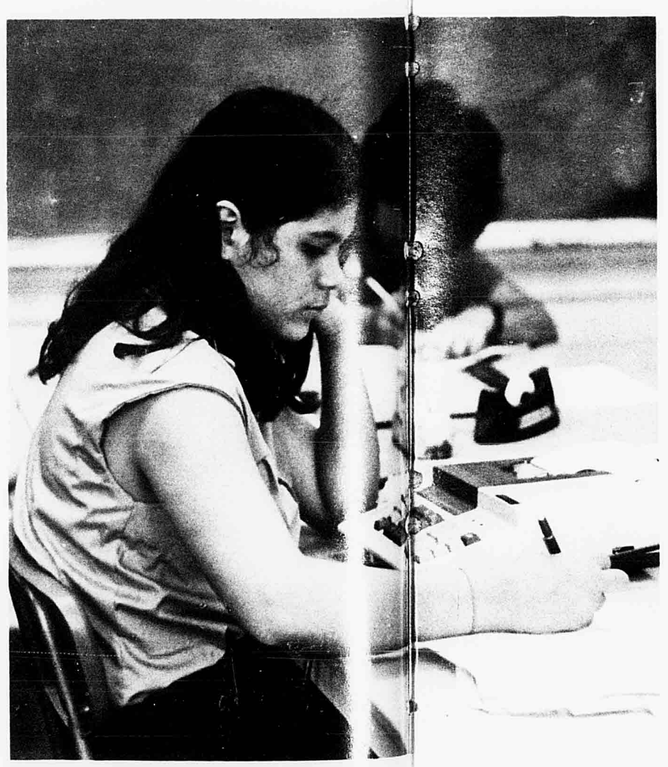

The council evaluated the effectiveness of the school program, and advised the teachers of employer expectations, as well as current job trends. The council placed major emphasis on positive attitudes and proper work habits. Said Mr. Wally Amos, "We must try to build better characters. Everyone should project enthusiasm—it's everyone's responsibility to teach these kids, not only teachers'."

New Teachers, Courses, Ideas Enrich Physical Education

Experiencing a slight change in the staff, the P.E. department offered students a little more than twenty different sports to choose from.

Throughout the school year, students participated in the various sports and activities they chose at the beginning of each semester when a mini-scramble was held.

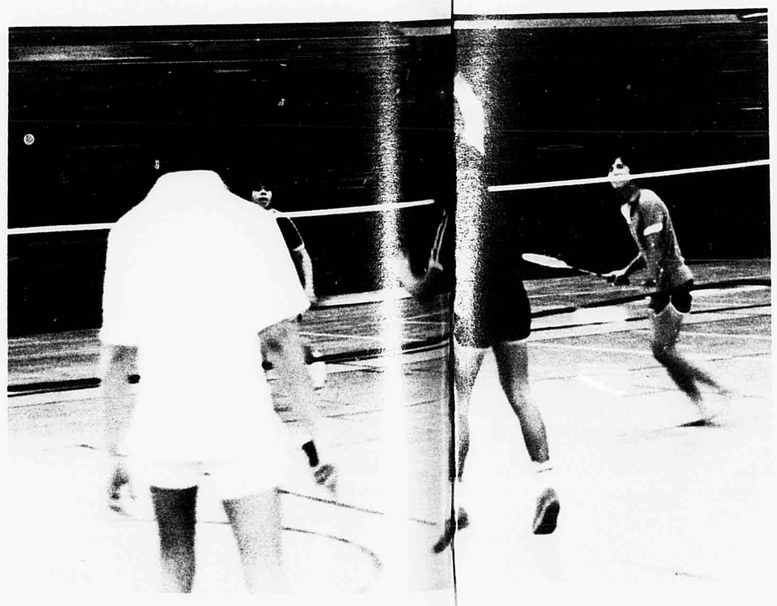

There were nine units in all, four in the first semester and five in the second. Each unit consisted of four activities, of which the popular ones were volleyball, weight-training, archery, bowling, basketball, golf, and badminton.

With two of last year's teachers on leaves of absence, there were two new faces in the department, Mr. Milton Hirohata, who last taught at Central Intermediate, and Mr. Allan Yap, who taught at Ilima Intermediate.

Also, with a new idea of letting students evaluate their P.E. class and letting them pick out which courses they wished they had, the P.E. department evaluated the 1979-80 class. As a result, two new courses were offered this year: Run for Fun and Cardial Pulmonary Resuscitation (CPR).

All the sports and activities that were offered were co-ed, except for boy's intramurals which was offered for the first time.

On Fridays, health classes took place in the Multi-Purpose Auditorium for lectures on such subjects as sex education, first aid, cancer and the various diseases, and the different parts of the body.

Special Programs Geared To Individual Differences

Special programs offered various courses to help the visually handicapped, the auditory handicapped and students with learning difficulties and other problems. Goals included the teaching of vocational skills to enable them to get along with and function with others. There were resource teachers with resource rooms equipped with special machines to help these students with their studies. Many of these students were mainstreamed into the regular classes at McKinley and took part in general school activities.

SLEP Program Pilots Learning Center, EA's, PTT's Give Classroom Assistance

Students with Limited English Proficiency, in short, the SLEP Program, was a new bi-lingual component to complement TESOL (Teaching English to Speakers of Other Languages). Ten part time teachers who spoke most of the native languages of the SLEP Program assisted teachers in the basic skills (language arts, social studies, etc.,). McKinley's program was selected as one of two high schools that had a pilot SLEP Learning Center.

The most outstanding feature of this program was the tremendous leap in enrollment. There were over 500 "potential" SLEP at McKinley, and well over 200 were still "active" in the program. Since school opened in September, about 90 "potential" students had been screened. Nearly all of these were refugees from Vietnam.

PTT's or part time teachers played an important part in assisting the Reading Lab staff. With the help of eleven part timers, the staff succeeded in giving students a well-rounded program.

Support Personnel, PTSA, Vital Facets of School System

Administrative services personnel and cafeterial and custodial staff members were vital facets of the school system. Difficult tasks of maintaining the school, keeping student records, and handling financial affairs were part of their daily routines.

The McKinley High School PTSA promoted interaction between parents, teachers, and students. It provided funding for special projects, helped with the carnival, and awarded scholarships to deserving students. President Allen Kajioka pledged to promote students welfare, "not only at school, but at home and in the community."

A bright new facet that is added to McKinley every year is the incoming Sophomore Class. Fresh out of feeder intermediate schools such as Washington, Kawananakoa, and Central, the Class of '83 arrived at McKinley wide-eyed with apprehension. The new campus and the large student body took some time to get used to as the sophs struggled to "get on their feet," under the guidance of Advisor Ms. Marlene Peterson.

Newly elected class President Randall Platt, along with execs Leilani Okuda, George Chan, and Queenie Tan worked to unite the class and instill spirit in each individual.

The year got underway with a thrilling 30-16 triumph over the Roosevelt Rough Riders. This was followed by the 1981 Tiger Carnival, where the sophs got their first taste of manning a game booth.

Events from March 2nd through 6th marked Sophomore Class Week, which climaxed with the traditional class play, that gave the upperclassmen a look at all the talented sophomores as well as a few good laughs.

The Sophomore Banquet, held on March 20 at the Princess Kaiulani Hotel, gave the Class of '83 a chance to relax after a hectic and often confusing first year at McKinley.

Cleaning up the campus after the Commencement ceremonies concluded the year for the sophomores as they envisioned themselves graduating in only two more short years.

Sophomore Year --

Transition from Intermediate to High School

Neophytes to high school life and its' added responsibilities, the Class of '83 discovered the beginning of new lives as McKinleyites. Sophomores were quick to discover that McKinley was rich in traditions. "Keep off the Oval," was often heard by the underclassmen who dared to venture onto the patch of grass surrounding President McKinley's statue. At their first pep rally of the school year, the newcomers learned the words of "Black and Gold" and Alma Mater, afraid at first to sing aloud, but later, joined in as part of the "ohana" of McKinley.

The transition from intermediate school to high school hindered the start of the Class of 1983. But the strong spirit of friendliness and the need to unite brought forward the election of class execs, the formation of the council, and the organization of activities.

The sophomores elected Shmoo as their class mascot, brown and beige as their class colors, and the carnation as their representing flower. Their motto was "We were friends in younger days."

Events that unified the class were the class game, chaired by Genette Yogi; carnival booth, Sandra Among; class week, Michael Shikuma, publicity, Valerie Villeso; class rings, Julie Takara; class Pinion, Robin Nakamura; class play, Martha Walters; and climaxed by the banquet chaired by Norine Makizuru.

Throughout the year, the Class of 1983 began to generate spirit and bloom as a strong and unified class. Learning the different "ropes" of McKinley, they soon were ready to take on more meaningful roles as juniors.

Class of '83 Must Meet New Requirements of 20 credits for Graduation

Unlike the preceding grade levels the Class of '83 sophomores now had to complete twenty credits had to complete twenty credits instead of eighteen for graduation from high school. These included 4 credits for English or Language Arts, 4 in social studies, 2 in science, 2 in mathematics, and 1 each in physical education and health and guidance.

Also, beginning with this class, all students must have passed the Hawaii State Test of Essential Competencies (HSTEC) in order to receive a diploma.

Other academic concerns for those new to McKinley (besides passing grades) were decisions on requirements for colleges or choices of subjects that prepare for vocations or careers after high school.

Back for the second year of high school, the Junior Class of '82 returned to McKinley anxious to get the year started off on the right foot.

Leading the class through the year were President Kashimira Pestonjee and the execs Doreen Iwamasa, Kawai Chan, and Bonnie Sin with the advisorship of Ms. Carolyn Chang.

Kicking off the year was the class game against the Falcons of Kalani. An exuberant Junior cheering section rooted the Tigers on to an overwhelming 30-14 victory.

The Napualani Hotel was the setting for the Junior Dinner, themed "Fame." The January 10th outing gave the juniors a chance to sample the homegrown talent within their class.

As the first semester came to a close on January 23, the juniors got together for a weekend of camping at Camp Erdman. It provided an opportunity to get away from the hectic school routine and "just coast" for a few days.

March 13 brought Junior Class Day and the annual play, which again displayed the talents and enthusiasm of the Class of '82.

The highest point of the year was the Junior Promenade held on April 11. The Honolulu International Country Club provided a romantic setting for an evening of dancing and reminiscing about the first two years at McKinley.

Junior Cheering Leads Tiger Victory Over Kalani, 30-14 at Stadium

The Class of 1982's first activity of the year was the Junior Class Game against the Kalani Falcons at the Aloha Stadium. Over 250 blue and white balloons were released as the scoreboard flashed, "McKinley High School, the Junior Class of 1982." Although the juniors did not have a pep rally for two years in a row, it did not stop the energy and enthusiasm that saw them through their class game victory over Kalani. Enthused juniors, proudly sporting baby blue class T-shirts bearing the Pink Panther, waved flashcards as they cheered the football team on to a 30-14 victory.

The designer of the T-shirt was Aldin Baroza, who was also the chairperson of the Publicity committee. The class buttons were designed by Sue-Lynn Yim and the ribbons by Paul Fao. The overall chairperson was Lori Katahira, advised by Mrs. Margaret Leong; chairing the flashcards were Randal Nakamura and Deborah Nishimura.

Prom Culminates Second Year for Class of 1982

During the previous summer, the Junior Council met twice a month to prepare for the 1980-1981 school year, studying parliamentary procedures and leadership skills. In August, vandals poured paint on the McKinley statue. The council decided to take initiative, and thus proceeded to form a clean-up committee.

At the beginning of the year, the class council took a survey so the council acted accordingly, molding the activities to suit the responses of the majority of the class.

In November, three ring assemblies were held, with representatives from Balfour, Josten's and Herff Jones. Herff Jones was selected among the three companies. Rings ordered in late December arrived in April. The rings committee was chaired by Hope Matsumoto, advised by Ms. Jean Matsuo.

Prom highlighted the string of Junior Class activities including participation in the Homecoming festivities, the class game, the Advisors' Appreciation Luncheon, class camp, and the class dinner, to name a few.

At the close of its junior year, the Class of 1982 had many beautiful memories to look back upon---one of them was the Junior Prom, "I Will Always Think About You", on the evening of Saturday, April 11.

With a color scheme of lavender and white, the dinner and dance affair took place at the Honolulu International Country Club, with music provided by Moving Discos. Sheri Kanehira was the overall chairperson for this event, co-advised by Mrs. Mae K.L. Chung and Mrs. Ethyl Chow. Subcommittee chairpersons were: Nadine Pacheco and Memory Ku, favors and decorations; Karin Maeda and Lori Hatakenaka, court; Edene Nagai, entertainment; Julyn Ching and Cila Bio, bid sales; Lisa Lastimosa and Dee Anne Suzuki, bids; Cassandra Okada and Dana Oda, photography; and Kevin Wada, program.

After two years of learning and suffering as lowly "underclassmen," the Class of 1981 returned in the fall as the Mighty Seniors. Thoughts of graduation brought mixed emotions and gave each senior incentive to make his or her final year the best.

To start the year, the sensuous Seniorettes led the Class of '81 to an overwhelming victory in the spirit competition of the class pep rally. The 27 Seniorettes performed to enthusiastic crowds at both the pep rally and during the halftime of the Senior Class Game against the Kaiser Cougars.

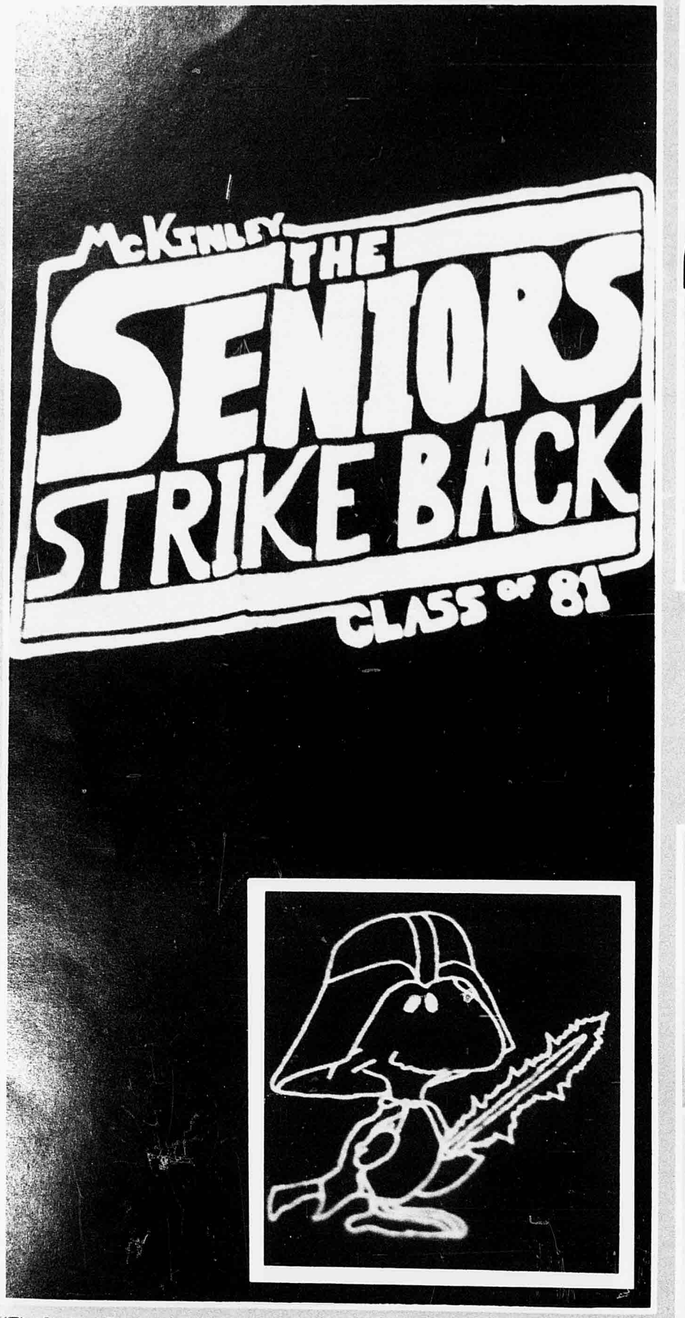

Senior spirit carried over into the following week, as the Class of '81 took first place in the Homecoming dummy-making contest.

January brought around the Tiger Carnival, which once again found the seniors sponsoring the popular "Bottle Stand" game booth.

For many of the seniors in the band program, the concert tour of Japan during Easter vacation highlighted their three years of practicing and dedication to uphold McKinley's tradition of musical excellence.

With the pressures of finals over, 250 couples enjoyed a "night on the town" at the Senior Promenade held on May 22. Themed "Suspended in Time," the music of Brentwood was featured in the romantic atmosphere of the Princess Kaiulani Ainahau Ballroom.

As sophomores the Class of 1981 cleaned the campus after the Commencement Exercises of '79. In their junior year, they set up over 3000 chairs on the oval. Now, it was finally the Class of 1981's turn as the seniors held their Commencement Ceremonies on June 7. Walking across the oval for the first time, the graduates of '81 took their first steps into the world of adulthood, carrying with them the fond memories of their three years at McKinley.

"The Seniors Strike Back," the motto of the class T-shirt, indeed says that the seniors are ready and roaring for another year. The mascot Woodstock, dressed as Darth Vader, is shown on the front of the T-shirt.

Upperclassmen Tackle Vigorous Studying With Help of Tutorial Periods and 90-Minute Classes

Hitting the books once again, the Senior Class of 1981 was ready for another year of hard studying and cramming. As the first few days passed, the seniors fell back into their "same old grind" and regained themselves into diligent work. Some were studying more than they ever did in their three years at McKinley, for they knew their grades would count in getting into a respectable college. Others were taking it easy, trying to make everyday count before entering the big world of adulthood.

Classes a senior took all depended on his interests. Whether it be Mechanical Drawing, Band, Creative Writing, or Humanities--- it was all laid on the foundation of the student's liking. Ninety-minute classes, three classes a day took the burden off of finishing homework the next day for the six-class schedule ran on alternating days. The use of tutorial periods on Mondays and Tuesdays enabled the students to go in for individual assistance and to finish up incomplete assignments.

Senior Honors English students JULIE TERUYA and KATHY HASEBE proofread each other's theme papers on Existentialistic Views on Mankind from Albert Camus' novel "The Stranger."

Council members ANNE FREDERICK and PAULINE BABA put the finishing touches to the Senior Council board.

Council Seeks a Fun-Filled Year

The Senior Council, along with the five officers, organized the diverse activities that took place over the year. Each committee chairperson, then, with the initiative to work his hardest, pulled the activity through with the help of advisors and sub-committees.

To get the council going, a luncheon for advisors and chairpersons was held at the beginning of the year to strengthen their relationships.

Selling 300 T-shirts was a goal for Valerie Chang and Joy Shimabukuro. Their hard work and dedication paid off, for by class game time, their goal was reached.

Class ribbons and buttons were in great demand by the seniors,through the efforts of Patty-Ann Tamayei.

The Special Projects Committee took care of the extra activities that emerged during the year. Christmas card delivery service and the Hoss Elections were just a few of the works done by Chairpersons Dayna Nakamura and Vicki Yokoyama.

In a position new to the council this year, Carol Matsumoto was the official "link" between the senior class and the administration.

For the past three years, Jeanne Chun has taken care of class rings, which were distributed by Josten's.

Class Day, dedicated to the Class of 1981, was organized by Anne Frederick and Pauline Baba. Also occurring on that day was the Senior Play, under the direction of Cecilia Kim. This play displayed the many talents of the class.

The Senior Class Pinion chaired by Joelle Tanaka, reminisced the past three years.

Others who made the year great included Gary Amuro, class game; Julia Nakasone and Sharon Sadoyama, Homecoming festivities; Faye Kajioka and Lynn Takata, Senior Dinner; Jo-Ann Hirata and Joan Fukumoto, Senior Prom; and Benjamin Seto, Commencement.

College Comes Even Closer for Class of '81 as Seminars, AP, SAT Take Precedent

JERRY LEE JOHNSON
TODD JONES

RAINALD JOHNSTON
YEONG JUNG

With the 1980-81 year getting off to a quick start, college bound seniors were faced with many pressures. Taking time out from their hectic schedules, many were busy attending college bound seminars or consulting Guidance Counselor Gerald Miller about scholarships, financial aid, and application deadlines. Others were busy preparing for the SAT, maintaining grade point averages, and filling out application forms with the utmost care since good scores, grades, and completed forms directed their educational future.

Getting a feeling of college life, many seniors took advantage of the Advanced Placement courses that were offered. Classes at McKinley which were considered "AP" were Chemistry, European History, Calculus, and English VI. To receive college credit, students had to pass the AP Exam which was held in May.

Still others were busy looking into vocational education or employment opportunities for immediate income right after graduation.

Yet, there were many undecided about their educational and vocational futures and those just concentrated on having a most enjoyable senior year along with acquiring their required 18 credits and looked forward to the commencement ceremonies in June.

College bound seniors listen attentively as Guidance Counselor GERALD MILLER informs them about the University of Hawaii.

Assembly, Commencement Committees Prepare for Class of 1981's Vesper Ceremonies

Graduation preparation began quite early for the Class of '81 with the Commencement Committee being organized last June headed by Benjamin Seto. The committee was like a separate council in itself formed by 13 different sub-committees.

With the Senior Assembly held on the third day of the new school year, the Commencement Committee was already busy passing out questionnaires. Seniors were asked to select a guest speaker, type of attire and song of their choice for their graduation ceremonies.

On Wednesday, December 3, a special Ordering Assembly was held for seniors only with Josten's Representative Ron McNichols helping with the ordering of graduation accessories.

Most important, in order to graduate, seniors were responsible for the clearance of delinquent accounts and were required to pass with 18 credits. With so much on their minds, graduation came all so soon without them realizing it.

Homegrown Talent Entertains Senior Dinner Goers

With the cost of living rising to unbearable heights, seniors were not having a fun-filled year as it was difficult to finance activities. However, with the generous help and ingenious ideas of Faye Kajioka, Lynn Takata and advisor Raynette Takizawa, seniors were offered a not so formal, not so expensive, wholesome evening. Seniors were entertained by talented fellow classmates with pure homegrown fun and music, and later danced the night away to the sounds of Mobile Disco. After this simple, inexpensive but fun-filled event, seniors indeed left the Ilikai's Pago Pago room with the event's theme in mind, "Memories... So Precious and Few."

Co-chairpersons LYNN TAKATA and FAYE KAJIOKA discuss future plans for the Senior Dinner with advisor Miss RAYNETTE TAKIZAWA.

'Suspended in Time' Marks End of Years at McKinley

The Senior Promenade, one of the multi-climaxes of the year, brought the Senior Class to its last social get-together. With finals just completed, many were able for the first time to let loose and enjoy themselves. Themed "Suspended in Time," this formal-floral event was held at the Princess Kaiulani Hotel's Ainahau Ballroom on the 22nd of May.

Determination was the key factor for Joan Fukumoto, Jo-Ann Hirata and committee, and advisors Mrs. Gene Ono and Mr. Neal Takamori. This determination made this activity for the seniors one that will always be remembered.

Scents of pikake leis and rose bouquets filled the air as Brentwood filled the ballroom with the sounds of the music of today and many from the past, which the seniors recollected.

Along with the dancing and pupus, the Senior Class presented its royal court: King Hiromichi Nago, Queen Wendy Okamura, four attendants, and four escorts.

Many were then off to a night full of excitement. There were night club shows to go to, boat cruises, eating, parties...or just spending a fun time with friends.

"Do you remember the time..." and "Those were the good days" were often heard throughout the night when friends got together for minutes of reminiscing.

Throughout the year, seniors were busy studying, going to sport events and participating in various activities. After the end of the first semester, upperclassmen were able to take it a bit easy, especially those who worked hard for good grades to send to colleges for admission.

Carnival came much too soon on the last weekend of January, and spirited seniors were out cooking, serving and working in food and game booths. The Senior Class booth, chaired by Mark Miyamoto, brought many anxious '81ers to help, for the popular "Bottle Stand" game was back.

The afflictions of inflation, current events and registering for the draft, made future adults worry about how their lives would be after graduation. Many were scared of the big world out there, for they did not know what to expect. But the Senior Class of 1981 was determined to make it out there and become mature young people that McKinley would be proud of.

Knowing that high school life was soon to be over, the Seniors of 1981 constantly reminded themselves of the good times and wished, for once, that the days at McKinley were "Suspended in Time."

Graduation, proms, Homecoming...

We, the Class of 1981, are now ready to start our futures, for
"We've Only Just Begun."

SENIOR ACHIEVERS...

The National Merit Finalists: JAMES LEE, SHARILYN NAKATA, ALEX ISHII and MARI TAKETA.

Perserverance, determination and spirit best describe the achievers of the Class of 1981. Whether it was excelling in studies to receive a scholarship, practicing harder to make the routine just perfect or spending extra hours to achieve that goal, the senior achievers did all that to earn the recognition that they deserved.

Eric Miyashiro, McKinley Band's first seat trumpet player, was selected for McDonald's All-American High School Band. He travelled to New York, where Eric and Layne Wada of Konawaena High joined other selected band members from the 50 states to perform in the Macy's Parade and a concert at Carnegie Hall. Eric was then selected first trumpet in the All-American Stage Band and travelled to Miami to perform in the Orange Bowl Parade.

Julie Teruya, Kern Nishioka, Dean Taba, Dayton Asato, Thomas Toth, Don Kunishima and Wynn Okuda represented McKinley in the McDonald's Hula Bowl Band. Julie, Dean and Wynn also received scholarships.

The National Merit Program, which honors less than one percent of the nation's seniors with various amounts of scholarships are determined by the PSAT scores. Alex Ishii, James Lee, Sharilyn Nakata and Mari Taketa were the four finalists from McKinley and Joyce Baker, Arthur Furukawa, Frank Godek and Joy Sato were commended.

Representing McKinley at the Junior Miss Pageant were Colleen Izumi and Yvette Peleras. Colleen advanced to first runner-up, along with winning scholarships and preliminary awards in Youth Fitness and Poise and Appearance.

Wendy Okamura, a member of the Liberty House Hi-Board, was busy promoting the latest fashions and performing in shows at high schools and shopping malls.

Lori Okami broke three world records in the bench press category and set four state records in the squat, bench press, dead lift and overall total score at the State Powerlifting Championships held on November 21, 1980. She also won the Outstanding Lifter of the Day for her terrific endurance. The next night, she was a contestant in the Miss Physique Hawaii Women's Body Building Competition, placing fifth out of 22 contestants.

Winning the Oahu Math League Championships for the past two years, the McKinley Math Team and Captain Bertha Tomiyasu have kept up with the top place. They have placed first in January's Math Meet and as of February, were tied for first with Iolani overall.

Liberty House Hi-Board member WE OY OKAMURA performs at McKinley's r- ter Prom Assembly.

Determination, Persistence, Key to Seniors' Recognition and Honors

Raenette Gee and Margaret Tan were selected first princess and third princess respectively in the Moon Festival Pageant, honoring the Chinese celebration.

Honolulu District leading rusher Dean Hayashi was named to the Honolulu Star Bulletin's Second East All-Star Team for his performance in football. Wayne Baumann, Manny Guerrero and Greg Lee were nominated for honorable mention. Also, in the Honolulu Advertiser, Mervin Gasper and Jon Morikawa joined the honorable mention category.

Blaine Kia and Dean Taba took third place in McKinley's "Brown Bags to Stardom" talent contest, behind juniors Liuaki Maka and Toni Chun.

Paul Tsuchiya was awarded the Elks Lodge Student of the Month and Student of the Year awards and received a $250 Savings Bond. Colleen Izumi also received the Student of the Month award.

Student Council Treasurer John Yuen won the Air Force ROTC scholarship, paying full tuition at any college in the United States that has a ROTC program.

Captain Debora Onaga took the girls' cross country team to a third place state finish behind Radford and Punahou. Maria Apo and Shanti Mizuno also helped the team to its victories.

Vicki Yokoyama was selected to represent McKinley in the Honolulu Advertiser's Young Achievers column.

An active member of the McKinley Theatre Group, Jennifer Leslein was elected president of the Hawaii State Thespian Society.

At the Hawaii Regional Scholastic Art Exhibit, Brenda Lee won a $25 Special Art Achievement Award for her two dimensional artwork in pencil drawing. The national finalists for the Gold Key Award for two dimentional work were Filomeno Baniaga and Joan Takamori. Their artworks were featured at the National Scholastic Art Exhibit in New York. Philip Wei was awarded a Photo Scholarship Portfolio.

Daily Pinion Tri-Editor Mari Taketa was featured in the Hawaii Herald as an outstanding American of Japanese Ancestry student.

Helen Lau, Student Council president, was elected president of the Honolulu District Student Council and also represented McKinley on the Student Advisory Council and the Updating Committee for Foundation Program for the Public Schools of Hawaii.

Diversity Within Unity Makes .

As the year drew to a close, the Multi-Facets of McKinley were characterized by diversity within unity. A sense of pride and unity was shared by students and faculty alike, as we were all part of the McKinley "ohana." Different and unique experiences, as well as happenings both in and out of school made up the multi-facets that shaped our lives.

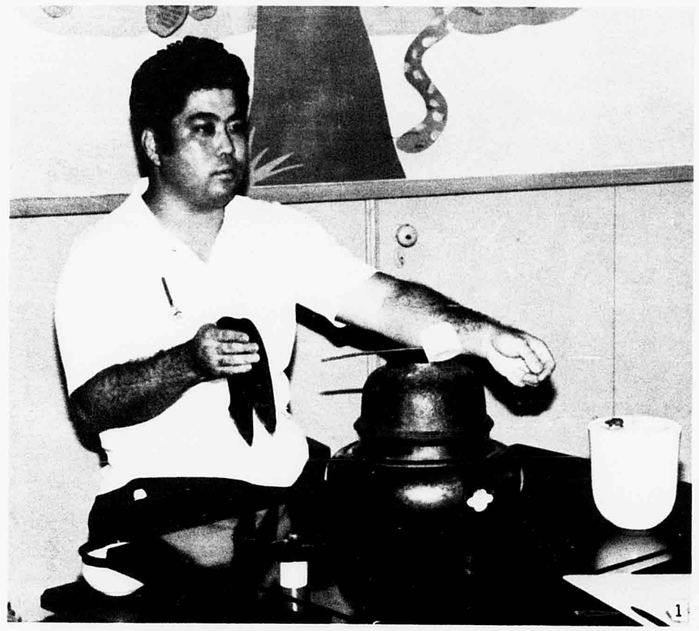

The country elected Ronald Reagan as the 40th President of the United States, and on the day of his inauguration, the 52 American hostages being held in Iran were finally freed. All across the nation, yellow ribbons and American flags were displayed proudly, as America welcomed home her heroes after 444 days in captivity.

On campus, the varsity basketball team gave a huge boost to school spirit with their inspiring play. Hundreds of supporters came out week after week to cheer their "Cinderella team" on to an OIA playoff berth. Though losing in the playoffs, the guts and determination of the Tiger team won the respect and admiration of many, and brought a tremendous sense of pride to everyone at McKinley.

The once "green" sophomores had readily adjusted to life at McKinley and quickly involved themselves in many academic as well as extracurricular activities. Already the seasoned junior class looked forward to returning in the fall as the seniors of '82. As for the senior class of 1981, commencement marked both a beginning and an end. With their high school days behind them, the men and women of the class of '81 took thier first steps into the "adult world." Many went their separate ways as some left for colleges on the mainland, some took jobs, and others simply took time off to relax, but all took with them the ideas, experiences, and memories instilled within them by the Multi-Facets of McKinley.

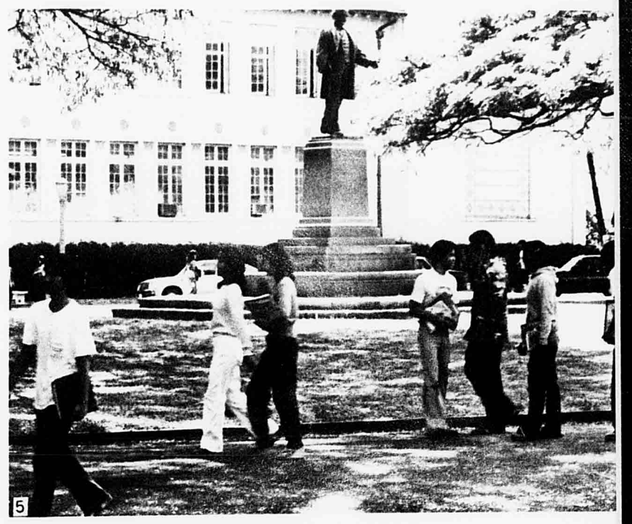

. . . McKinley's Multi-Facets Shine as One

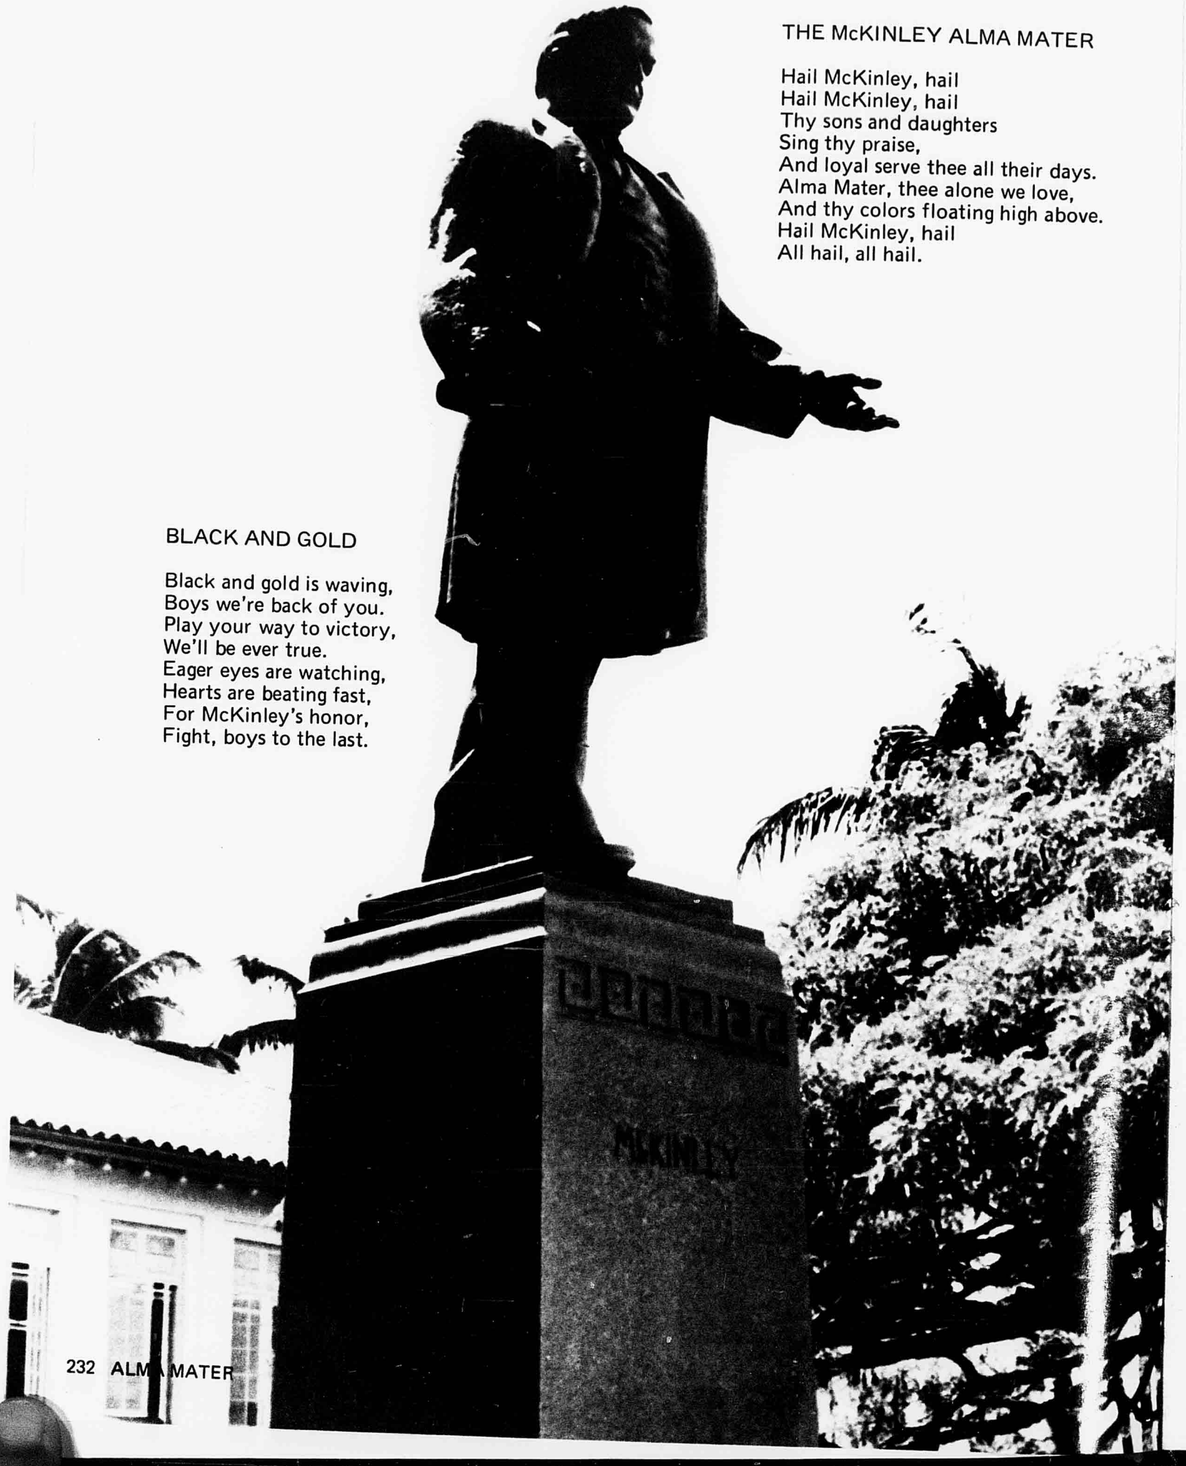

1) MR. DENNIS SAKATA demonstrates the art of the Japanese tea ceremony to the Senior Honors English class. 2) Yellow ribbons fly with the American flags at Ala Moana Shopping Center celebrating the return of the former hostages. 3) Students hurry to their class between bells. 4) OIA all-star WARREN PONCE lays in two points in the thrilling regular season victory over Kaiser. 5) President McKinley watches over the campus from his vantage point on the oval. 6) The Halloween Pep Rally attracted a strange audience in the gym.

THE McKINLEY ALMA MATER

Hail McKinley, hail
Hail McKinley, hail
Thy sons and daughters
Sing thy praise,
And loyal serve thee all their days.
Alma Mater, thee alone we love,
And thy colors floating high above.
Hail McKinley, hail
All hail, all hail.

BLACK AND GOLD

Black and gold is waving,
Boys we're back of you.
Play your way to victory,
We'll be ever true.
Eager eyes are watching,
Hearts are beating fast,
For McKinley's honor,
Fight, boys to the last.

September: Campus Reawakens, School Resumes

Silence. It enveloped the campus as President McKinley maintained his lonely vigil over empty halls and still classrooms. Sleepy buildings solemnly stood in the tranquility of August as students and faculty were off enjoying the last days of summer.

September 2, 8 a.m. Rejuvenated teachers trickled in to air out musty classrooms, dusting off desks and organizing lesson plans for the coming year. McKinley hummed with concealed activity as faculty settled in, their ears ringing with words of administrative encouragement from a morning meeting.

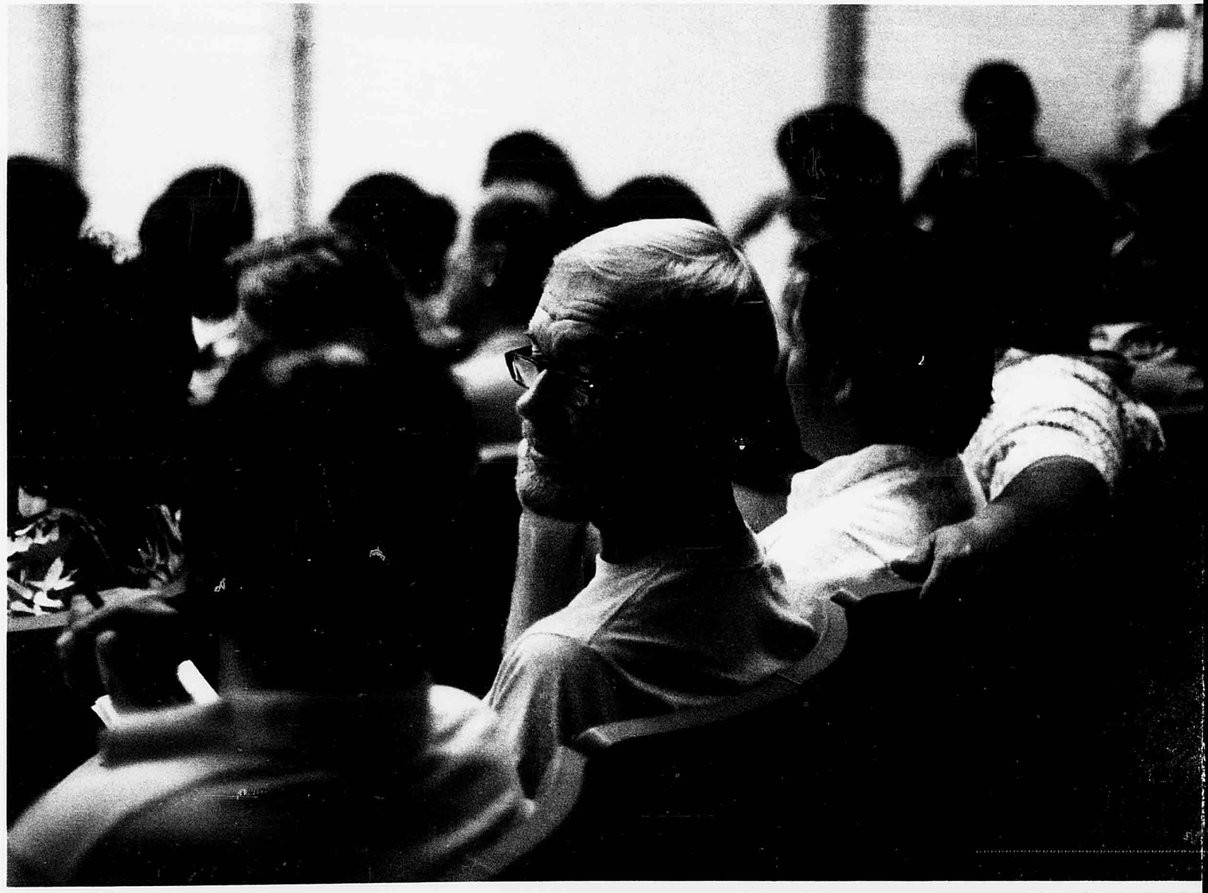

September 3, 7:45 a.m. General apprehension pervaded the air as reluctant students once again permeated the campus. Going back into old routines, renewing friendships, establishing hangouts, as well as getting used to classes were much a part of the beginning of September. Seniors eagerly awaited the chance to make the most of their final year, while Juniors relaxed to see what the coming months would bring. Unfamiliar sophomores were easily spotted, as they were the ones trampling the oval and learning rules and traditions in an effort to fit in. The silence of August was now replaced by September's hustle and bustle as students and teachers alike strove to make the most of the 1981-1982 year.

School Activities Span from Student Council to ROTC From Math to Sports

On one of the most beautiful public school campuses (if not the most beautiful), McKinley's students enjoyed a wealth of activities that used all areas of the school, stretching from the front lawn on King Street to the William Wise Field on Kapiolani Boulevard. Clubs, sports, and organizations kept students humming with activity during lunch and after school hours as well as through the weekends.

Student Council planned a full calendar of traditional events, such as Homecoming, Winter Prom, Black & Gold Day, and Crazy Week to give students a break from the usual schedule of daily classes. Voting played an important part of school life, as it gave students the right to elect people for offices or positions on courts.

Over in the math building, teachers Reverie Suzuki, Raynette Takizawa, Ernell Young, Claire Mizokami, Kenneth Lee and Loretta Chee could be found after school coaching a top-rate math team for monthly meets.

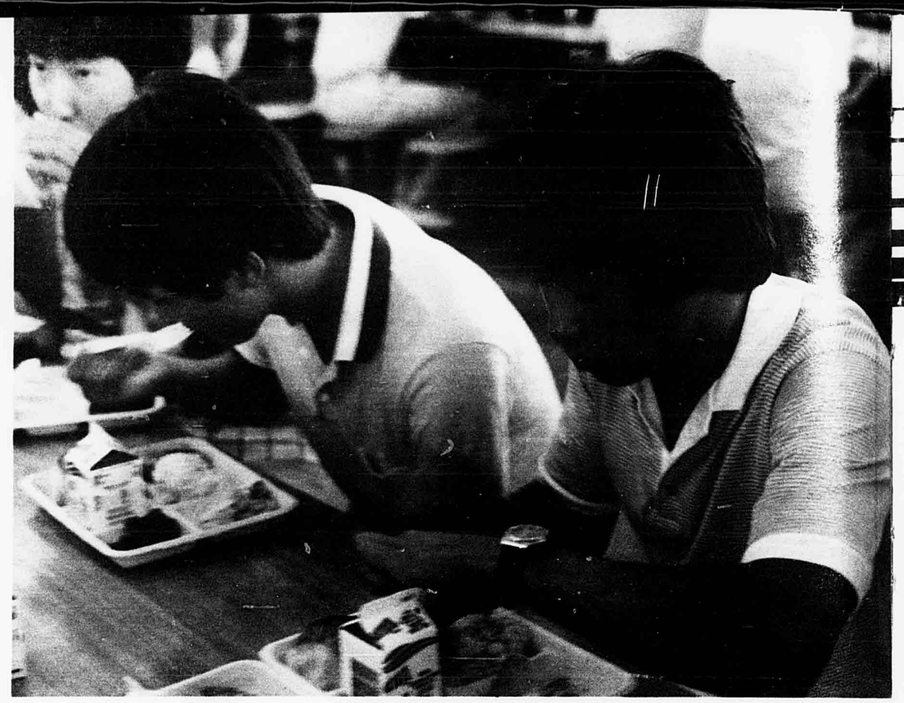

Members of the ROTC such as Thomas Asuega and Edward Kamaka were found to be busy on many after school days drilling their companies.

The volleyball teams were heard practicing spikes and serves in the gym, while outside, cross country runners gathered everyday after school to run.

In the bandroom, sectionals or entire band rehearsals were often in session, practicing for rallies, games, and future concerts.

And as always, the pep squad put in long hours of practice to perfect routines for the student body.

There were also those students who were content just sitting under trees relaxing with friends, quite satisfied without getting involved in all the excitement life on campus had to offer.

Lunch Price Increase, Truancy Crackdown, Government Cutback Affect McKinleyites

1981-1982...It was a year of changes that affected every student at McKinley. On the state and county level, an ordinance and two new laws were passed. One was a new bus system concentrated only in the downtown area. In an effort to save gas, buses now stopped only at certain stops. These were marked by various signs, symbols of Hawaii such as a nene bird, a pineapple, and a surfer. As with any new change, however, it takes time to get used to. "The new bus system is so confusing,"observes Cathy Sato. "Going to school, cars and buses utilize the same lanes so it's so congested. It takes longer to get to school, and it's more humbug."

In an effort to reduce truancy, the Department of Education and the Police Department initiated a project to increase enforcement of the compulsory school attendance law. Students found out of school during school hours faced greater consequences than before, including arrest by police. Off-campus passes were regulated statewide to prevent confusion.

The Reagan Administration's cutbacks in government spending also affected McKinley students, the most noticeable effect being the increase in lunch prices from 25 cents to 45 cents. What was previously considered free lunch became available for 20 cents.

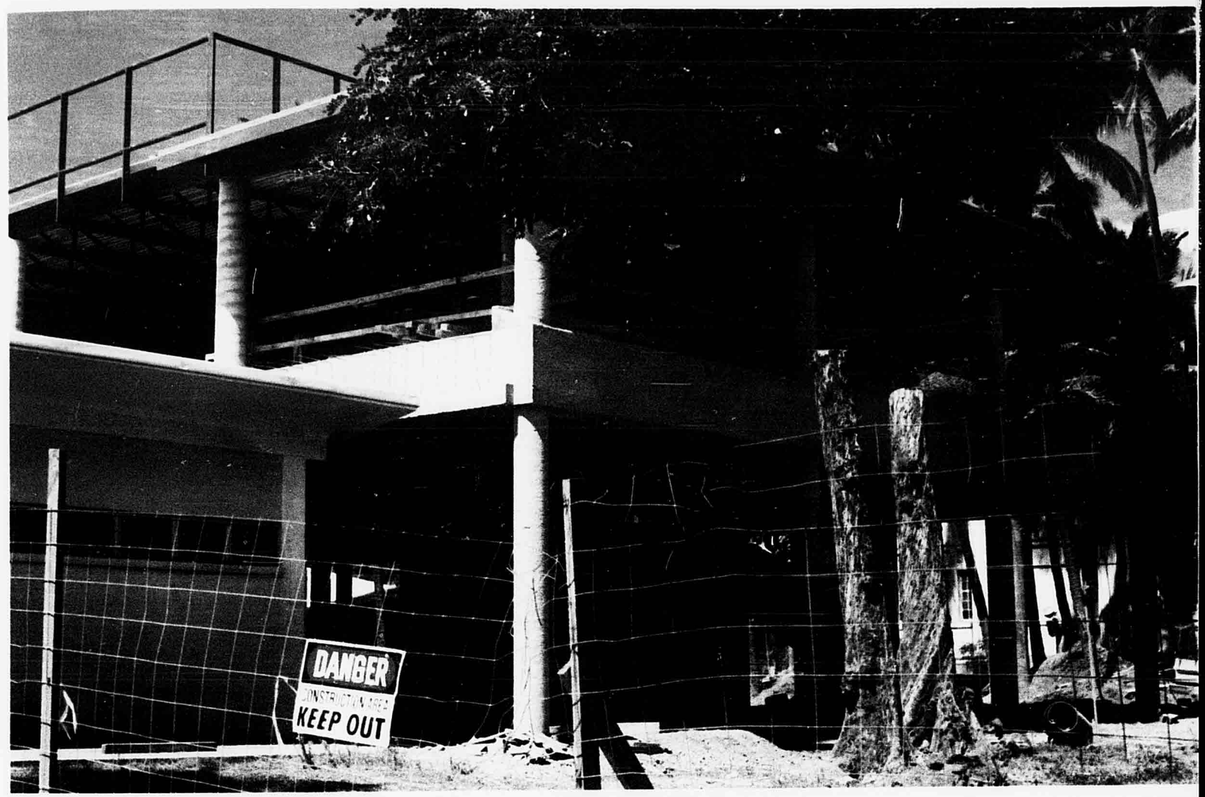

The renovation of Ala Moana Center continued through the summer as shoppers were temporarily inconvenienced by blocked stairways and travelators. Construction dust and noise as well as unsightly torn down sections made shopping unpleasant. However, date of completion for most of the construction was set for early 1982.

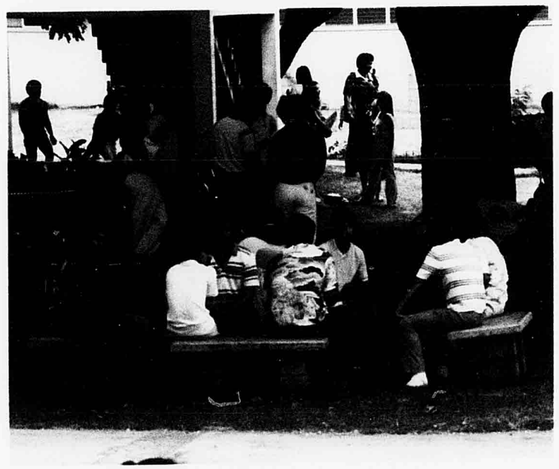

On campus, the most noticeable difference was the construction of the new building between the Administration and Multi-purpose buildings. The planned library and special education building was part of the first phase of the McKinley planned renovation. Students endured weeks of noise, dust, and inconveniences until its completion in the middle of the school year.

As outlined in Principal Richard Sakamoto's goal of campus safety and security, teachers found themselves grouped into teams, and assigned on weekly once-a-month shifts. Thus teachers' precious lunch recesses were sacrificed to comply with this new rule.

Another addition to the campus were benches that were constructed by Mr. Leroy Ngai's woodshop classes. Students quickly made use of this convenience, instead of sitting on the ground.

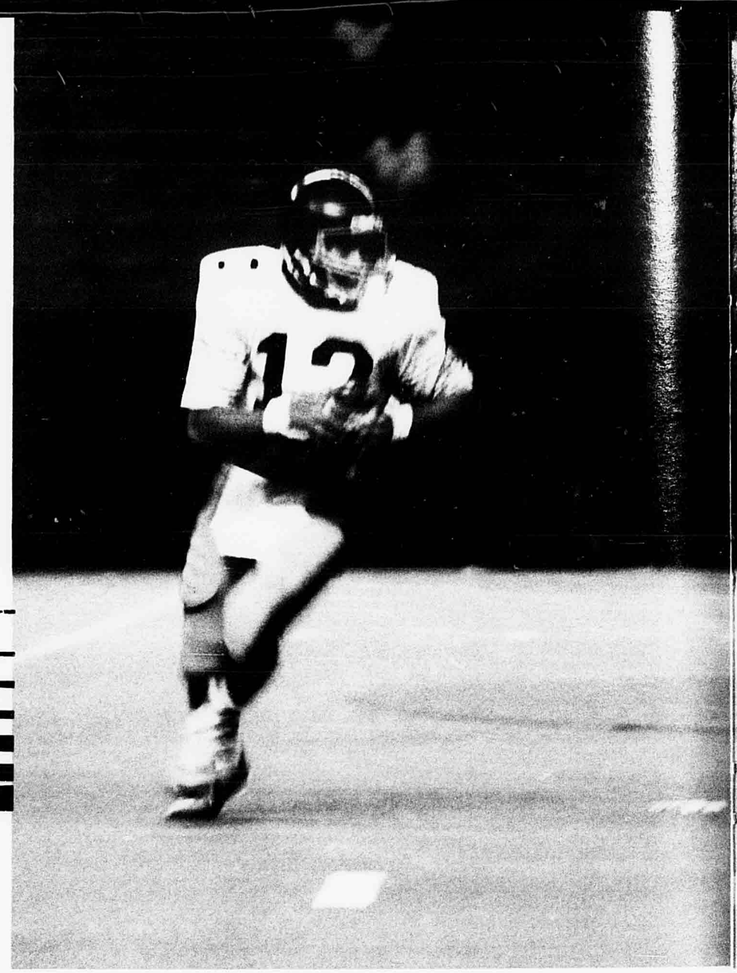

Despite an ever-changing environment, students managed to adjust. Thus, events in and out of school played a major role in influencing the lives of everyone.

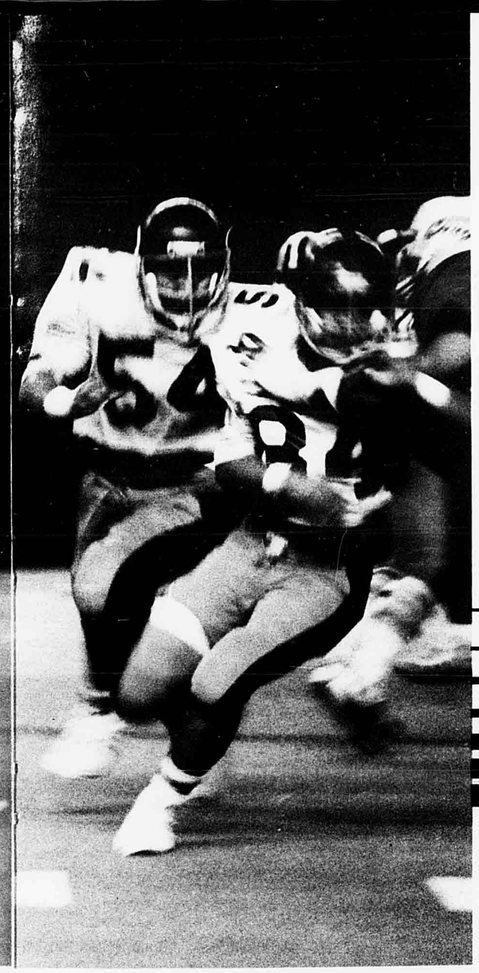

(TOP) The first phase of the McKinley planned renovation approached its completion in the middle of the school year. The library will be on the second floor, while special education classes are planned for the first. (ABOVE) The campus beautification project included permanent concrete benches placed around campus built by the woodshop classes.

TIGER SPIRIT Reaches New Heights

What do you think of the spirit in school this year?

KEHAU VANDERFORD (11) - Good. At football games, some people don't cheer, they only cheer when the ones in the front section do. Other than that, it's good.

BENSON MAAFALA (12) - Alright! Everyone is pepped up. Of the three years that I've been here, it's the best. The whole school is up in spirit.

JULYN CHING (12) - I think this year is better because we're more like a family and starting to work together.

KRIS TAGAWA (11) - At football games, the cheering section is really strong in supporting the team, even when things aren't going well.

KEVIN EBISUYA (11) - Pretty peppy. It's a lot better than last year because of the football spirit and pride for McKinley.

MICHELLE LANDRY (10) - It's a lot better than my old school in Alaska. There's just more spirit, and fun things to do, mainly because of the weather here, because it snows in Anchorage. It's just fantastic.

DIVINA BALANCIO (10) - Over here, you have more activities than from where I came from. We never had football games in Sacramento.

MR. WARREN CHEE - I find the ~~Senior~~s very spirited this year. I've never seen a spirited bunch of seniors in a long time.

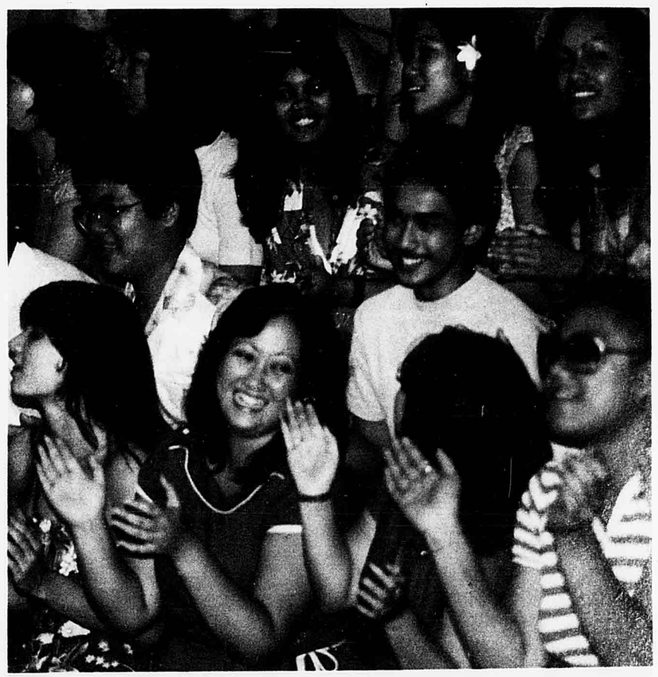

MRS. MEG UEHARA - Because we have occasional pep rallies, the students are more energetic and spirit builds up between rallies. Besides, the football team is doing very well, so the whole school is pepped up.

DAWN PEZOLDT (12) - Senior spirit has really increased since last year. I feel the whole school is charged up because spirit from one class to another is infectious.

How do you spend your weekends?

PAULETTE IMOSE (12) - I work at a movie theatre, but when I have free time, my friends and I go to movies.
MARY FAILMA (11) - Go out with my friends to the beach, shopping, and make trouble for fun.
CHA IL KU (12) - Go out with friends and cruise around.
HARRIS AKI (11) - Saturdays, I practice football with the team, and Sundays, I usually go to movies with my friends.
HUNG SOP (12) - Just study and sometimes go walking with the Leo Club.
LARRY OHASHI (10) - Go to the beach, body surf, and go cruising at night with my friends.

'Enough Energy' Comes Forth for Weekends

It happened every Friday afternoon. Weary students dragged to the last class of the day, but with the final bell, tired faces became happy ones filled with relief. Despite the exhausting school week, somehow, enough energy was always found for weekends.

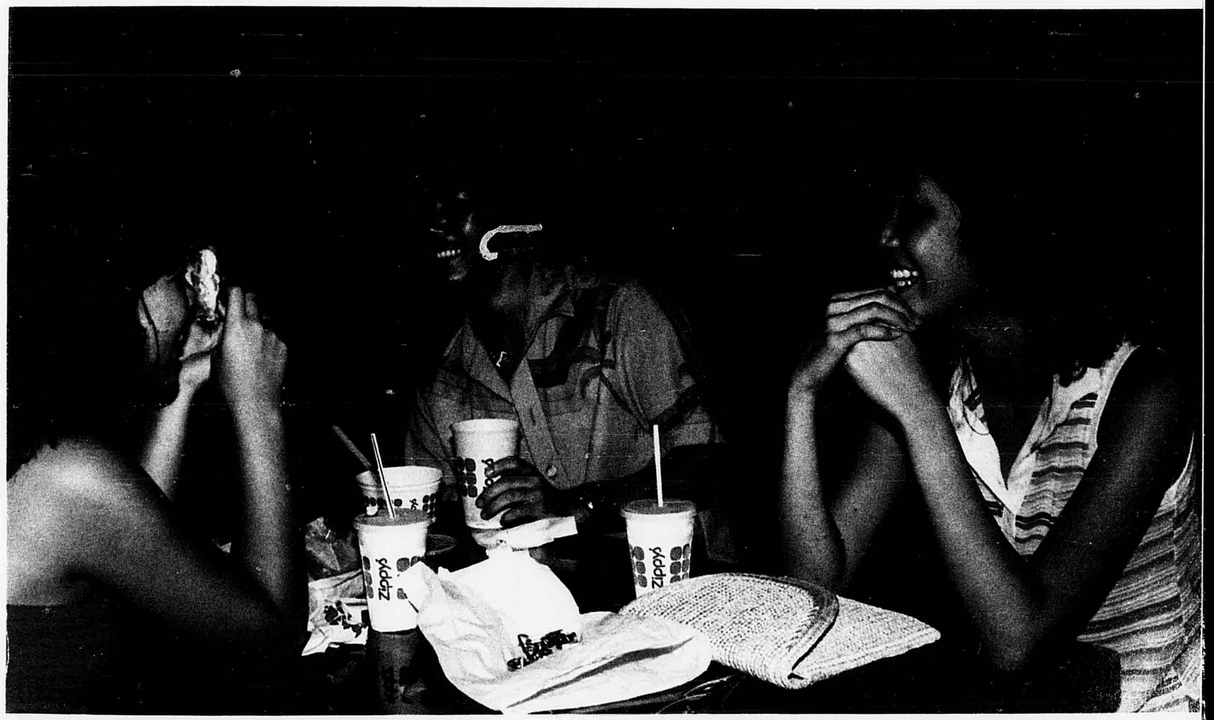

The precious two days that made up students' weekends were spent in various ways. Many used their Friday or Saturday nights at football games during the season, cheering on the Tiger team. Afterwards, a great number of students were found at the Makiki and McCully Zippy's, beating the hungries with saimin and hamburgers and "talking story" with friends.

Weekends were also an opportune time to work, as many gave up free time to earn money for their own reasons. Gas stations, fast foods, office, and stores were major areas of employment.

For some, it was also a time for play as many continued to hit Waikiki or other favorite beaches to suntan, surf or swim. Students were often seen at Ala Moana Center, shopping or just walking around.

And still others spent sunny Saturdays at libraries, working on projects or doing even more studying to keep up with their classes. Sundays found many occupied with church or Sunday school activities.

But for the most part, weekends were a time of R and R, (Rest and Recreation) and a break from classes and homework. Sleeping till late, not having to get up early, was a privilege that was enjoyed by all.

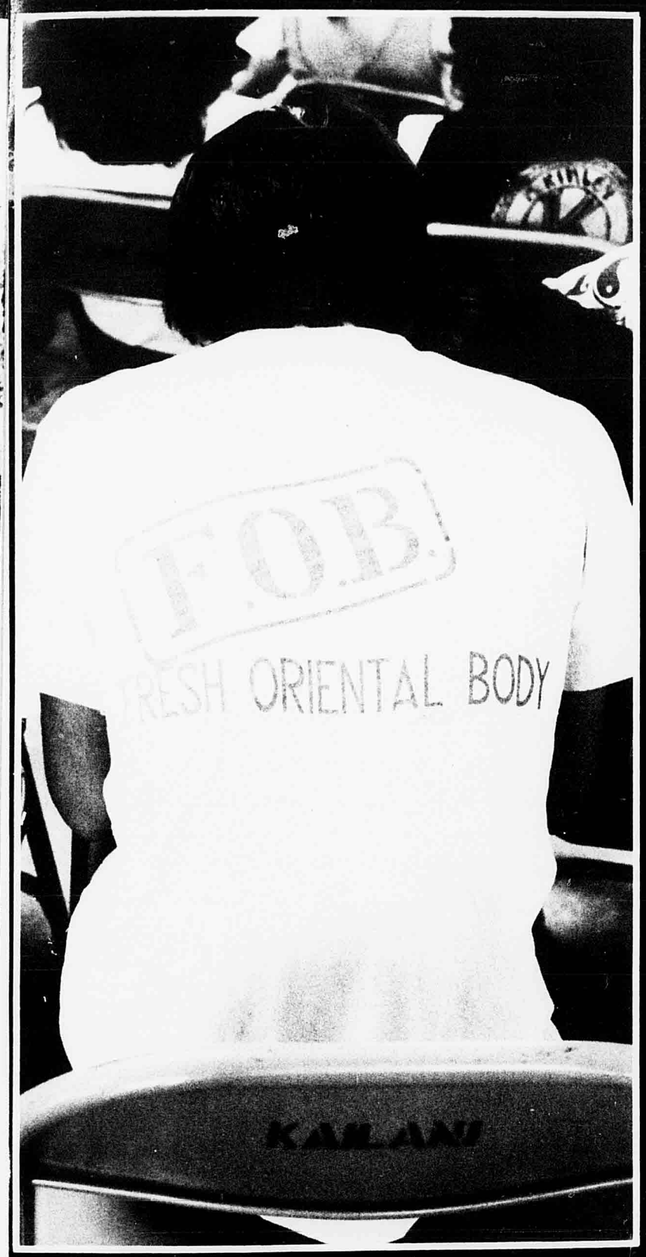

McKinley High School is a school of many outstanding features: set in the heart of Honolulu, scenic courtyard, a grand statue.

But look again.

There is a certain life behind the surface, a diverse ensemble of people that makes up the student body of McKinley. Different, yet bound together, it is this life that makes up the part of the remembrances of McKinley; the part that is cherished the most.

SENIORS

SECRETARY GLENNA MISHINA

TREASURER DAVID MORENO

ADVISOR MRS. DIANNE SUGIHARA

PRESIDENT GAYLE UYEHARA

With approximately 2000 days of school behind them, it's nearly all over for McKinley's seniors. But what a way to end twelve years of free education---with much work to be done and many decisions to be made for the future. Whether moving on to higher education or entering the job market or just "hanging out", Seniors remember their last year at McKinley as the end of an important, somewhat precious piece of their youth and the beginning of a new and exciting future.

VICE PRESIDENT KAWAI CHAN

Songfest Features 'A Christmas Song'

Christmas came early this year as stores around the community displayed their yuletide wares immediately after the Thanksgiving weekend. To spread the 'holiday spirit', the Special Projects committee conducted a Christmas card delivery service. Chaired by Hope Matsumoto and Wesley Waniya, this December activity provided many pleasant surprises for both its senders and receivers. The Senior Council, assisted by some of the Seniorettes, harmonized "A Christmas Song" at the annual Songfest held in the gym.

"Chestnuts roasting on an open fire...," croon seniors representing their class at the December 18 songfest competition.

'...You Feel Like You're on Top of the World'

WHAT DO YOU LIKE BEST ABOUT BEING A SENIOR?

PAT NAGAI: I don't like it because it means I'll be graduating in a few months and leaving behind school activities and my fondest memories.

DICKSON FALEFIA: The underclassmen look up to you.

TRACY PAIVA: I like it because you feel like you're on top of the world.

SHARON MARKSBURY: I like doing all kinds of things and being more carefree. Also, by the time you're a senior, you know a lot more people.

JAY INATSUKA: Being a seniorette.

FELICIA BALOCAN: All the sophomores and juniors look up to us. Also, we can act more crazy because it's our last year.

KYU SIK KIM: Being a senior means I'm going to graduate from school pretty soon, and no more calculus and staying up late.

JOANNE OSHIRO: All the different activities that you get to go to and that you're the boss of the school.

LORI WHITE: Basically knowing more about the school and its traditions than the underclassmen do.

Senior Prom Brings Back

'Treasured Memories' of High School Days

The senior year marked the culmination of twelve years of schooling, bringing with it memories of joy and pain, triumph and sorrow. Themed "Treasured Memories", the Senior Prom was the social highlight of the year as it became yet another event to be remembered and cherished.

With the color scheme of burgundy and silver and the theme song "One Day in Your Life", the 1982 Senior Prom was held on May 21 at the Hilton Hawaiian Village Coral Ballroom. Music was provided by Greenwood, setting the mood for the evening.

For many, it was a night for living it up and enjoying the last school social event of the year, while for others it was a night for quiet reflection as they realized that their high school days were coming to a close. Yet for all, it was a night of treasured memories, as images of high school days were recalled and reminsced over.

SENIOR ACHIEVERS

he 1981-1982 year proved to be no exception in producing senior achievers in sports, academics, and talent among other things.

In sports, the versatile Benson Maafala was selected the Star-Bulletin's OIA East Co-back of the year along with Kaiser's Cliff Kaneiaiakala, while Dickson Falefia was named lineman of the year. Also chosen to this prestigious team was teammate Gaylen Aleka. Benson and Dickson were also part of the All-State team.

There was also talent, as Sydney Howland took first place in the Second Annual KIKI Brown Bags to Stardom Talent Contest with her selection of "The Way We Were." She went on to compete with twenty twenty-five other acts at the Waikiki Shell.

Academically, McKinley proved its strength. Once again, National Merit Finalists were produced. Aldin Baroza and Yasmin Catalan went on to compete for scholarships. Receiving letters of Commendation were Ross Nakatsuji, Lori Tamura, and Sue-Lynn Yim.

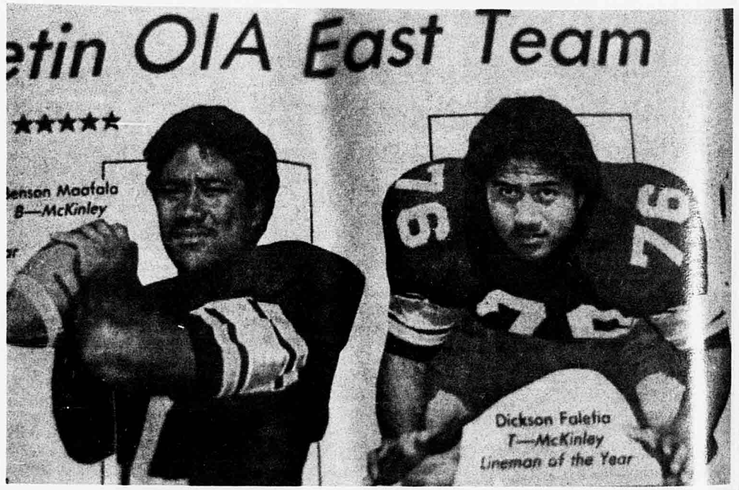

The awesome Math Team set a new OML record with six consecutive first place wins by February. With two meets left in the year, the team worked towards the goal of attaining a perfect eight-point season, as well as regaining the OML trophy. The NHS Quiz Bowl Team also held on to a first place standing as of the month of February.

Students also achieved in other areas. Kashmira Pestonjee was McKinley's representative on the Liberty House Prep Squad. Thomas Asuega was awarded a certificate by the Secret Service and Explorer's Division of the Boy Scouts of America for apprehending a man stealing about $1,400 from the Easter Seals Telethon.

The senior achievers set precedents in the athletic, academic, and artistic areas. It was this ability to excel in diverse areas that characterized the McKinley student.

The junior year for most McKinleyites is a time of learning, to prepare for the mantle of leadership which they will later assume. The junior year is something like adolescence; juniors are aware of what is going on but not in charge yet. It is a time of expanding, of experience, and of developing the feeling that being a McKinley student can only bring. It is uniquely the juniors', and they live it to the fullest.

Spirited Underclassmen Of '83 Stress Originality, Participation

After experiencing their first year as rookies at McKinley, the Class of '83 was ready to make 1981-82 a year to remember.

Along with the expertise of class advisors Mrs. Mae Fujii and Mrs. Nora Whitford and the guidance of the committee advisors, the Council executed each event, from the Class Game in October to the Junior Prom in April, with all the spirit they possessed.

The first activity the Juniors had was picture taking. As in previous years, this activity was handled by Ace Studios and photographer Reggie Yee. Reggie's unique behind-the-camera personality is well known throughout McKinley.

This year, students had a chance to choose their yearbook pictures, as well as order color photographs for themselves.

Another unique aspect of the Class of '83 was the substitution of their class mascot for a different cartoon character. The Shmoo was replaced after a class-wide election.

Now that the Class of '83 has become accustomed to the many activities and traditions of McKinley, a poll was taken to discover the opinions and feelings of various juniors. The responses were as follows:

WAI LEUNG LEE: It is fun and the teachers are pretty good to you. But I wish they gave less homework.

STEVEN NAULT: I think McKinley High is the best school on this island, and I will be the sixth person in my family to grad from McKinley.

NOVEN VALENZUELA: The classes are too long and the teachers should give the student more chances.

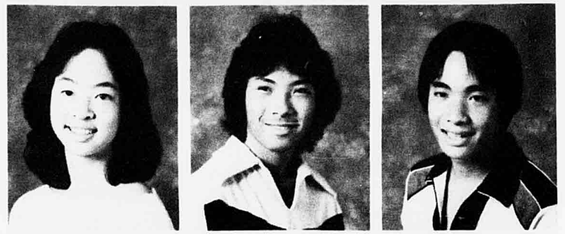

LUAMANUVAE MAI: McKinley is the first high school I came to when my family moved to Hawaii. I love McKinley; it is a beautiful high school. The teachers all work together, even the students. It is the number one school in the history of Hawaii, and the students get a good education.

TIFFANY CAMARO: The school is alright. It's way better than the other school I attended. The teachers seem to be more into helping the students, and I'm learning a lot more here at McKinley.

JAMES LYAU: I think that McKinley is a choice place to be for learning. The campus is one of the nicest in the state.

EUGENE ALIVIO says his part during a parliamentary procedure workshop at the leadership camp held at Camp Kailani in early October.

Spirit Maintained Throughout Eventful Year

Determination in addition to the experience gained from the previous year was what the 1981-82 Junior Council used to create an eventful year.

The Junior Class Game on October 15 took place at Aloha Stadium. Junior spirit and excitement continued throughout and beyond the game, despite the Tigers' loss to Kaiser. The Class of 1983 entered the Homecoming float and banner competition, proudly displaying them with their mascot at the October 30 parade.

In November, the class officers ran, jumped, and crawled along as part of the annual Turkey Trot Thanksgiving relay.

1982 began with the Junior Banquet held in February at the Paradise Park Restaurant, keeping enthusiasm spirited throughout the Junior Class Week in April. The week culminated with the traditional class play on April 16.

Climaxing the year's events was the Junior Prom. The Princess Kaiulani was the site for the semi-formal affair.

Junior Dinner Prom In Ainahau Ballroom Highlights Class Events

Set in the Princess Kaiulani Ainahau Ballroom, the Junior Promenade highlighted the year. Themed 'Between the Laughter and the Tears,' this semi-formal dinner prom was held on Friday, April 23, 1982. Providing entertainment was the band, Wizard.

Overall chairpersons were Christine Fujikawa and Kathy Takata. Under their leadership were Program Committee chairpersons, Lynn Imanaka and Todd Nishimura, who were advised by Mr. George Maeda. Other committees were the Bids Committee, led by Valerie Villeso, the Centerpiece Committee directed by Joyce Ono, and the Favors Committee, led by Lisa Kaneshiro. Advising these committees were Mrs. Pat Lau and Miss Gwendolyn Shimono. Contracting the band was Robin Nakamura, advised by Mrs. Meg Uehara.

The prom, along with other class activities including the carnival game booth and the Junior Dinner in February, and Class Week in April completed the spring activities planned by the Council.

Finally, the juniors got together as a class to set up chairs at commencement with the hope that following classes would do the same for them.

PRESIDENT STEPHANIE KOMAE

McKinley's Sophomore Class a group of individuals brought together from many places. And together, they discover a tradition over a century old: that of perpetuating the spirit that is McKinley High School. It is that spirit of learning, of life and of kinship that unites this ragtag assemblage of incoming students into something more... and half the experience is in the discovery.

Incoming MHSers Experience First Scramble

The sophomores trekked the way to their first year in high school by scrambling in May of 1981. It was a totally new and hectic experience for most students; for some it was even frustrating.

Entering high school at McKinley was quite a big change for our fellow underclassmen. In addition to meeting new friends and teachers, there were also various school rules, different bell schedules, and traditions such as staying off the oval, learning and singing Black and Gold and the Alma Mater.

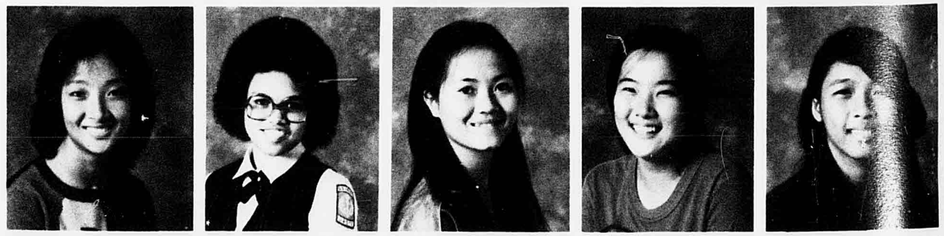

The dynamic sophomores of the Class of 1984 selected as their image: mascot- unicorn, colors- burgundy and white, flower- rose, song- "Greatest Love of All," and motto- "Today's dreams are tomorrow's memories."

Incoming sophomores receive assistance from GLENN IMANAKA during the May scramble.

High School Life Overwhelms, Delights...

As a sophomore, what is your impression of McKinley and its traditions?

TRISHA TAKAYESU: McKinley is really very exciting. Everyone comes out and supports the athletes, and helps one another. There is unity, pride, and spirit at this school and I like it here.

CINDA CARTER: The tradition of staying off the oval shows great respect for the statue.

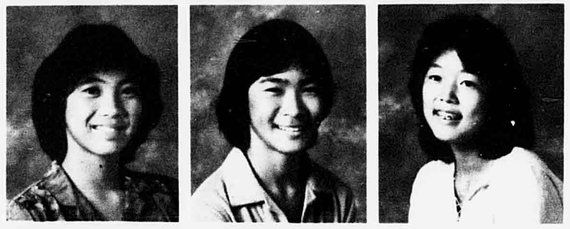

LE ANH TRAN: McKinley is wonderful! It has tutorial periods and assemblies that other schools might not have. The teachers are cooperative and make education here a pleasure...We are family!

Class of '84 Becomes Part of Tiger Family

The Oral Communications class of MRS. BERNICE USHIRODA, a course required for all sophomores, quietly does its work.

New members of the McKinley family soon took part in many school related activities, such as the Halloween Jamboree, the Turkey Trot, football games, and cheering at pep rallies.

Highlighting their sophomore year were several events held in March: class week, class play, and the Sophomore Banquet. The class week allowed the sophomores to prove themselves as a part of the McKinley family to their upperclassmen while the class play featured many talented young McKinleyites. Rounding off the year was the class banquet, where the Class of 1984 once again united for the last time before going on to become ambitious juniors.

FACULTY

PRINCIPAL RICHARD SAKAMOTO

A lot of the students' experiences at McKinley involve the organizational and academic areas of school life. The McKinley faculty, therefore, is bound to play a vital role in every student's time here. No matter what opinions anyone has about the faculty, it cannot be denied that through them each student learns something about himself and the world he lives in...

Teachers Use After School Hours To Advise Clubs

In addition to the daily rigors of classroom instruction, many teachers set aside time out of school hours to advise the various clubs, classes and organizations. Due to interest on the part of both advisor and students, new clubs, such as Car and Anglers, came into being, while traditional clubs, such as Key and National Honor Society, maintained strong memberships. Diversity of involvement was broad indeed--ranging from coaching a championship calibre football squad to a highly competitive math team.

School functions rounded out the faculty's list of extracurricular duties. Whether it be Homecoming or Commencement, a specialized hierarchy of committees and their advisors sacrificed long hours to provide the school with productive, memorable events.

WASC Accrediting Committee Evaluates Program Performance

Accreditation, or the evaluation of the effectiveness of existing school programs, was undergone by McKinley for the first time in five years. The evaluation served to determine how effectively the goals of the school were being met, and in doing so, pinpointed the main strengths and weaknesses of the overall program.

The eight major areas that were evaluated were philosophy, organiztion, student personnel services, curricular program, co-curricular program, staff, facilities, and finance. A visiting committee from the Accrediting Commission for Schools of the Western Association of Schools and Colleges came to McKinley in March to observe conditions and to write a Visiting Committee Report.

In preparation for this, reviews of the various areas were submitted by the administration, community and students. These comments were then compiled by the Accreditation Steering Committee, which was headed by Mrs. Ernell Young.

Mrs. ERNELL YOUNG discusses committee evaluations during an after school Accreditation Steering Committee meeting as student representative MARK KUNICHIKA looks on.

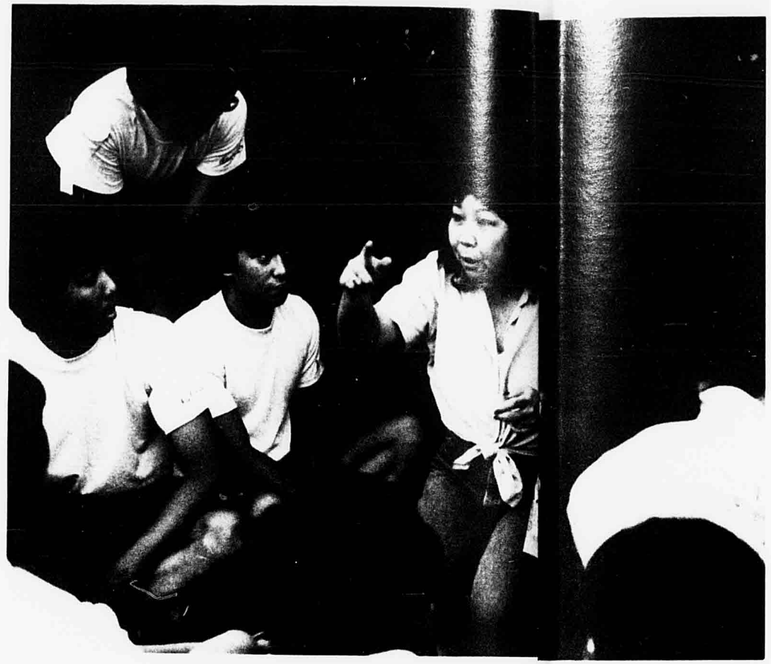

Students Are Reason Teachers Like McKinley

What do you like best about teaching at McKinley?

MS. MARLENE PETERSON- (Sigh) So many things...I guess it's being able to teach without as many discipline problems---the students are willing to learn.

MRS. FELY SERRA- It's hard to access one particular thing since I've been here practically all my life. I feel very strongly about the school as the students and teachers are my family and McKinley is my home.

MISS JEAN MATSUO- McKinley students are in the upper class in the state. It shows in their concern for education, respect for one another, and loyalty to their school.

Teachers Give Assistance to Campus Supervision

As outlined in the principal's goal for campus safety and security, the faculty was divided into five color-coded teams which alternately patrolled the school buildings during lunch recess. Designated by either red, white, blue, black or gold, these teams were then broken down into pairs or triplets of teachers to simplify the task. Most teachers complied with this added duty willingly, sacrificing a few minutes of their break for school security.

Mr. WARREN CHEE chats with a student during his yard duty on the Math Building terrace.

PTSA Supplements School Programs, Lobbies for Legislative Funds, Sponsors Country Store

McKinley's Parent Teacher Student Association underwent a busy schedule, supporting school programs as well as stirring up involvement within the community. Among their year-long goals included lobbying for much needed funds for the second phase of the new library and the Driver's Education Program, and also sponsoring the country store at the annual Tiger Carnival. Regular membership meetings were supplemented by the publication and mailing of the newsletter, the PTSA Pinion.

The PTSA Board of Directors included Grace Furukawa, president; Alice Kawano, corresponding secretary and membership chairman; Valarie Matsumura, recording secretary; Jess Walters, treasurer; Momi Phillips, program chairman; Sonia Iwasaki, publicity and newsletter; Bonnie Gardner, hospitality; Glen Soma, teacher corps representative; Anita Malama, Jack Katahira, Miles Matsumura, Lillian Nakamura, and Kay Nishimura, parents at large; Richard Sakamoto, principal; Peggy Anderson, teacher representative; Dal Byun, student representative; and Allen Kajioka, past president.

Upon a closer inspection, McKinley appears to have a life of its own. Like a finely-tuned mechanism, the forces of action and reaction become evident. Every part of this mechanism becomes an important part of the whole through the unique role each part has. The interaction of students with faculty and with each other is the vital spark without which McKinley cannot function.

The academic part of the educational system here may not be everyone's favorite aspect of life at McKinley, but it is a necessity. To learn is to be prepared for the demands of life after high school; as much a requirement to growth as experience.

The opportunities offered to McKinley students are many and varied, suiting every interest and every need.

Art, Drama, Music Programs Develop Student Talent

McKinley's environment has always encouraged students to make the most of their creative abilities. Classes in the Art, Drama, and Music Departments were geared toward students who were eager to develop their talents. Beginning and advanced students had equal opportunity to showcase their talents in a variety of programs, contests, and exhibitions sponsored by the departments.

The art program emphasized the importance and the need for art in everyone. Whether they were planning to make art their profession or taking the course for pleasure, students were exposed to many new experiences. These explorations made everyday life more challenging and meaningful.

Students enrolled in drama classes concentrated on developing their natural acting, dancing, and singing abilities to the fullest. Drama Workshop was a performance-oriented class that worked to complete shows for presentation in school and in the community.

Music classes focused on perfecting each student's performance level. Concerts performed by the Band, Orchestra, and Chorus showed just how much work was put into making each performance a success.

Math, Science Departments Offer Diversified Courses for Individual Needs

Practical hands-on experience was emphasized in both the Math and Science Departments. Teachers worked to involve students in learning basic skills and advanced concepts that would later help them to get post-high school jobs or to continue in college educations.

The Math Department at McKinley was known throughout the state for its high standards and qualified staff. Strict requirements insured that students worked hard to continue in the program, and the results were rewarding. The department offered a wide range of courses, including Calculus and Computer Math, which were not offered at most high schools. As Queenie Tan commented, "Calculus has definitely helped me to prepare for college. It was very competitive."

Perhaps the dedication and high quality of the Math Department was best reflected in the efforts and accomplishments of the Math Team. After school workshops and numerous practice tests enabled the team to perform consistently and earned them great respect in the Oahu Math League.

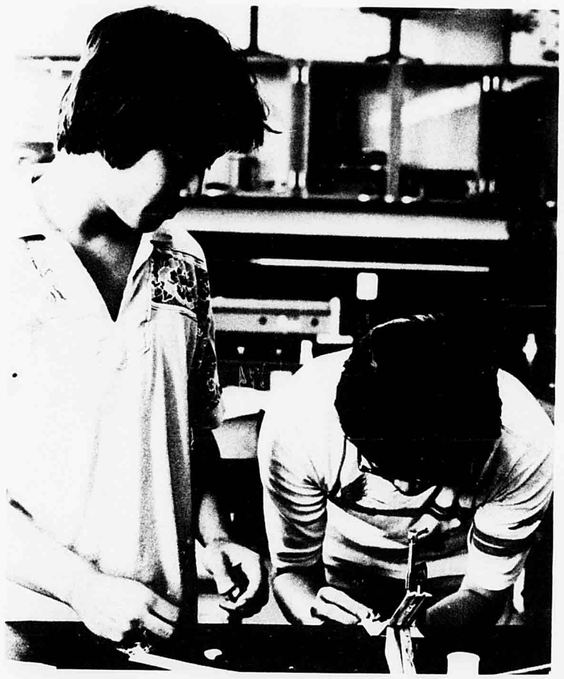

In the Science Department, students found out how and why things work, from the human body to the universe. Courses ranged from Science Skills for those with no background in science to Advanced Placement Chemistry, a college credit course. There were a variety of courses, all focusing on experimentation in labs. In addition, many classes went on field expeditions to the zoo, the ocean and other places on Oahu.

"Taking Chemistry has enabled me to find out how the world works."

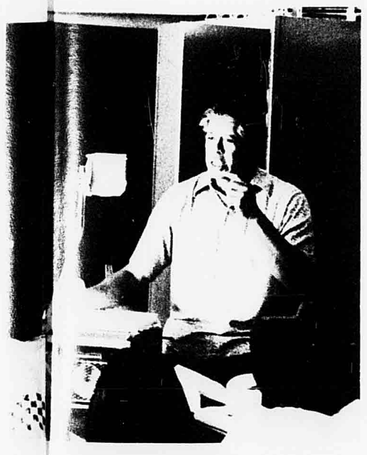

Wai Leung Lee

The Zoo Instructor Program (ZIP) was the only one of its kind in Hawaii. After an initial training program, students worked at the Honolulu Zoo with zookeepers as instructors for educational programs. Judi Ventic, a junior, said, "I took the class because I loved working with animals."

Teachers tried to design courses that the students would both enjoy and benefit from. As a result, both departments were successful in providing students who took advantage of the elective courses with quality education and worthwhile experience.

Changes Affect PE, Health, ROTC Remains Consistent

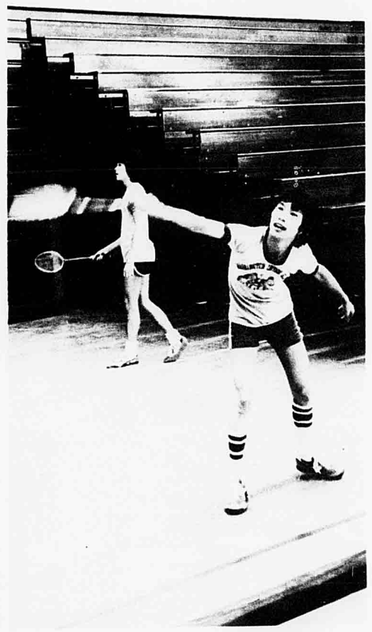

Changes at McKinley affected the physical education and health programs for sophomores. The new program allowed more time for Health and less for P.E. Faced with adjustments of one semester of Health and P.E., teachers cut the number of P.E. units from nine to five and added CPR to the Health program. All sophomores had the opportunity to earn a certification in CPR. Along with CPR, the health classes studied nutrition, diseases, and first aid.

Due to a pump breakage and necessary electrical rewiring, the pool was not available for use during the entire year. P.E. students were not able to take swimming, basic rescue, and aquatic sports. However, units such as basketball, badminton, football, and archery offered a wide variety of sports for students to choose from. The above alterations brought disappointment to the teachers on account of the failure to achieve their goal in instruction.

The JROTC encouraged its members to develop their leadership qualities through the program. Students learned first aid, oral communication, and course-marksmanship. The Spring Camp in March taught cadets repelling, tank-driving, and other military maneuvers.

Although many students who took JROTC eventually joined the military, the program offered many students the chance to learn leadership qualities and responsibility.

Creative, Innovative Methods Add Variety to Courses

In teaching English, Social Studies, and Foreign Language, instructors introduced creative and innovative classroom methods in their courses. Thus, students gained different things from various activities rather than just doing book work.

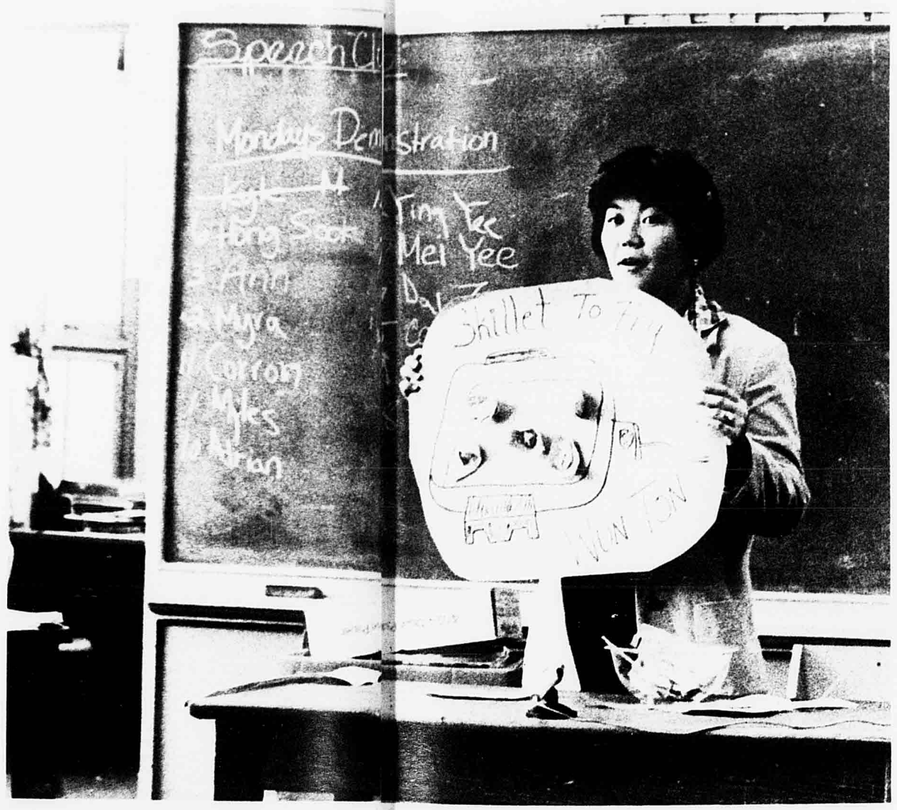

English was one subject which utilized other means besides books to instruct students. In oral communications, students were required to give demonstration speeches while being videotaped. They later observed their own performance, becoming aware of any faults.

Humanities, Sociology, and Psychology were popular subjects in the Social Studies Department. These subjects also offered fun means to learn about the subject, other students, as well as oneself.

In the Foreign Language Department, students were offered a choice of French, Spanish, Mandarin, or Japanese. In the lower levels, familiarity of the language was achieved through various games, making it interesting to learn. Cards, listening to instructions and then matching things, and relays to the chalkboard were some of the different techniques utilized. In the higher levels, since the basics were already covered, absorption of culture and history could be emphasized. Different activities included cooking native foods in French III while the Japanese V class went down to radio KZOO to advertise the Tiger Carnival in Japanese.

Vo-Tech Encourages Job Skills

Entry-level instruction in the business, technical and occupational fields was the goal of the McKinley Vocational-Technical Program. Students about to enter the job market after high school profited from Vo-Tech's courses in business, home economics, and industrial arts, where on-the-job experience was coupled with instruction to teach the skills and knowledge required to enter these fields.

The importance and the impact of the business community is far-reaching and still expanding. As modern technology continues to make inroads in the field, the Business Department's courses in Business Machines and Data Processing introduced students to the emergence of the computer sciences as a vital component of business. A new course, Business Computer Programming, was open to students as was Business Law and Notetaking.

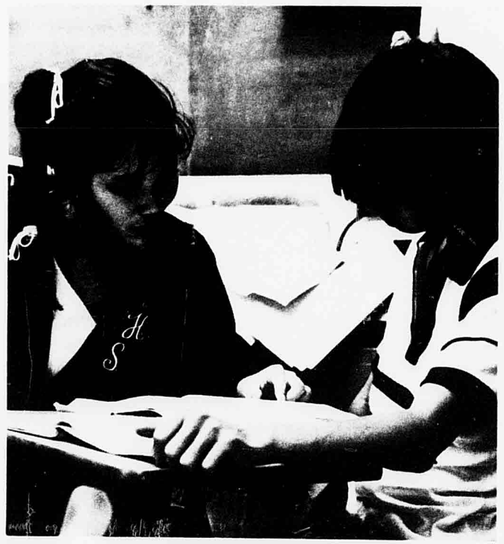

Child care, family relations, and food service and preparation were some of the subjects handled by the Home Economics Department. Students got to see the results of their labors as they worked on developing the skills of their career interest. By instructing pre-school-age children, Child Care Services students assisted in their growth and development. The benefits of the Food Service class appealed to the tastebuds as their cooking projects included pumpkin pies that were sold to students and teachers in during the Thanksgiving season, and brunch that was prepared in March and offered to teachers.

The Industrial Art Department's emphasis was on the development of mechanical and technical skills. In Electronic Tech I and II, the use and servicing of televisions, the Apple II Computer, the Microcompressor and amateur radio qualified students with a practical experience in the technical and engineering fields. Job-entry facilities in printing and auto mechanics were utilized in Graphic Arts and Power Auto Technology classes, and Ornamental Horticulture offered skills in the care and maintenance of plants.

SLEP, SMP, Individualized Programs Cater to Special Needs

Special Programs offered various courses to benefit students who needed assistance in relating and associating with various aspects of student life at McKinley.

Over 300 students, approximately one-fourth of them knowing little or no English, were given the opportunity to master the English language by enrolling in the SLEP program. An addition of three bilingual teachers, along with the returning staff, instructed these students by using English until the students could not comprehend what was being said. Resorting back to their native language then became a necessity.

The MAT (Metropolitan Achievement Test) was administered to approximately 400 SLEP students during October. The purpose of this test was to prove that a student no longer needed any help from SLEP. This test was required for all foreign students.

The SMP (Special Motivation Program) was developed to help students who had trouble obtaining the required amount of credits for graduation. Certain courses in English, Math, Science, and Social Studies as well as Guidance, PE III, and Work Study were offered to these students. To enroll in a SMP class, a student had to be cleared by his or her counselor and receive an approval from the vice principal.

Programs for students with hearing or visual impairments were also available. Special resource teachers assisted them in understanding their assignments, as well as projects of their regular education classes, and with all phases of campus life.

ORGANIZATIONS

Interests, aspirations, and just plain good times are shared among students through the various organizations that are available.

Just as McKinley holds students that are diverse in every way, there are clubs and organizations that appeal to different concerns. Athletic, academic, and service groups are among those provided by McKinley to instill fulfillment beyond extracurricular activities.

Academics provide the resources students need for the future. Organizations provide the necessary experience.

Execs Work on Improving Better Communication
WASC Evaluation for Accreditation

Early in May of 1981, this year's Student Council officers were chosen. Working very hard planning for the year were Executive Board members President Dal Byun, Vice President Bonnie Sin, Secretary Judy Lam, Treasurer Mark Kunichika, Senate President Michael Shikuma, Social Board Coordinator Deborah Nishimura, and Student Services Board Coordinator Derek Kamemoto. Mr. George Maeda advised the Council members and served as Student Activities Coordinator.

Every few years, according to the number of years approved, Hawaii schools are evaluated by the Western Association of Schools and Colleges. This year the student council and a student committee worked at getting data through student body surveys and interviews to complete this job.

The Executive Board ratified an amendment to the constitution and also revised procedures for impeachment and removal of officers. To reward students who paid their dues, the board planned to give out door prizes at dances and other gifts during their Twelve Days of Christmas activity.

The Quad-Council was used to better communication between the class levels and Student Council. Meeting every Thursday afternoon, the Council kept abreast of events happening at school and worked for an exciting and unified year.

The Senate, led by President Michael Shikuma, made a number of resolutions and passed a new amendment to the constitution concerning Grievance Board policies. Using parliamentary procedure, it passed all of the legislative matters, approved the budget, and worked on new statutes for the Student Council to help it run more smoothly.

Representing Hawaii in Washington D.C., Michael was chosen as one of two delegates in the Hawaii Senate Youth Program.

Starting off the year with the Welcome Back Dance, the Social Board showed the students that there was a lot more in store for them.

Coordinator Deborah Nishimura met with board members bimonthly to have committees give progress reports and air any problems. Deborah said that class levels were represented at meetings also to create a "two-way flow of information to keep in contact with the classes."

Homecoming activities, planned by chairpersons Randal Nakamura, Deborah Nishimura, and Jackie Pacudan, were highlighted by the Homecoming Parade which showcased entries in float, banner, and door competitions, and the Homecoming Jamboree.

The Welcome Back, Homecoming, and Aloha Dances were planned by Dance Committee chairpersons Kim Burton and Bonnie Sin. These informal "stag-or-drag" activities were enjoyed by a large number of students.

Assembly Committee chairpersons Judith Cobangbang and Cathleen Chun brought interesting and exciting assemblies such as the Brown Bags to Stardom II student talent show and the spectacular Prom Assembly featuring students modeling fashions from Silk Degree and Tuxedo Junction.

Under the leadership of Jamie Sakamoto, the Special Activities Committee planned fun activities such as the Turkey Trot where clubs and groups of students participated in outdoor games and the Twelve Days of Christmas door-prize drawing giving students with activity cards a chance to win a prize on each of the twelve days preceding the Winter Recess.

Themed "Winter Enchantment '81", the Winter Prom was an elegant semi-formal affair at the Hawaiian Regent Ballroom chaired by Dayle Haneda and Lori Katahira.

Black and Gold Day, an annual celebration of President William McKinley's birthday, was planned by Kashmira Pestonjee.

A wild event this year was Crazy Week, which was planned by Ann Miyata and Lauren Shishido. A highlight of this week was the faculty play, which is performed every three years.

Planned by Leilani Okuda, the annual May Day Pageant and festivities were culture-oriented.

All publicity and public relations concerning Social Board activities was handled by Kathryn Kekona and her committee.

Coordinated by Derek Kamemoto, the Student Services Board met once a month to provide basic services for students.

Supplying students with Activity Cards and ID cards were Marty Walters and Alton Farm respectfully. Handbooks, in the form of portfolios, were distributed by Jaysin Asato. Signing up for lockers was handled by Kenton Lee and lost and found items were taken care of by Queenie Tan. Teaching basic leadership skills, the Leadership Camp was handled by Kashmira Pestonjee.

Special programs such as the State Student Conferences and nominations for the Elks Club Student of the Year Awards were coordinated by Ellen Sueda, and elections for officers and court members were overseen by Christopher Tokita and Matthew Wong.

The organization of chartered clubs, Uni-Club, was represented by Maureen Lee, and the Bookstore sale of portfolios, buttons, bookcovers, and T-shirts was manned by Annette Uehara and Denise Unten.

JROTC Battalion is One of Oahu's Finest

McKinley is known for having one of the best JROTC units in public high schools on Oahu. It was advised by Sgt. Kenji Ito and the late Sgt. Dan Abella. The Sabre and Chain Club, which was consisted of twenty-three young men and women officers, has a long history of pride, unity, and honor.

In November, the JROTC participated in the Nanakuli Veterans Day Parade in which they placed thrid, losing to the Marine Corps and the Army.

A diligent group of students on campus were the members of the drill team. They practiced before school, recess, during lunch, and after school. Under the command of Cdt. Capt. Henry Cheung, and assisted by drill master, Cdt. 1 Lt. Sausau Togiai, they practiced for excellence and precision as they tossed and spun the nine and a half pound rifle, supplied by the Army. This attracted the eyes of many McKinleyites passing by on their way to classes.

On February 19, the first sponsor presentation parade was held, after many hours of practice and with the help of the U.S. Marine Band. This parade honored the memory of Sgt. Dan Abella who died the week before. (see next page)

The corps awaited an enchanting evening, the annual Military Ball which was held on March 26, at the Princess Kaiulani Hotel, Robert Louis Stevenson Ballroom. Themed "For You I'd Chase a Rainbow," the social gathering marked the last event of the year.

Memorial Parade Honors Sgt. Dan Abella

SFC DIGNO DANIEL ABELLA

Clubs Strive for Understanding of Language, Customs

Striving to foster an appreciation of the various cultures in Hawaii, the Hui O Hawaii-Makinele, Korean, Mandarin, and Vietnamese clubs encouraged an understanding of the languages and customs among students.

Participation in the Kualoa dance competition and May Day aided the twenty-five members of the Hui O Hawaii-Makinele in learning more about the Hawaiian culture. Throughout the year, the club also learned songs and practiced hula in preparation for the May Day pageant. The club also promoted the culture by selling lau lau, poi, lomi salmon, and wili-wili leis made by members at carnival.

Adding an eastern touch, Korean Club members displayed colorful cultural costumes at the Christmas Songfest. Under the leadership of Cha-Il Ku, Bong-Uk Lee, Sun Song Kim, Kyu Sik Kim, Hyun Joo Jon, and advisors Mr. Peter Resurrection and Mr. John Park, this club came away with a first place victory as the fastest club in the Turkey Trot.

To learn more about the Chinese culture, Mandarin Club members, led by Marilyn Wong, Catherine Hongo, Betty Yu, Kar Wai Lau, and advisor Mr. Alvin Nip, planned a Christmas luncheon and inter-school picnics.

Highly spirited, the Vietnamense Club competed in and won first place in the Turkey Trot and Song-fest. In the true Thanksgiving tradition, they donated their prize, a gift certificate for a turkey, to the Sophomore Class food drive. Through this and other events such as participation in school activities and picnics, they assisted students in adjusting to the American culture in the Hawaiian setting.

(TOP) LORI KATAHIRA leads the French and Spanish Club in singing "Oh Come, All Ye Faithful" in three languages. (ABOVE) DIVINA BALANCIO takes a whack at a pinata.

Language Clubs Create Understanding of Customs Through Activities

Open to students taking these language courses and to any other interested student, the Japanese, French and Spanish, and Chinese clubs planned numerous activities to introduce and create an understanding of native customs and languages.

To learn more about the Japanese culture, the Japanese Club took part in many school activities and community projects. The club sold stew at the Tiger Carnival and made decorations for a booth at the 30th Annual Cherry Blossom Festival. Winning third place, the beautifully decorated booth featured Okinawan dancing.

Experiencing the cultures of Spain and France secondhand, the French and Spanish Club observed cooking and wine demonstrations, learned cultural songs and dances, and hosted guest speakers from Tahiti. Meeting on Wednesdays and Thursdays, the club also enjoyed breaking pinatas and celebrating Mardi Gras.

Stressing unity among its members, the Chinese Club planned activities to get more acquainted and bring them closer to each other. These activities included rollerskaing at Da Rink, a Christmas party, a car-wash to raise money for the club, a and picnics.

Technical Clubs Cater to Students' Individual Interests

The Radio and Electronics Club also had a very busy year. A major concern was the use of the school's radio station, KH6NF. The club gave students the opportunity to obtain an amateur radio operator's license. The club also put emphasis on their newly acquired 'Apple' computer. They used it to send and receive messages by tele type. In the future they hope to adapt it for use with the Morse code. Aside from its uses with communication, it is also used to store the names of all the people they have contacted with the radio. This year they have talked to schools along the west coast and parts of Canada.

The McKinley Media and Photography Club was formed to instruct students in media-minded fields---mainly photography. The members of the club learned to photograph, develop, and print their own pictures. One main focus was for them to place in contests, so the members individually went out and used their own approach to shoot winning pictures. Their advisor, Mr. Dennis Sakata, said that their goal for next year is to expand their darkroom so they can do their own color pictures.

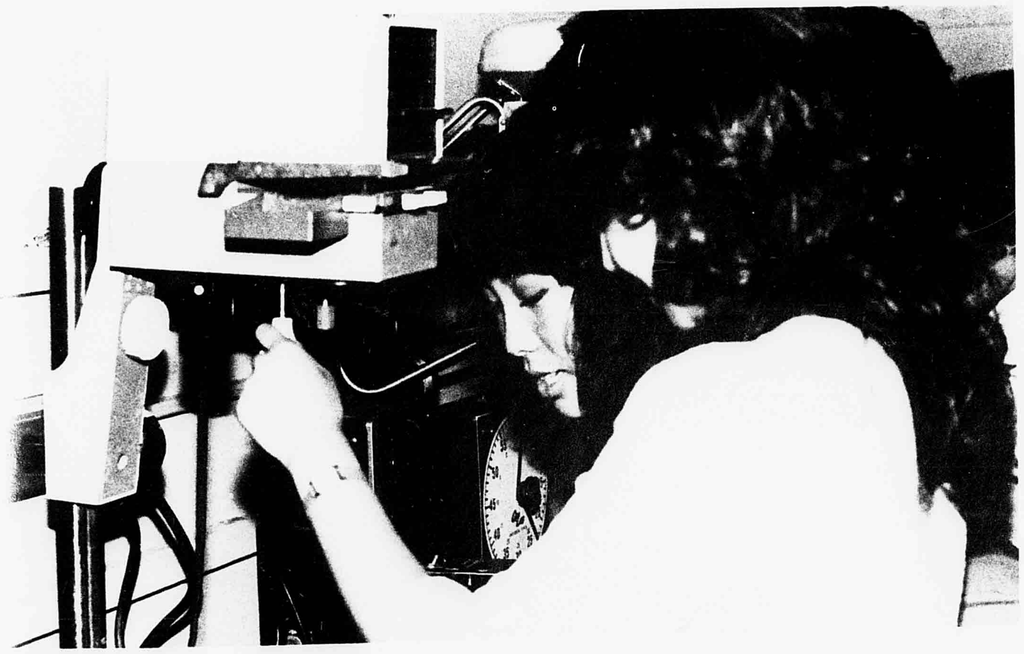

Although the number of students who actually participated in the Graphic Arts Club was a lot less than the number of students that signed up, those who stayed on were true assets. The club, led by President Don Castro, went on to design their own club jackets and their brilliant work on their carnival booth booth won them a tie in the booth decoration contest.

Barbell, Angler Clubs Focus On Fitness, Recreation

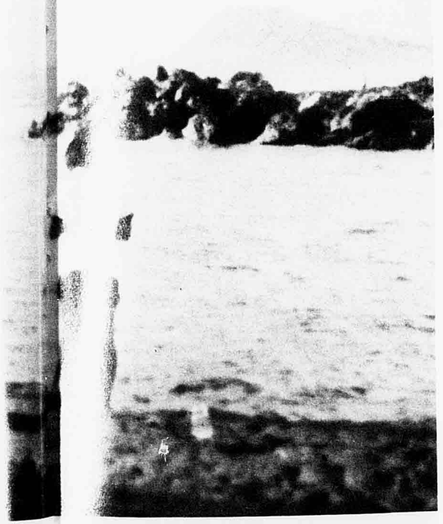

Although the McKinley Barbell Club has only been in existence for the last four years, it has become prestigious among other high school powerlifting organizations. Members worked out every day in the weight room behind the Multi-Purpose building and competed against each other in breaking records. Two of their recent alumni currently hold state and world records in their divisions. What the future holds in store for present members, no one knows, but the possibilities are endless. During spring vacation, they attended the State Teenage Powerlifting Championships.

This year, McKinley High School welcomed a new club to its campus. This club, advised by Mr. Arthur Kimura, Mr. Dennis Santiago, and Mr. David Nosse, was called the Angler Club. As its name suggests, the club was made up of students who enjoyed fishing. The main purpose of the club was to give students knowledge in subjects such as nets and net making, lures and lure making, and even fish taxidermy. The club fishes together once a month and they spotlighted the year with a fishing trip to the Big Island.

Community Relations Upheld by Civic Clubs

Many people think that the only thing that the Christian Fellowship Club does is study the Bible. Well, that was a major concern to them but this year, they were also busy with campus clean-up, fund-raising, carnival work, visiting homes for the elderly, and collecting toys for distribution among children in foster homes. Besides these activities, some members participated in a program which trained them for labor missions. The students were sent to two weeks of "boot camp" which prepared them for these two-month labor missions.

This year, the McKinley Friends of the Animals hosted many exciting activities. They camped overnight at the Honolulu Zoo as part of the Zoo Safari Program. They also held their ninth annual trip to the Big Island where they played and hiked in the snows of Mauna Kea.

In existence for seven years, the McKinley Sierra Club is the old st high school hiking organizatio in the state. The club has always rid- ed itself in teaching students le d- ership qualities, safety, first-aic and an understanding of Hawaii's n tural surroundings. This year, the c b went on numerous hikes, four mp- outs, and a week-long trip to t island of Hawaii where they hi d Mauna Kea. The McKinley Sie a Club is the oldest and they're s l going strong.

Similar Interests Bring McKinleyites Together

Clubs brought together students with similar interests. Likewise, the McKinley Business Club was formed to encourage students to participate in and learn about the business world. With this in mind, members participated in a Christmas gift wrapping at the downtown Liberty House and Kramers, and worked hard with the carnival's fishpond booth. Fun events included the Christmas Songfest, Turkey Trot, a hike to Diamond Head, and a trip to the Makaha Resort. At the close of the year, they had their annual banquet on May 29 at the Pacific Beach Hotel.

The GAA's ultimate goal was to provide opportunities for students to participate within the school community in sports and recreational activities for fun. The membership requirements were to be a responsible student (male or female) of McKinley, attend three GAA events consecutively, and to pay club dues.

Starting off the new year, on October 12, they had a welcome picnic at Ala Moana Park. Competing in school events, they participated in the Halloween Jamboree, Turkey Trot, Songfest, and carnival, selling hamburgers. As part of a community service, the GAAers walked for mankind and helped the Easter Seals. In May, the Awards Banquet, held to install new officers, closed the school year for the club.

The Future Homemakers of America, otherwise known as FHA, was founded on June 11, 1945. It was incorporated in the District of Columbia. That is why today, McKinley has such a club called the FHA. Each member assumed his or her roles in society through Home Economics Education in areas of personal growth. FHA members had a busy year attending many meetings and conferences. One of their major conferences was held on March 12-14, 1982, at Hilo. They also helped usher for the MTG's production of "Growing Up Naked."

They raised funds from selling sweet bread and chiffon cake tickets to help with the building of the new FHA headquarters in Renton, Virginia, for which over two million dollars was needed.

Service Clubs Lend Aid to Community, School

Among the many service clubs at McKinley, the Leo, Keywanettes, Key, and Junior Civitan clubs successfully aided the community and school this past year

Formerly sponsored by the Kalia Lions Club, the Leo Club came under the guidance of the Ala Moana Lions Club this year. Members undertook service projects such as serving refreshments at the Honolulu Marathon, and distributing candy and cookies to the children at Straub Hospital during the holidays holidays. Social gatherings included a luncheon meeting at the Wisteria restaurant for the officers, advisors, and Principal Sakamoto on January 9 and 10, they were at McInerny's Ala Moana, standing in front of the store passing out flyers to shoppers to advertise McKinley's Eighteenth Annual Carnival. Along with the Leo Club members were Miss McKinley and her court in a special appearance.

The Keywanettes specialized in service projects on campus and within within the community, carrying out their divisional theme, "Build a better tomorrow today." Members participated in the Ninth Annual Carole Kai Bed Race by selling balloons and working in the photo booth, making a commercial for the Mental Health Association, and ushering the Kuakini elderly people to the Neal Blaisdell Center for the Festival of Trees. In-school projects involved making New Year cards for practically all the clubs, folding the PTSA Pinion and decorating the campus for Black and Gold Day.

The Key Club developed initiative and leadership in its members. Their goal was to serve the school and community and to cooperate with the school principal and prepare for useful citizenship.

Key Club Week in November recognized the Key Club and informed students about the programs and service projects. During this time, they highlighted their theme, "Pursue tomorrow's potential." As one of the many traditions, the club washed the statue of President William McKinley for Black and Gold Day. Members also joined with the Keywanettes to fold the PTSA Pinions.

Developing initiative and leadership in youth to prepare them for citizenship was among the objectives of the Junior Civitan Club members.

Officers were President Chung Foon Lee, Vice-President Roberta Leung, Secretary Debbie Hsieh, Treasurer Alida Leon, and led by advisors Mrs. Higa and Miss Chun. Every month, the club participated in one event, such as on October 23, they entertained many senior citizens as they performed a Halloween skit at the Kaimuki Recreational Center.

Challenging and Fun Activities Fill Year for Science Clubs

For students interested in the fascinating field of science, the DRIPS, Chemistry, and Science clubs offered a year filled with challenging and fun activities.

Members of the Directed Research in Practical Science Club strove to enhance and promote interest in science among their classmates. The eleven members of this club worked hard on projects for the Science Fair in February. Several won first and second prizes and went on to compete in the State Fair in March. To further encourage the interest in science, the DRIPS Club hosted seminars featuring guest speakers throughout the year.

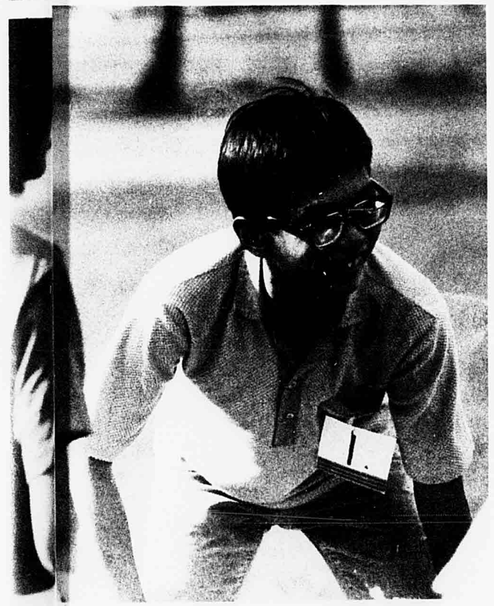

To help students with their scinece science courses, the Chemistry Club held workshops during lunch and afterschool. Promoting interest and understanding in chemistry, the club also encouraged the development of character in students by helping those those interested in the field to further their knowledge and still have fun. Members went on picnics and hikes, participated in carnival, and took part in the Chemistry Fair at the U.H.

Providing services for the science department and the community, the Science Club met every Thursday to plan activities. These activities included an interisland week-end camp and supervision at the Science Fair.

Scholastically Oriented Clubs Stress Academic Excellence, Enjoyment

Academic excellence along with enjoyment was stressed in the Speech, Math, and Literary clubs, and the National Honor Society.

Competing in speech festivals was the main objective of the Speech Club. Members participated in tournaments with other schools in Hawaii, and learned different techniques of public speaking. To prepare for these events, the Speech Club members met regularly to practice their pieces.

The Math Club, which supports the Math Team, also held various social functions throughout the year such as a Halloween costume party and a Christmas party. The club also screened potential Math Team members by sponsoring a mini-math meet for intermediate feeder schools in May.

The main purpose of the Literary Club was to produce a literary publication that showcased student works. A contest was held in January to recruit entries in writing, art, and photography for the magazine. Club members judged the entries and put the magazine together.

Strict requirements limited the number of people who could join the National Honor Society, but many students worked hard and succeeded in qualifying for the club. The purpose of the club was to recognize students in leadership, character, and scholarship, and to serve the school and the community. Members of NHS participated in monthly quiz bowls throughout the year. By the end of the year, McKinley was ranked first among Hawaii's high schools.

Music Oriented Groups Entertain School, Community

Aside from the many social, academic, and service clubs, there were three groups of very talented, music-oriented students here at McKinley. Combined together, these three organizations provided the school and the community with fabulous entertainment.

Consisting of over a hundred members, the McKinley High School Band played at school activities such as pep rallies and football games. In addition, theyperformed at the PTSA meetings, the winter and spring spring concerts, and at Ala Moana during the Christmas vacation to welcome Santa. Led by band director Mr. Carlton Gushiken, President Roslyn Sakumoto and her officers, the band followed the motto of "Music Begins Where Rainbows End."

The choir, with approximately forty students, offered enriching cultural and musical entertainment for the school and community. They were involved in school concerts, caroling at shopping centers and hotels during Christmas, and publicizing our annual Tiger Carnival with Miss McKinley. Under the direction of Miss Puanani Howell and the assistance of Roy Cacacho, the choir shared another year of multi-cultural music with us.

The last group of music-oriented students is the McKinley Theatre Group, more widely known as the MTG. They were responsible for the annual productions, which attracted hundreds of students from McKinley feeder schools as well as the outside public. This year, they have performed "Growing Up Naked" and "Bird of Paradise". In addition, several of our fellow classmates starred in "The Wiz", a production consisting of casts from Kaimuki, Kalani, and McKinley. The leaders of MTG were Mr. James Nakamoto and President Sydney Howland.

Publications, Quill & Scroll Strive For Excellence

McKinley's newswriting and yearbook classes served as a training ground for future journalists. On-the-job experience in reporting, writing, and layout was gained as the Publications staff worked to bring students the Daily Pinion and the Black and Gold. The four newswriting and two yearbook classes, under constant pressure to meet deadlines, have ably produced under the advisorship of Mrs. May Lee Chung during the first semester, and of Mr. Peter Resurrection after long-time advisor Mrs. Chung decided to take a much-deserved break for the rest of the year.

Throughout the year, the invaluable assistance of Mr. Charles Nakamura and his Graphic Arts students in printing the Daily Pinion had once again made its status as 'Hawaii's only high school daily newspaper' a reality.

Keeping the high standards of quality in McKinley Publications were members of the Quill and Scroll, a national organization honoring achievers in Yearbook and in Newswriting. The Quill and Scroll's demands for excellence are what McKinley strives for and succeeds in, year after year.

SPORTS

Many McKinleyites excelled in activities of strength, endurance, and skill. McKinley's sports department was an outlet for students to participate in physical competition, while developing the qualities of sportsmanship with those of ability. Cooperation, fairness, and camaraderie were as vital a part of McKinley's athletes as their top-notch performances. The McKinley Pep Squads served as an important link in the many sports events throughout the year, serving as an inspiration to school spirit as well as an example of the best qualities in a team unit.

Outstanding Defense Holds Rivals at Bay, Retrieves Ball Repeatedly

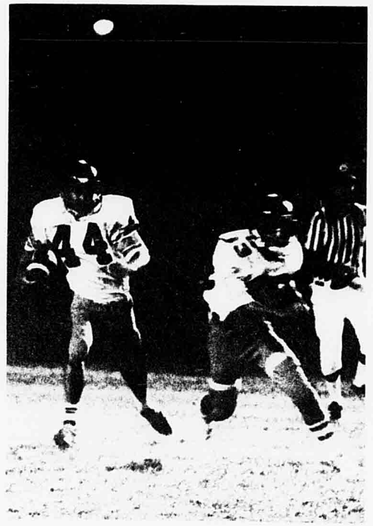

Entering the 1981 season, the varsity football team quickly captured the attentions, and hearts, of every McKinley student and many a football fan.

A large part of the Tigers' success was the teamwork within the offensive team. Benson Maafala, the quarterback/defensive back/signal-caller/punter/placekicker/kick returner had 1081 yards of total offense due to the effectiveness of offensive linemen such as Dickson Falefia and the rest of the Tiger offensive team. Benson and Dickson, both seniors, were elected to the Honolulu Star Bulletin's OIA East All-Star team.

Although McKinley's Tigers lost the OIA East game to the Castle Knights, the team finished the season with a winning 6-2-1 record and the Honolulu District Championship.

Tiger Offense Crucial to Suc ess, Helps Push Team to 6-2-1 Record

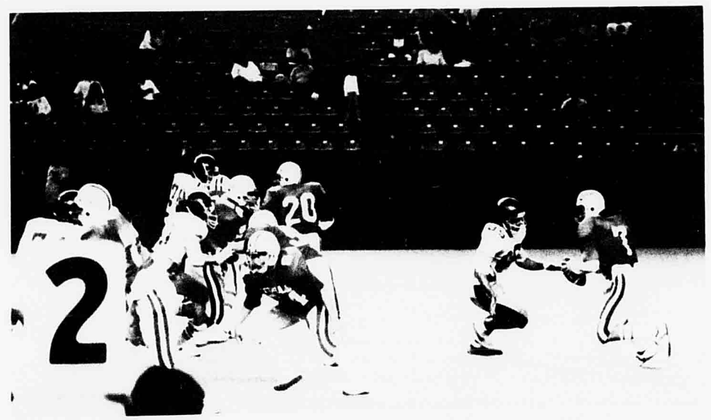

McKinley's varsity football team could not have done as well as they did without the outstanding strength and endurance of the defensive squad. Holding such teams as the Kaiser Cougars and the Farrington Governors at bay and intercepting the ball countless times against rivals earned the Tiger defense a formidable reputation. Examples of the Tiger defense's ability were junior Kaiser Iuta and senior Gaylen Aleka who were elected to the Honolulu Star Bulletin's OIA East All-Star team.

Junior Varsity District Champions Disqualified by DOE Ruling

The junior varsity football team plunged head on into the 1981 season with high hopes, only to have those hopes crushed by a technicality. After eight games, the Junior Tigers had captured the Honolulu District Championship, were heavily favored for the OIA East title, and were in the running for the OIA Championship.

At this time, Kaimuki High School initiated a protest over the eligibility of players who did not attend the McKinley feeder schools. The DOE ruled, after much deliberation over an unclear bylaw, that the jayvees forfeit all their games, dropping their record to 0-8-0.

The players took this blow as men, and will be back next year with undaunted spirits.

Teamwork Aids Girl Spikers in Rebuilding Year

A building year for the Girls Varsity Spikers, the team placed third in the Honolulu District behind the Roosevelt Roughriders and the Kaimuki Bulldogs. Competition was fierce this year and third place was a well-deserved position.

Coach Kenneth Rowe and team Captain Rhona Halmos inspired teamwork and coordination among the squad. This positive effect was evident in all the Spikers' games, as they gave every rival a competition to remember.

Next year promises to be a particularly successful season for the volleyball team.

Lack of Players Handicaps Rookie Spikers

Captain Michael Mills, under the guidance of head coach Anthony Paiva, led a team with only two other returnees through the 1981 volleyball season.

In his second year of training the McKinley Spikers, Coach Paiva scheduled tiring but beneficial workouts which emphasized the quick reflexes required in the demanding sport of volleyball.

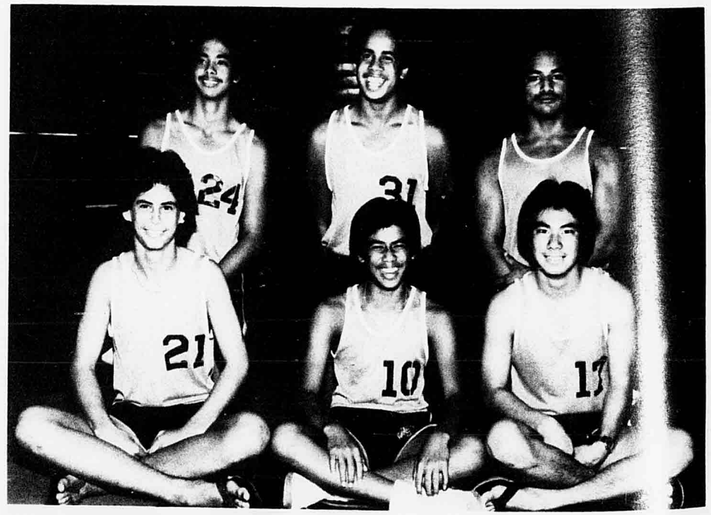

Playing an exhausting succession of ten games, the eight-man team showed their spirit and managed a third place district finish despite gruelling opposition.

Cross Country Team's Best Season Ever

Varsity Girls, Boys Take Dual District Titles

Capturing dual district titles, the Girls and Boys Cross Country Harriers finished the 1981 season with 26-2 and 27-3 OIA records respectively.

The varsity girls successfully defended their 3rd place State finish. Captains Sophia Arcayna and Sylvia Shim inspired solidarity among their peers. And, making their presence felt, the junior varsity had many fine runners. Jill Maeshiro, a sophomore, was ranked on par with the varsity throughout the year.

Not to be outdone, Captain Jonathan Lyau and the varsity boys secured the district title during one of the most competitive years ever. The boys were edged by the Kaiser Cougars for the eastern division crown due to illnesses which plagued the team sporadically. Nevertheless, the boys refused to be beaten again by their arch-rivals and were the 3rd place OIA team in the state meet.

Sluggers Dominate District for Second Year

Hard work and determination were the keys to another successful slugger season. Under the leadership of senior Lynne Motoyama and Jody Gardner, the young team dominated the Honolulu District for the second straight year and walked off the field with the district crown.

Utilizing the advice of Head Coach Anita Malama and her assistants Chico Miyashiro, Steven Yee, and Harold Joyce, the sluggers ended the season with 11 wins and 3 losses to their OIA record.

The twelve girls who will return next year are looking forward to eventually competing in the state tournament, which has always been a goal for the girls. This year, their dreams were rudely shattered by a lucky Kaiser team and undefeated Kailua.

Success was not limited to the males, as the six members of the girls team finished the season with a 6-2 OIA record.

Versatile Baseball Team Takes on Specialized Opponents in Trying Season

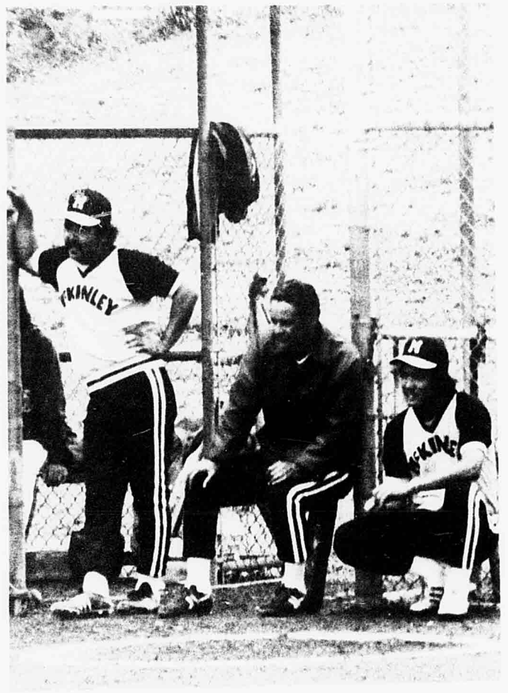

Consisting of many experienced players, the varsity baseball team's ranks were further strengthened by additional junior varsity material. The sluggers began their season extremely slowly, needing time to pull together as a team, but eventually ended the year with sparkling form.

Throughout the year, the boys encountered many schools that were so well-manned that several starting pitchers could be seen warming up before a game. However, the McKinley team's versatility enabled them to be independent of one key individual.

Some fine performances were delivered by many players, but the key element in the Tigers' play was the team effort.

Rough Season for Jayvee Sluggers

Beating the top-ranked Castle team early in the season, the Junior Varsity sluggers' immediate future seemed hopeful. But, due to the line-up's small size and inexperience, the baseball team had extreme difficulty in remaining unified.

Many members were moved up to the varsity team after the J.V. contests ended. These players found that playing the J.V. season helped them get in shape for the more taxing varsity games.

Boys Denied Contention for Championships, Girls Savor Victories in Second Year

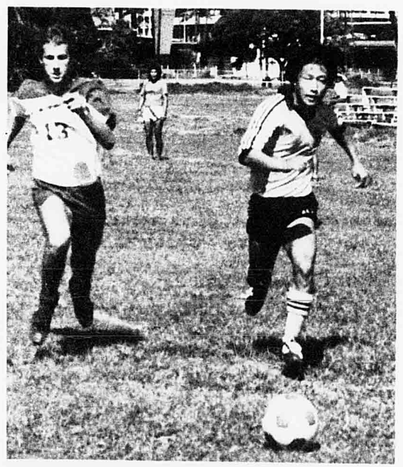

The McKinley Boys Soccer team began this year's season with high hopes only to have those hopes dashed by the consequences involving the disqualification of a player. The Kickers racked up a 4-2-0 record two-thirds of the way into the season. Yet because a player was overage, their record was revised to 0-6-0. Nevertheless, the boys completed the season despite hopeless odds.

The season looked rather grim for the girls soccer team. With only one goal scored against Kaiser after the first two matches, the girls thereafter pulled themselves together and experienced a three game winning streak. The girls kickers ended the season 6-6-0, their best season yet in their second year of existence.

Strong Offense Gives Varsity Cagers Respectable Ranking

Although starting off the year a bit slowly, the Tiger Cagers finished the 1982 season unexpectedly high in the OIA Honolulu District placings. McKinley was expected to finish third from the bottom, but through teamwork and outstanding individual performances the cagers ended their play third from the top.

The team used a strong offense that resulted in many high scoring games. In addition to this, the cagers relied upon many 'last minute' plays that gave them several games by a single point.

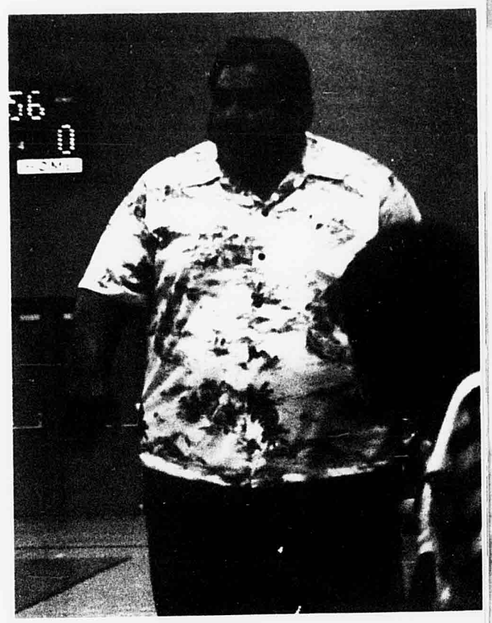

Coaches Ernest Nihi and Lui Faleafine truly deserve recognition as do their fine players.

anned by hot new talent, in addition to some second year players, the junior varsity cagers burned up the court with their aggressive yet prudent style.

Many late season wins gave the boys Honolulu District Runner-Up status and commanded well deserved respect from other schools. Head Coach Ivan Celebrado commented that the base of next year's varsity team would be reinforced greatly as the junior varsity athletes move up.

Even tight competition was no problem for the cool and collected cagers who sometimes had to prevail over a halftime deficit. Indeed, the future looks bright for the 1983 basketball teams of McKinley.

Girls Jayvee Cagers Honed to Fine I lge;

At first with rough and imperfected style, the J.V. Basketball team began the season. Though inexperienced and slightly lacking in height, the McKinley Junior Girls cagers energetically scrambled over the court and by the end of the season had defeated many top OIA teams. This season served to whet the appetites of the girls who will move up to the varsity team next year.

Lack of Pool Fails to Hinder Diligent Swimmers

Deprived of a swimming pool at McKinley in which to practice, the dauntless swimmers, nevertheless, held daily practices at Roosevelt High School's facility.

Through determination and a good attitude which pervaded the season, many individuals won honors. Yet the team spirit was still a vital part of competition.

This spirit was seen in a boys relay team who swam in the HHSAA State Meet, and also in the individuals who swam for ribbons, medals, and personal satisfaction.

Varsity Grapplers Wrestle to 5-2 Record; J.V. in Rebuilding Year

"Although wrestling is an individual sport, everyone on the team encouraged and helped each other out when someone was feeling down,"said Co-captain Kyle Muranaka. "In this way, we helped others and improved ourselves as well." With this attitude, the Varsity Wrestling team emerged with a 5-2 win-loss record in the season, losing only to Kaiser and Kahuku. This attitude also led most of the wrestlers to place in the Eastern Division Championship. Co-captain David Saito and Stacey Yamada both placed second in their weight divisions.

It was a rebuilding year for the J.V. squad, as lack of a full team and experience hindered them throughout the season. However, the young team gained experience for the coming years.

Both teams were guided by Head Coach Leigh Tonai and Assistant Coach Keith Matsumoto. Also helping were alumni Vernon Endo, Randal Kubo, Paul Saito, and Henry Wong.

Young Netters Learn Basic Skills, Gain Experience

Both Boys Coach Richard Yaginuma and Girls Coach Leonard Loventhal guided teams with many first year players. Therefore, despite the presence of several experienced people, practices were mainly focused on basic skills. The young tennis team went up against such tough teams as Kaiser, Kailua, and Leilehua. From these defeats though, the team gained valuable experience, as the sophomores looked forward to a good season in their senior year.

Among the second or third year netters, Donna Ama and Karen Masuda awed their opponents with their brand of doubles tennis. Ranked second in the state from last year's tourney, Donna and Karen again qualified to play in the HHSAA State Tournament.

Individual Performances Determine Track Team's Seasonal Standings

Blessed with talent, but unfortunately not with numbers, McKinley's girls and boys track teams ran, jumped, hurdled, and leapt to the challenge.

Individual achievements were more important than ever, as the team often could not seriously compete as a whole. Jonathan Lyau and Farrell Kanoho topped the boys' roster and Stacey Yuen Sylvia Shim, and Sophia Arcayna headed the girls team.

STUDENT LIFE

o give a breath of fresh air to the daily grind of class life, students had a chance to get together and have a good time. Through informally hanging out together or through the number of activities McKinley offered, students enjoyed being part of what is known as Tiger Ohana---the feeling of belonging to the best in both work and play.

HOMECOMING:

Parade, Jamboree, Dinner, Dance, Bonfire Enhance Tiger Victory

McKinley's 1981-82 Homecoming festivities ushered in many differences. The October 31 game against the Farrington Governors culminated a Homecoming that introduced new traditions, while keeping the spirit of the old.

Festivities began with the announcement of the banner, door-decorating and float competitions, breaking away from the annual dummy competition. Clubs and class levels toiled diligently over their entries. Band entries for the door and float competition paid off, copping first place, as did the Graphic Arts Club banner. An annual parade was initiated to display the various entries on October 29. The same afternoon, another first was initiated--the inclusion of the Halloween Jamboree into the Homecoming celebration due to the Homecoming game being held on Halloween night.

October 30 was the date for the Homecoming Pep Rally, Dinner, Bonfire, and Dance. The Homecoming court was introduced, as alumni returned 'home' to McKinley to fan the celebrational fervor.

Finally, while everyone else trick-or-treated, McKinleyites gathered at Roosevelt Field to support the Tigers against the Governors. An early evening rainfall failed to dampen Tiger spirit as McKinley triumphed over Farrington 7-0.

As ever, Tiger spirit rode high long after Homecoming '81 was over; it was hoped that the new traditions would prevail...

MISS MCKINLEY

Pageant Climaxes Hard Work, Preparation

The climax of weeks of hard work, after school sessions, and grueling rehearsals in preparation for the 18th Annual Miss McKinley Pageant was reached on November 21 at the M.M. Scott Auditorium. Fourteen lovely senior girls, each cherishing the hope of becoming Miss McKinley, anxiously awaited judging in poise, beauty, speech, personality, outstanding character references, and grade point average by distinguished members of the community.

Co-emcees Miss Chinatown-Hawaii 1982 Darlene Pang and Junior Miss first runner-up, Colleen Izumi, both former students of McKinley, helped to set the mood of the pageant. After the intermission, a display of McKinley's talent was put out by the MTG with a preview of their up-coming musical "Growing Up Naked".

Contestants were not the only ones who had put many extra hours to ensure the success of the pageant; Miss Gaile Sykes and all the hard working volunteers were credited with the success of the pageant.

At last, the moment that all had worked and waited for, the announcement of Miss McKinley and her court. The titles of Miss Congeniality and Miss Public Relations were both awarded to Darci Terada. A glowing Toni Lynn Chun was crowned Miss McKinley by Principal Richard Sakamoto. During their reign, Miss McKinley and her court handled the public relations for the school and also helped to promote the Tiger Carnival.

SOCIALS: Dances, Banquets, Proms Capture Memories of Year

McKinley's social functions were consistently memorable affairs to the students who loyally attended them. From the various dances and events put together by the Student Council to the class banquets and proms, the socials have assisted in making the acquaintance of McKinley students between each other and in sharing the unforgettable moments of the school year.

The Welcome Back and Homecoming dances in September and October made the transition back to school easier with the offering of good music and good times. As the year progressed, affairs such as at the February 20th Senior Dinner at Paradise Park and the March 20th Sophomore Banquet at the Hawaiian Regent provided class unity.

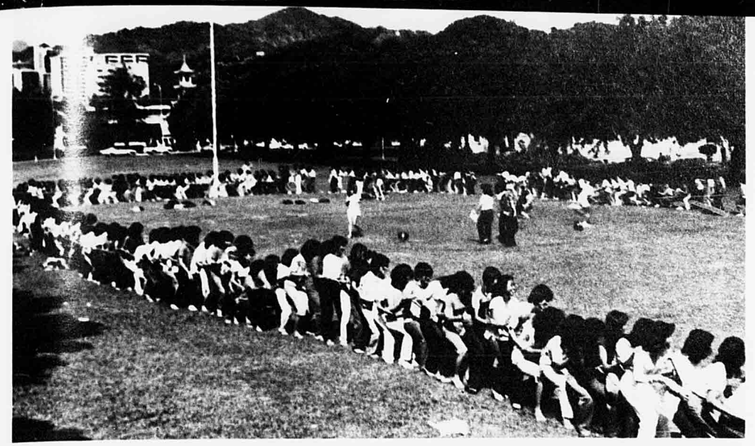

The special events of the year were the proms that were held. Elegance and entertainment combined with the Christmas season for "Winter Enchantment," held on December 18 at the Hawaiian Regent Ballroom. A semi-formal affair, the prom, with the music of Serenity, helped bring in holiday cheer. For juniors, the Junior Prom was the foremost social affair of the year. Held at the Princess Kaiulani Ainahau Ballroom on April 23, "Between the Laughter and the Tears" offered enjoyment and intimacy. May 18 was the date of the Senior Prom at the Hilton Hawaiian Village Coral Ballroom; the last major social for the class of 1982 and a truly special gathering for seniors which attained to inspire its theme of "Treasured Memories."

The year closed out with a final dance in May, dedicated to the graduating seniors, celebrating the arrival of summer and filled with the memories of the year gone by.

TRADITIONS: New Approaches to Events Help Establish School Individuality, Identity

The long history of McKinley has led to many traditional events that have helped to established the individual character of the school and of its students. New touches to the time-honored practices have served to accomodate students with the changing times. 1982 was no exception as old traditions were restored or re-evaluated to appeal to the student body.

The celebration of William McKinley's birthday in January "emphasized tradition and feeling for our school instead of concentrating on its history," according to Black and Gold Day Chairperson Kashmira Pestonjee. To this end, essay and poster contests were held to give students a chance to express their feelings about McKinley, and the campus was decorated with yellow ribbons to further promote school spirit.

After an absence of many years, the Leroy Mendonca Race was resumed in February. The around-the-school race was brought back to commemorate the memory of alumnus and Korean War hero Leory Mendonca. The participation of the track and cross country teams and Student Council showed a promising new beginning to a long-standing event.

Differences were also evident in the Crazy Week festivities in March. 1982 featured the tri-annual Faculty Play, and an attempt to break the lap-sitting record established by McKinley in 1980. The standard "dress-up" days were continued, as students initated tourists, favorite teachers, and other curiosities.

Standing traditions such as the Halloween Jamboree, the Turkey Trot in November, and the Christmas Songfest promoted spirited competition between organizations in order to help unite the student body and to develop, collectively, a school identity that McKinleyites share alone.

ASSEMBLIES:

Assemblies, Rallies Promote Spirit, Entertain

Assemblies and pep rallies played a vital role in promoting Tiger spirit as well as being a welcome source of entertainment. It also provided students as well as teachers a break from the steady routine of school.

The Welcome Back Assembly, the first of many more, was instrumental in welcoming back juniors and seniors, and also helped to ease sophomores into McKinley's student life. The Winter Prom Assembly saw students modeling glamorous evening wear provided by Silk Degree and Tuxedo Junction, all of which prepared students for the upcoming Winter Prom. In honor o President William McKinley, the Black and Gold Assembly was one of McKinley's many traditions implemented by hard-working students and advisors. On a lighter tone, the Crazy Week Assembly brought out the strange and even weird personalities on campus. The second annual KIKI Brown Bags to Stardom Assembly showcased the many hidden talents of McKinley's students. Winner of the contest, Sydney Howland, won herself a spot on the KIKI Brown Bags to Stardom II album and a chance t go on to the statewide competiti .

Pep rallies were few this year, b the spirit and energy that generat through those few made each ver special. Pep rallies not only help to support McKinley's athletes i their upcoming sports competitio , it offered students outlets in displaying their Tiger spirit in the sp it competitions.

Trends: McKinley Reflects Current Fads, Crazes

Being situated in a central location of metropolitan Honolulu, McKinley High School was a focal point for many of the current trends. Students could not help but be caught up in the various fads and crazes that changed with each new year. McKinley students were reflections of the present trends in fashion, entertainment, and other fads that were influencing the lifestyles of islanders as well as the rest of the nation.

In 1981-82, women's fashions were dominated by such styles as the casual sailor look and striped blouses. Knickers, pedal pushers, and culottes were a "must". To set off the complete mod look, metallic footwear and accessories complimented many wardrobes.

But women were not the only ones that were keeping up with the current fashions. Men were also caught up with Izod-Lacostes of every shape, size, and color, which were ever present on campus. These included sweaters, pull-over shirts, ties, socks, caps, key rings, and almost anything to which a little alligator could be applied. When speaking of fads in men's fashions, the ever popular Members Only jackets could not be left out.

Entertainment also went through its phases of popularity. Musical artists such as Hall and Oates, Olivia Newton-John, Kim Carnes, Journey, and Rick James soared to the top of the pop charts as music lovers bought up all the popular albums. Another big thing in music included the local fad of 98 Rock. There were as many 98 Rock items around as there were Izods. Movies that made a major impact in 1981-82 were such blockbusters as "On Golden Pond," "Raiders of the Lost Ark," "Superman II," "Taps," and "Reds."

Other popular fads were Garfield the cat, different variations of the Rubik's cube, electronic hand games, and feathered barrettes.

Culminating the Crazy Week festivities was the Faculty Play, a variety show held once every three years by the teachers and staff of McKinley, for presentation to the student body. Directed jointly by Miss Sharrie Lee, Miss Jean Matsuo and Mrs. Meg Uehara, the 'Tiger Collection' was full of music, dancing, and comedy, and to the tune of 'The Rainbow Connection' the musical question, 'Why are there so many teachers in teaching' was asked.

Among the musical numbers were fast-tempo performances to 'Physical,' done in aerobic-dance style, the 'Huli Huli Chicken Chant,' and the hilarious punk-rock dance to 'Rock Lobster' by the Senior Seniorettes. The mellower selections included a classy hula to 'Pua Hone' and music and singing by Mr. Peter 'Res-surace' Resurrection and Ms. Puanani 'Happily Hapai' Howell.

Comedy skits were covered with the Business Department's look at a typical day in typing class, where nothing can go right for the teacher played by Mrs. Jerrianne Edralin. The climax of the show was reached with the riotous enactment of Frank DeLima's hit song 'Lucille.'

Students clapped, whistled and cheered on their favorite teachers as they performed. The play was taken well by its audience, the worthy result of the time and effort put into the show by the spirited, fun-loving faculty.

Carnival: Determination, Effort Result In Successful Event

The losses of last year's McKinley Carnival prompted precautions to insure a better turnout for 1982. An extensive pre-sale of carnival tickets was started as early as November, as clubs and organizations competed to sell their share of tickets. The pre-sale served to commit carnival-goers to attend, as well as to help publicize the carnival.

As February approached, the clubs running the game booths worked on decorating their booths to the theme 'Tiger's Ark,' with the decorations of the Literary Club and the Graphic Arts Club tied for top honors. The sight of McKinley students at the Lanikila Health Center in Liliha became common as food booth workers got their Tuberculin clearances.

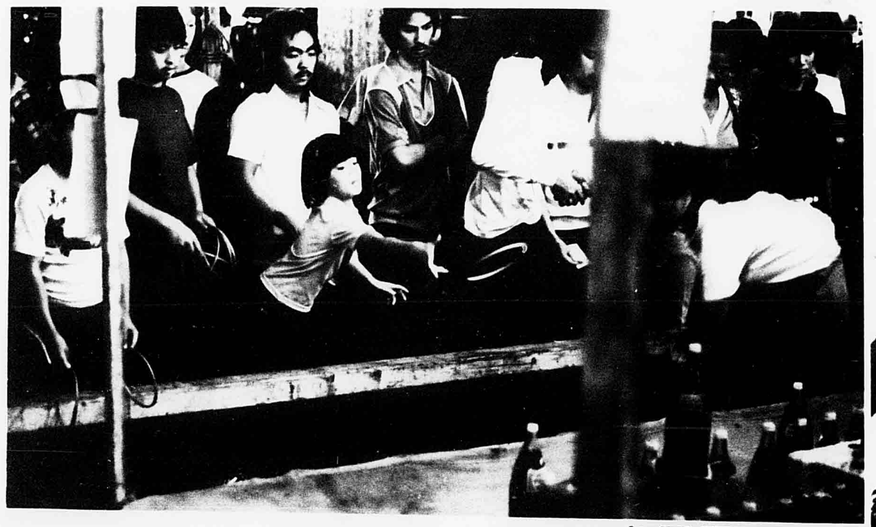

Appearing at the opening of the carnival was Governor George Ariyoshi and alumni from six decades of McKinley graduates. Reverend Abraham Akaka delivered the annual blessing ceremony and asked for a moment of silence in the memory of ROTC instructor Sgt. Dan Abella, who had just passed away. Reverend Akaka, Governor Ariyoshi and Miss McKinley Toni Lynn Chun then untied the traditional maile lei at the forefront of the carnival grounds, signifying the opening of the carnival.

A dance, country store, white elephant, baked goods, produce and the Little Miss McKinley and Little Tiger contests offered a variety of bargains and entertainment for carnival-goers as a large turnout showed up for both nights. The carnival grossed over $84,000, a vast improvement over last year's carnival grosses.

News Headlines Reflect Year of New Frontiers...

World, national, and local events spanning the months of the school year alternately shocked and overjoyed people all over the world.

In August 1981, sighs of satisfaction were heard all over over the world as England's Prince Charles and Lady Diana Spencer were wed in an extravagant style, with many dignitaries in attendance, as well as coverage via television, newspapers, and magazines. The royal wedding brought temporary joy to a nation suffering from many social and economic problems.

News of President Anwar Sadat's assassination in October shocked and horrified world leaders and people who had admired him. Egypt's peace-loving leader was gunned down in fifty seconds of terror and violence. That same month, Sandra Day O'Conner became the first woman to serve on the United States Supreme Court.

Throughout the year, Poland appeared in the headlines again and again as Lech Walesa led his people in a Solidarity movement that brought hope into the hearts of many.

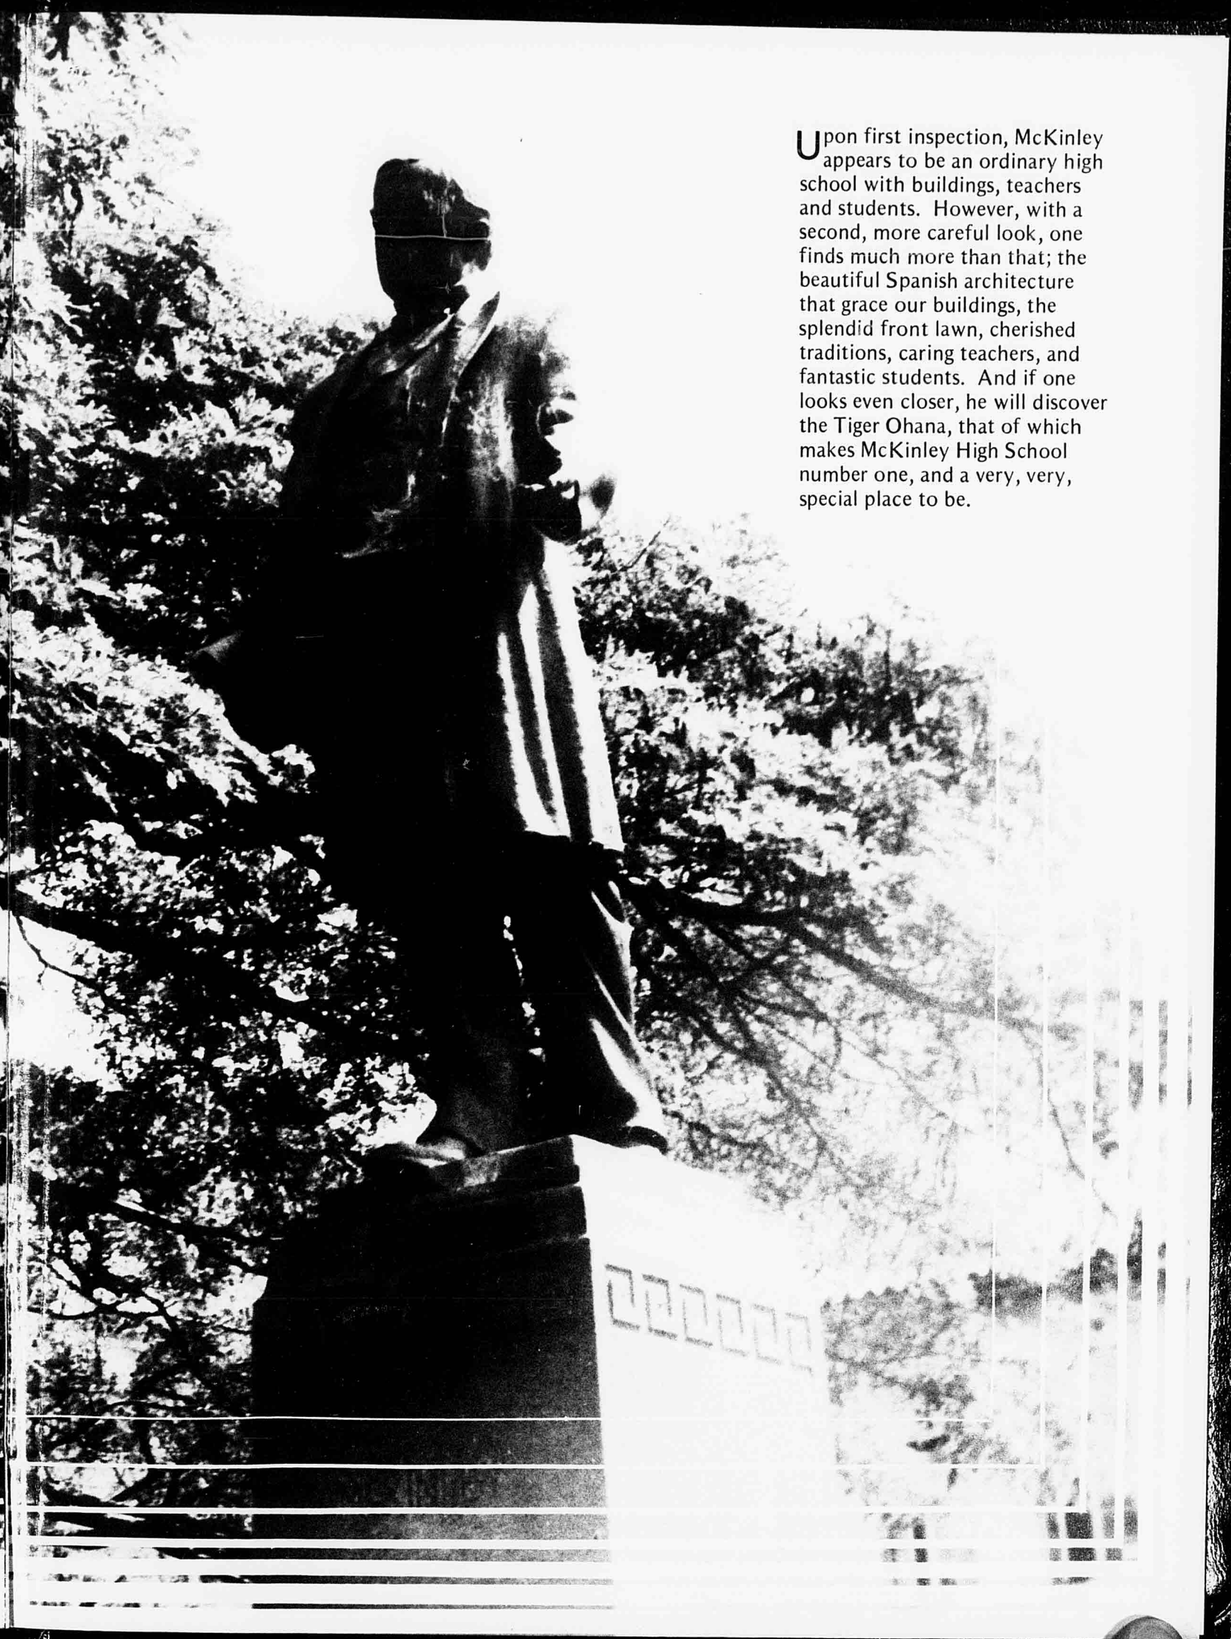

Meanwhile, the mainlanders were contending with fierce winter storms and record-low temperatures being the cause of a number of deaths and damaging many crops. For Hawaii, January ushered in exceptionally heavy rains that flooded the islands, setting all-time low temperatures for some days. As February brought back sunny skies and the mainland was still in a deep freeze, a tourist industry that was in a slump boomed, as hotels quickly filled up once more.

February also brought the Valentine's wedding of Governor George Ariyoshi's daughter, Lynn, to Rick Takemoto, with the mood reminiscent of the British Royal Wedding, with many of Hawaii's dignitaries in attendance.

Reaganomics and financial pressures worried many Americans in the latter months of the school year. Promises of better times gave people hope for the future of Hawaii and America.

...ond Look Reveals a Special Place
...que People, Traditions, History

Upon first inspection, McKinley appears to be an ordinary high school with buildings, teachers and students. However, with a second, more careful look, one finds much more than that; the beautiful Spanish architecture that grace our buildings, the splendid front lawn, cherished traditions, caring teachers, and fantastic students. And if one looks even closer, he will discover the Tiger Ohana, that of which makes McKinley High School number one, and a very, very, special place to be.

BLACK AND GOLD

Black and gold is waving,
Boys we're back of you.
Play your way to victory,
We'll be ever true.
Eager eyes are watching,
Hearts are beating fast,
For McKinley's honor,
Fight, boys to the last.

THE McKINLEY ALMA MA

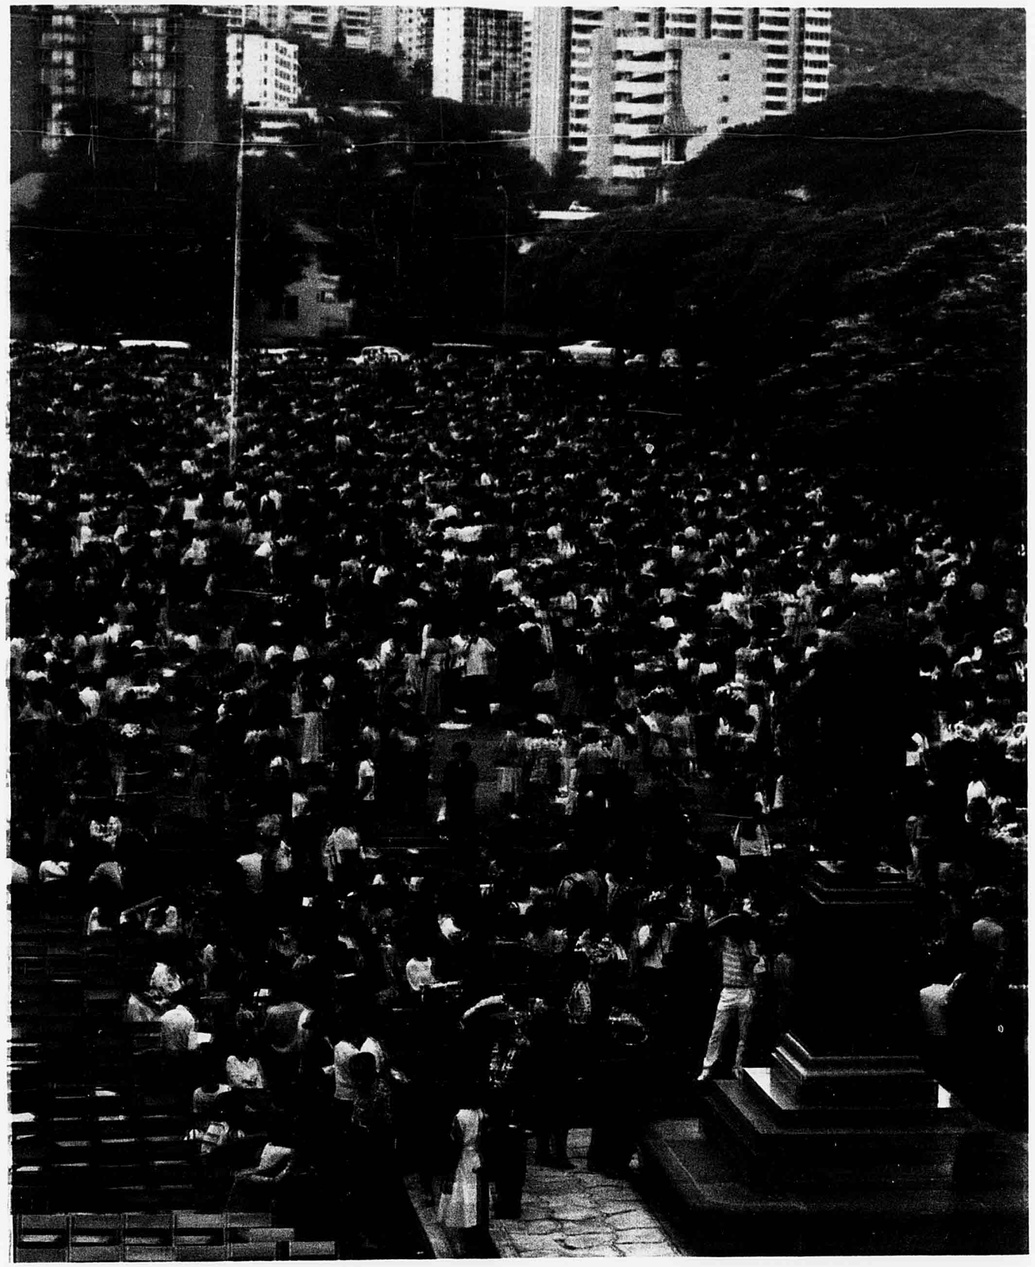

Hail McKinley, hail
Hail McKinley, hail
Thy sons and daughters
Sing thy praise,
And loyal serve thee all their days
Alma Mater, thee alone we love
And thy colors floating high above
Hail McKinley, hail
All hail, all hail.

Dedication

For 20 years, the Black and Gold and Daily Pinion staffs have been advised by Mrs. May Lee Chung. Her dedication to good journalism has made the Pinion and Black and Gold outstanding publications. The Daily Pinion has gained the status of being the only daily high school newspaper in Hawaii. Without her guidance and support, deadlines would never have been met; and the quality of the yearbooks would not have been as superior.

Mrs. Chung has tried to impart the value of journalism to every student she has worked with and to instill pride in the finished product. Her love of and devotion to her work and her students has made an important contribution to their lives.

It is to her that this book is dedicated. Thank you, Mrs. Chung.

Tree Symbolizes the Development of McKinley

Life at McKinley is much like a newly planted tree. At first, one arrives foreign to his new surroundings. Then slowly, day by day, he becomes a part of it. With each passing day, and with careful nurturing, the student grows into a better individual. He takes in everything he learns, becoming more responsible and mature in his attitude and decisions, and learns to adapt to his changing environment.

A look around the campus revealed such changes. A new air-conditioned library with spacious glassed-in vistas represented the carrying out of the master plan for the improvement of McKinley. Versatile computers which will play a big part in the future were used by the math, industrial arts, business, science, and career counseling departments. All around the school, new faces of faculty members and students were seen, and the arrival of the sophomores added a variety of personalities to the student body. Planning with the students in mind, the Student Council, class levels, and clubs experimented with new activities to liven up the year.

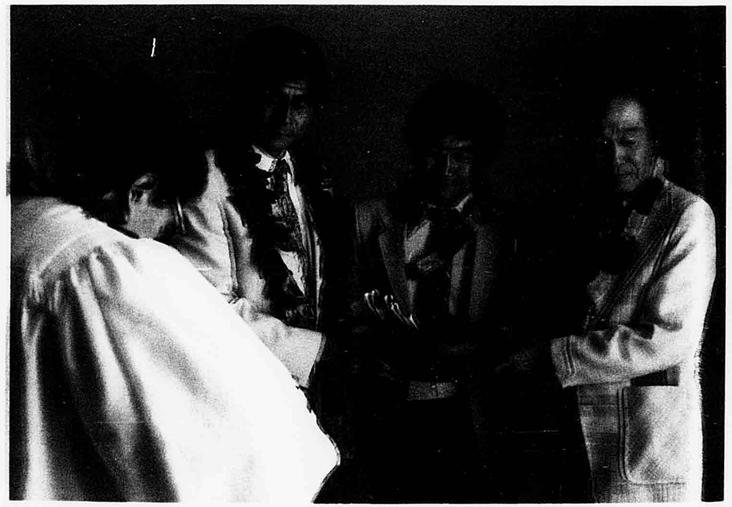

Seniors were faced with new requirements and the achievement of the Hawaii State Test of Essential Competencies for graduation.

These changes lead the student toward new and different directions. For the seniors who graduate, exciting times are ahead of them as they gird themselves for the challenges of the "real" world. For the underclassmen, there is the anticipation of their next year at McKinley and their growth towards their day of commencement.

Fortunately, growth does not stop with graduation. One should always find himself growing and learning everyday. That is what PROGRESSION is all about.

Lazy Summer Days Become Memories in September

August...and a new school year closed in. Many students wished for "just a little more time." There never seemed to be enough time to do all you wanted to do.

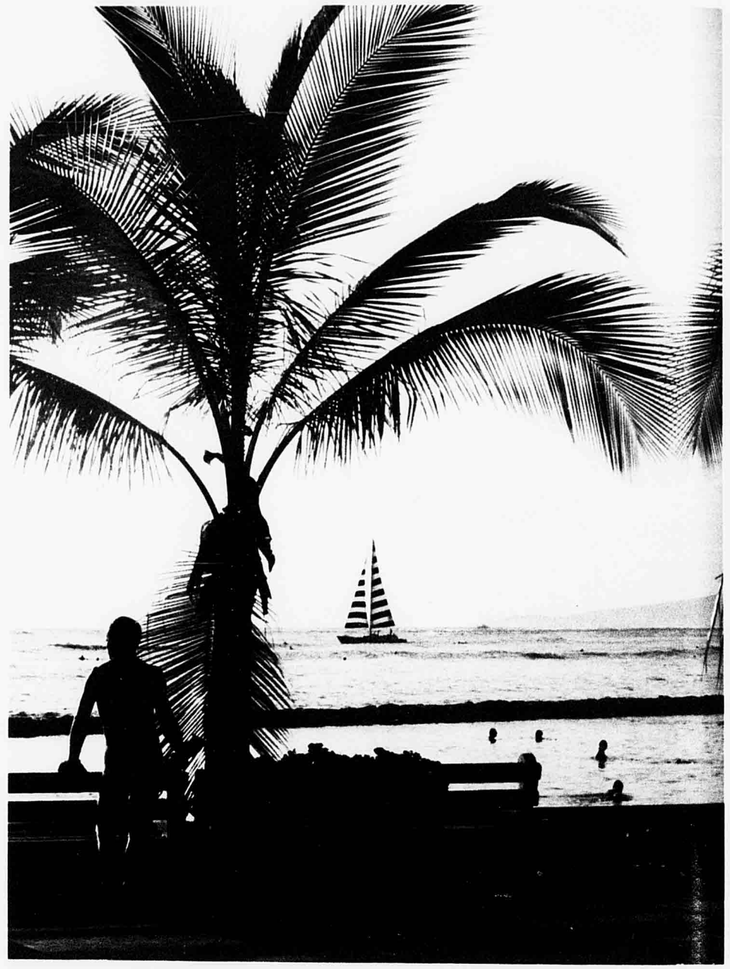

If only there was time to raise a Pac Man score, to see that special movie one more time or to catch the "choice" waves that began breaking at Point Panic. Time moved too swiftly when friends got together and basked in the summer sun or when one travelled to the neighbor islands or to the mainland. For many, summer was definitely vacation time.

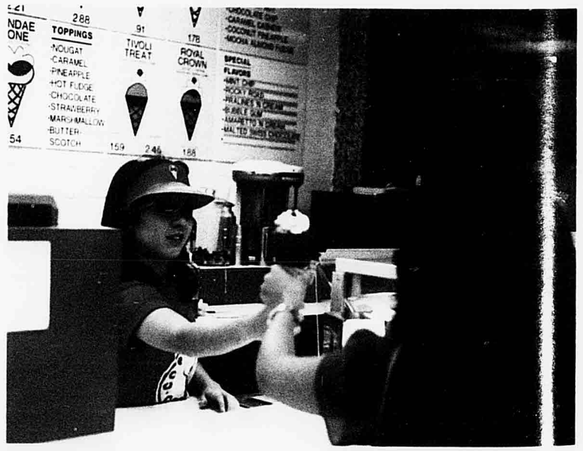

But for others it was not just a time for easy living and cruising Waikiki. Many found jobs and wanted more time to increase their savings so they could use it for needed expenses for the upcoming school year. Many worked, for summertime made even work palatable.

Other students worked on school-related activities. The yearbook staff met frequently; the cross-country team could be seen panting and running up Ward Avenue; Student Council officers began planning for the year's activities; and the football boys geared up for another tough season. Still others continued their classes right through summer, racking their brains for additional credits or a better grade.

Summer was fun, and summer was hard work. This combination made those brief three months a time filled and overflowing with memories.

September...and tales of summer adventures and misadventures were exchanged. But soon students were caught up in the business of school once again with traces of summer caught in a photo or in the recesses of one's memory.

Activity-Filled Days Bombard Students

Cars, bicycles, buses, and shuffling feet converged at 1039 South King Street as it neared 8:00 a.m., and the McKinley campus came to life. The first bell rang, and the campus was overcome by even greater animation.

Learning has always been the business of schools, and McKinley was no different. Students sat through periods made up of 108 minutes apiece, listening to lectures, taking notes and exams, and working on experiments. A few days out of the many found students watching films, hosting guest lecturers, and giving speeches. Other days were filled with analyzing literary works, working on history projects, and figuring out math problems.

The school day also encompassed special field trips to the Academy of Arts, the Legislature, Kennedy Theatre, hotels, hospitals, movie theaters, and media agencies.

After Hours, Campus Still Teems With Life

After classes ended, and most of the student body dispersed, McKinley was still teeming with activity.

At the athletic facilities, sports teams diligently practiced each afternoon. There were often five or six teams working out while a game was taking place on the field or in the gym. Cheerleaders attended games or practiced on the front lawn.

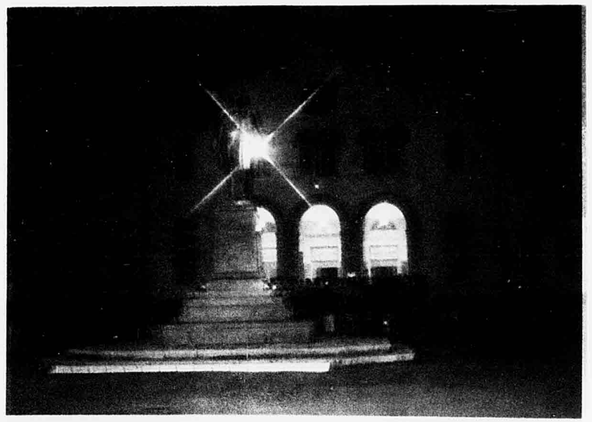

ROTC cadets marched around the campus and drill team members went through their routines without fail, in preparation for the state-wide drill team competition.

Within the silent buildings, room cleaners went about their routine. Custodians, cafeteria workers, and the clerical help finished up their day's work and began preparing for the next day. Clubs often held meetings and did service projects that benefited the school. Teachers met at department and general faculty meetings, while the band held rehearsals and sectionals in preparation for concerts in the community. Auditions for class productions and assemblies, and rehearsals for plays kept the auditorium a busy place. Under the scrutiny of the Math Team coaches, team members worked on practice problems. Many students sacrificed their afternoons to serve on the Student Council and class level committees that planned activities for the student body.

Tigers Work for the Weekend

Weekends have always been an important part of a Tiger's lifestyle, and this year was no exception.

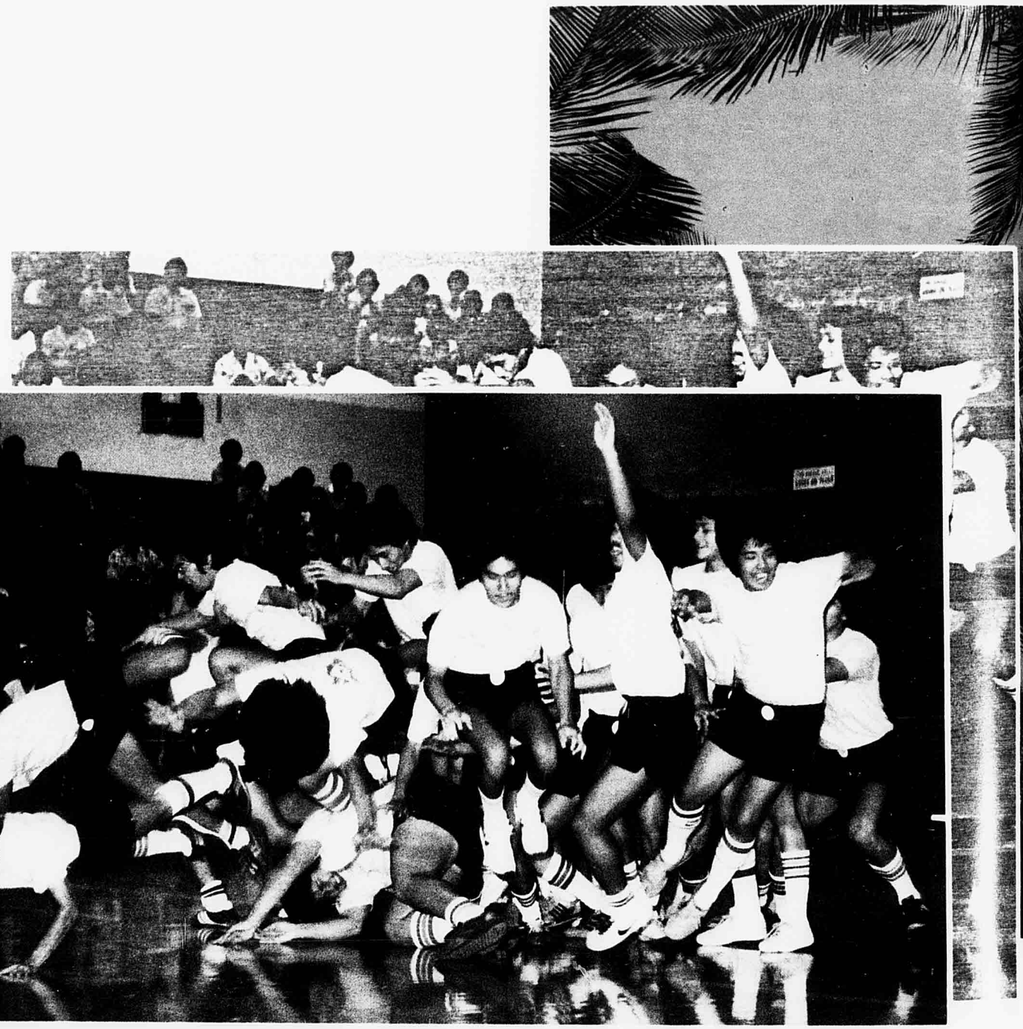

Weekends were the "pause that re freshed" and the brief respite for relaxation and mellowing out from the hassle of school...times when one could go to the beach for some sun and surf or to catch a good movie or just to hang out with the gang.

Weekends were also for those special school activities such as proms, dances, conferences, and workshops. A myriad of athletic events were scheduled with the pep squad always in tow. The McKinley campus lit up at night with the sweet sounds of the McKinley Symphonic Band in concert or the musical productions of the McKinley Theatre Group. Quiz bowls and math meets were regularly held, and the Black and Gold staff labored to meet deadlines.

Tiger weekends definitely were unique combinations of doing one's own thing and getting involved in school activities for learning, having fun, and gaining honor.

Enthusiasm, Spirit Dominate Festivities

Homecoming fever invaded the campus to the delight of McKinleyites as October rolled around. Spirits soared higher as the week's events culminated with a memorable celebration for the alumni.

The festivities began with a new game designed to involve the entire student body in the spirit of Homecoming. During the week of October 12-16, the "Guess the Alumni" game was a daily reminder of the upcoming events. Winners were awarded monetary prizes and gifts from the MHS Bookstore.

Class levels, clubs and organizations conscientiously completed their floats, banners and door decorations in secret to reveal them during the Thursday lunchtime parade around the school. Final judging of the competition was also done at this time.

On the following night the alumni returned for a barbecued chicken dinner and the annual Homecoming dance. Due to construction near the field, the scheduled bonfire was replaced with a candlelight ceremony in front of the administration building to help usher in a spirit of support for the following night's game. A mellow glow illuminated the oval and McKinley's statue as the football players, cheerleaders, the Homecoming court and students held dozens and dozens of lit candles for the ceremony.

The celebration was topped off with a football game at the Aloha Stadium against Roosevelt Roughriders. The floats, banners and door decorations were presented at half-time, and the winners of the competition were announced. The Senior Class, Graphic Arts Club and the Keywanettes emerged victorious. The half-time activities which included the Homecoming court served as a magnificent moral booster for both the fans and players.

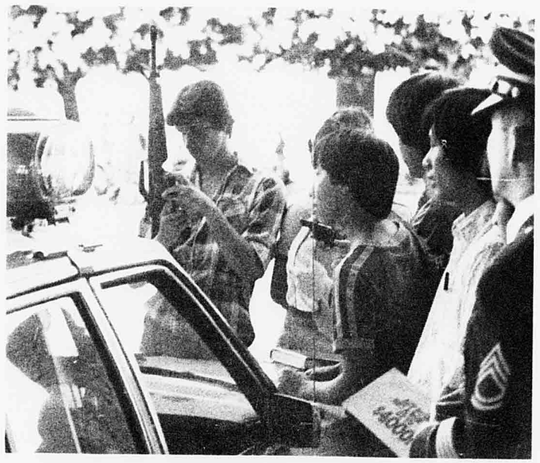

Although the football team was defeated 20-15, the Roughriders could never defeat the spirit and enthusiasm that was genereated prior to the game.

Traditional Events Enrich Student Life

It is common knowledge that McKinley is full of traditions. Accordingly, the students look forward to the traditional events coordinated by the Student Council.

Upon their return to school in the fall, the students were greeted with the annual Welcome Back Assemblies. With their minds still captured by summer thoughts, the students were given a preview of the upcoming school year. In an effort to make their return to school more bearable, the Welcome Back Dance in the gym and the Uni-Club sponsored Club Day in the cafeteria were held.

In conjunction with the seasonal holidays, activities such as the Christmas Songfest, Valentine Gram deliveries, Tiger Springfest, and May Day Program were coordinated. They reinforced the spirit of the holidays by reminding the students how much they could gain by working together.

Several annual festivities unique to McKinley were the Black and Gold Day celebration (in honor of President William McKinley), the Miss McKinley Pageant, and the Tiger Carnival. These events objectified the meaning of "Tiger Pride."

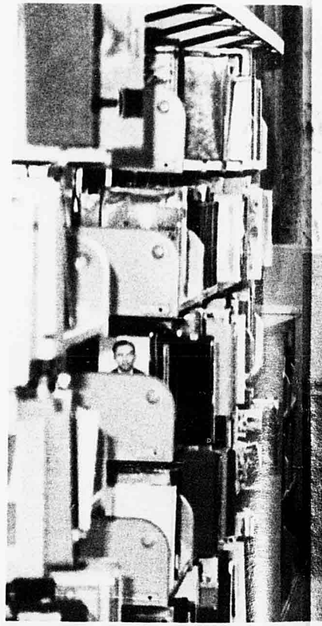

Some activities that even parents and teachers remembered having in their high school years were Homecoming festivities, proms, banquets, and hoss elections.

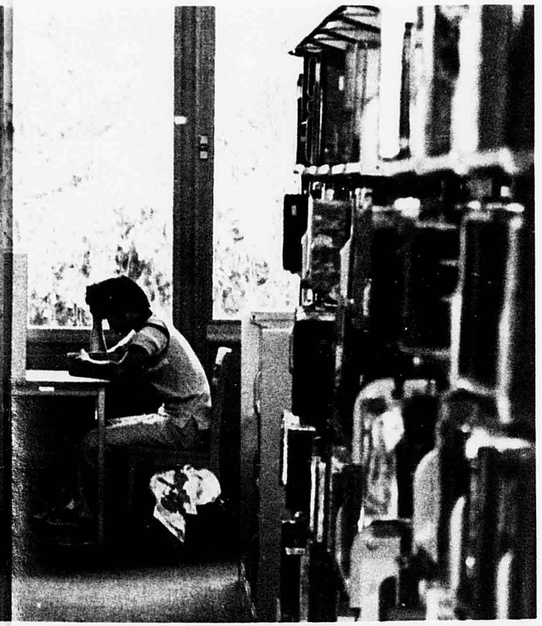

At the end of the year, scholastic and athletic awards were presented for those who met their goals for the year with outstanding success. The Underclassmen also participated in the registration scramble in preparation for the following school year. Frustrated juniors and sophomores could be seen milling around the gym as closed courses messed up their schedules. Meanwhile, the seniors laid out their plans for the futures, whether it be college, trade school, or a job. Nevertheless, they eagerly awaited their entrance into the adult world but never forgot the highlights of their high school years.

AND NEW

Fresh Ideas Complement Tradition

McKinleyites do not live by tradition alone. On the contrary, the Student Council evaluates its activities yearly and implements changes and innovations to long standing traditions.

In order to promote greater participation at a lower cost for the students, a series of conferences was held in the fall and winter. The all day seminars that replaced the three day two night camp were designed to to promote leadership qualities and skills of the students, the same goals of the leadership camp but at a lower cost.

These hard times were felt everywhere. Saving money was a prime concern in many of the changes in school activities. Dances sponsored by the Student Council were free to all students who paid their school fees. These students were also given at least a 10% discount at school functions for paying their school fees. This was a greater discount than in previous years.

Along with the value of money, the Student Council realized the value of fun. The Special Activities Committee developed new activities to increase student participation. The Halloween Jamboree which involved competition between clubs was replaced with the "McKinley Masquerade Day." Individuals rather than group representatives donned their ghoulish costumes in the spirit of Halloween. Treats were given to all the spooks at the Administration Building Box Office during lunch.

In the spring, the great McKinley Easter Egg Hunt was on. Colored eggs were hidden at various spots around the school and clues to their location were announced daily.

Activities were not the only things to change this year. The Multipurpose Auditorium was officially named the Timmy Teichiro Hirata Hall. Adjoining this structure was the newly completed Academic Core Building. The second floor of this complex was designated as the new site of the school library. With the help of hundreds of students the library moved from the Administration Building to the wall to wall carpeted and air conditioned structure.

Thus, this year at McKinley change and innovation went hand in hand with progression.

MISS MCKINLEY

Pageant Showcases McKinley's Finest

Excited parents, teachers, and friends gathered in the M.M. Scott Auditorium on the evening of Friday, November 19th at 7:30 p.m. A hush fell over the audience as the house lights dimmed, and the curtain rose to mark the opening of the 19th annual Miss McKinley Pageant. Both the contestants and the spectators eagerly awaited the crowning of Miss McKinley, the public relations coordinator for the 1983 Tiger Carnival.

Co-emceed by Toni-Lynn Chun, Miss McKinley 1982, and Iris Tokita, McKinley alumna, the program included a display of speech, poise, and beauty. After weeks of preparation, the fourteen contestants tried their best to conceal their excitement and nervousness as they directed their energies to this climactic event. Tensions were finally eased when Miss Popularity, Miss Congeniality, and the fourth runner-up through Miss McKinley 1983 were named.

Although only seven awards were given, the fourteen senior girls and the Pageant staff were all winners for organizing a pageant that illustrated the importance of dedication, responsibility, and cooperation for success.

CARNIVAL

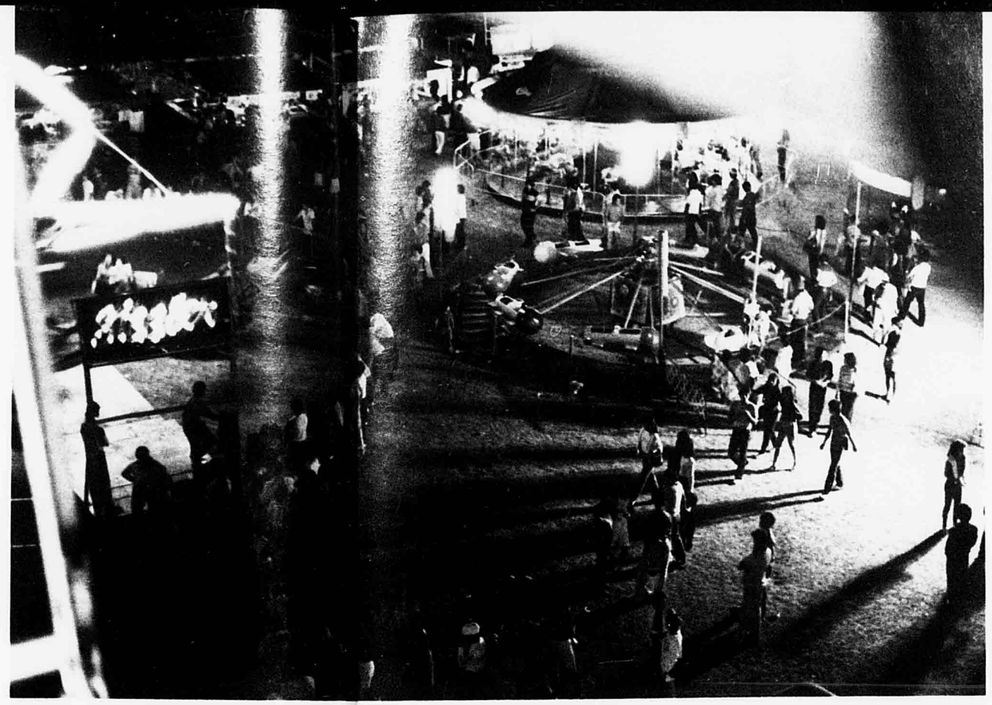

Combined Efforts Result in Success for All

The Friday afternoon sun shone brightly upon the William Wise football field on the eighteenth of February. The light breeze disturbed the canopies and wooden frames as it left a foreboding feeling around the structures. It was evident that the quiet before the storm was in the air.

As the clock approached one, workers could be seen mingling through the booths preparing for their great expectations. At two all pandemonium broke loose. The generator was ignited and energy poured throughout the grounds. The ferris wheel churned and the carousel hummed to the beat of Wally Yee and his rides. Three months of planning had finally culminated into this one climactic event -- the 1983 Tiger Carnival.

Students were released early to be the first to enjoy the opening festivities. The ceremony included the Miss McKinley court procession, special guests Mayor Eileen Anderson and Loyal Garner, and the blessing by Reverend Richard Kamanu.

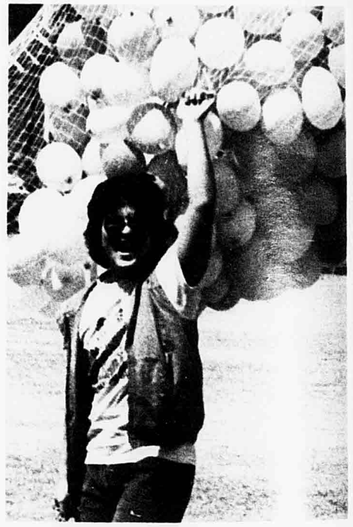

Tremendous efforts put forth in presale, booth decorations, and volunteer labor resulted in high attendance and profits. Clubs ranging from fifteen to seventy in membership equally contributed to the functioning of the game and food booths. Although the carnival had no tangible theme, the clubs signed an unwritten contract to strive as one.

Proms, Banquets, Dances Add Sparkle, Glamor to Student Life

As students reflected upon the past school year, various thoughts came to their minds. So many things had happened - new teachers were initiated into the McKinley system, different courses were taken, and administrative changes were made - but what would be remembered? Who would recall that recess started at 9:58 a.m. or accounting class wasn't offered during period 6? More often than not the social activities will remain clear in a student's mind, long after the events have passed.

Proms, banquets, and dances were the chances to dress up and mingle with fellow classmates out of the classroom setting. Highlights of the year included the Sophomore Banquet - the sophomores' first classy dinner together, the Junior Prom - an underclassman's premier night of elegance with that special someone, and the Senior Prom - the grand finale of social activities for the upperclassmen.

Binding all class levels was the Winter Prom. Open to all students, the major social event of the Student Council embodied the magic of Christmas at the Hawaiian Regent Hotel. This semi-formal, floral optional event included a steak dinner, presentation of the court, dancing to the sounds of Breakaway, and picture taking by Andrew Ishikawa.

Accompanying these social activities were the various Student Council dances held throughout the year and the club banquets that closed the last semester.

Social activities were not only times to relate with other students in elegant surroundings, but get-togethers at the end of the year were prime times to reflect upon the past and to prepare for the next school year.

Exciting Performers Create a Diversion from the Classroom

One may wonder how the students at McKinley managed to enter the classroom in September and come out unscathed in June. A major reason for their survival was the fact that the students were given a reprieve in the form of assemblies about twice a month.

A majority of the assemblies were held in the M.M. Scott Auditorium on Fridays. This year a new schedule for assemblies was implemented. To avoid confusion during the transition between the first and second assembly, a time period of twenty minutes was allotted. Classes were also shortened to allow school to end twenty minutes earlier than days without an assembly.

The assemblies offered a variety of entertainment for the students. They ranged from speeches by Principal Sakamoto and the Student Council to rock concerts by touring groups. Talent was also flowing in and around the campus as shown through the choir, band, and drama performances, the class plays, and the KIKI Brown Bags to Stardom show.

During the height of the football season, assemblies in the gym were also held to generate tiger spirit for the athletic teams.

AFTER HOURS

Students Find Life Beyond McKinley

Contrary to popular belief a student's life does not revolve around school. It is true that five days of the week are spent at school, in addition to the homework and the off campus activities. However, many students spend their week ends in leisure or in pursuit of their own interests.

Due to the cost of social activities, nights out with the gang, and college educations, many students can be found working afterschool, week nights, and weekends to earn some extra money. Other students worked to gain job experience in preparation for the future.

Besides financial concerns and job experience, students also pursued interests in the fine arts. They could be found taking music lessons or dance classes.

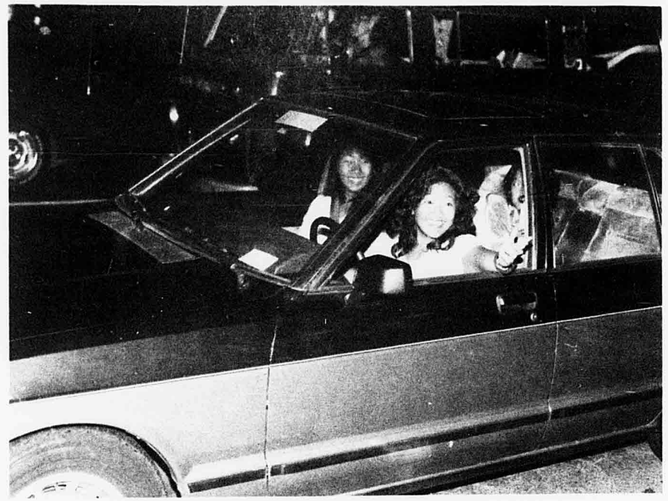

Other students could be found shopping or relaxing at the beach. The electronic game centers were also popular as a source of entertainment.

Still others hung out at fast food joints, took in a movie, or simply went cruising around.

During the year rock concerts were a big attraction around campus. Some of the groups featured were Foreigner, Loverboy, Stevie Wonder, Air Supply, and Aerosmith.

Outside of school, McKinleyites were much like other teenagers. Although McKinley was an integral part of their lives, each had an individual life after school hours.

Student Council Innovates Activities that Add to Spirit and Enthusiasm

The Student Council, under the direction of the Executive Board, set for itself several goals this year. An increase in the efficiency of the student government was a major goal along with the improvement of school spirit.

School spirit seemed to double this year with the Council providing a number of activities for student participation. The Council worked with two new committees instituted this year: the School Service and School Spirit committees. With their help, more activities such as performances by the Kasuals, a Florida-based group Free Fare, and the Honolulu Symphony were experienced this year.

More dances were also sponsored, going from four last year to five. The dances held this year were also less expensive.

Events like Homecoming, the Reindeer Run, Santa's Wish, Valentine Grams, the Easter Egg Hung, Crazy Week, May Day, and Black and Gold Day would not have been possible without the tireless work of the Student Council.

With students becoming more aware of and engaging in activities, the increase in student participation and voting was clearly seen.

Thanks to the hard work of the Student Council and the great spirit of all the students at McKinley, 1982-1983 was a marvelous study in progression.

Boards Tackle Heavy-Duty Tasks

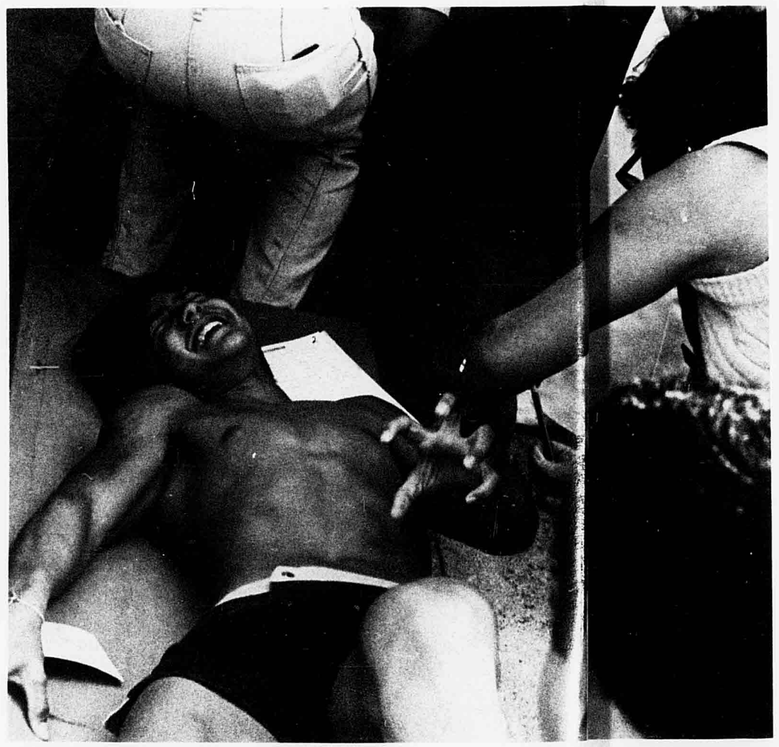

The concerns of the student body were heard this year through different governmental committees and boards.

The Student Services Board took charge of making sure each student obtained an I.D. card and arranged for special activities that would encourage the students to vote.

McKinley's proms and other social events were the products of the Social Board's hard work. One of their goals was to maximize student participation and minimize cost to the benefit of everyone.

The newest committee, the Grievance Board, was a sub-committee of the Senate. This committee involved students further by hearing their complaints, recommendations, and commendations. The Grievance Board was formed to recognize the opinions and feelings of the students of McKinley to help improve our school environment.

Senators pondered over bills and amendments and also discussed different ways to improve government and student life. This year they invited students to sit in on their sessions and get involved with student government by expressing their opinions which was another innovative idea.

Pinion Survives Problems

Although faced with many changes and assorted problems, the staff of The Daily Pinion managed to provide the school with interesting and informative features. Under the guidance of a new advisor, Mrs. Cynthia Oyama, the staff of fifty-two students put a lot of time and effort into printing a high quality newspaper. At the beginning of the year, there was some doubt as to whether the paper would continue as a daily publication due to financial and staff shortage problems. Fortunately, the problems were resolved and the Pinion was produced daily after the first few weeks of bi-weekly publication. However, problems again arose when two IBM typewriters were stolen from the room and the Pinion was forced to resume bi-weekly publication.

The four periods of newswriting students worked under the leadership of the Editorial Board. This board, composed of Loff Asuncion, Keumjung Chung, Katy Clark, Colbert Seto, and Lori Taketa, was responsible for putting the paper together and getting it to the printshop on time every day. The Pinion went through various stages of development as each period of newswriting contributed typed and proofread articles to the layout.

Although rarely working altogether and plagued by problems, the staff worked well as a team to overcome the setbacks.

Neophyte Staff Sparks, Ignites Yearbook

When faced with a difficult task, most people find ways of getting out of doing it. However, the 1982-83 Black and Gold staff accepted the challenge of producing a yearbook gamely. Almost all of the twenty-one students were newcomers, experiencing the "organized chaos" and terror of deadlines for the first time. But as the months passed, the copywriters, photographers, and layout artists began working as an organized team.

Under the direction of a new advisor, Mr. James Nakamoto and editor-in-chief Jan Baba, the staff met regularly over the summer vacation. Together they discussed possible themes and attended a workshop and photographic seminar by Josten's of Hawaii. Staff members also gave up a lot of their time after school and on weekends to meet deadlines.

Photographs, the main ingredient in this history/memory book were taken by three dedicated photographers as well as other members of the staff. These photographers attended sports matches, assemblies and proms, and invaded the classrooms to get those memorable candids. As production assistant Debbie Werts said, "Yearbook is really special because you're creating a memory that is shared by the whole school." This year, the staff worked especially hard to produce a book that would serve as a reminder of their high school days.

The KEY CLUB had a special year celebrating their 30th anniversary. Since 1953, the KEY CLUB has given outstanding service to the school and community. This year, they gave the Timmy Teichiro Hall a new coat of paint and participated in the wheel chair race for the Jerry Lewis Telethon. In addition, members also participated in many other events including the annual cleaning of the President McKinley statue.

This year, the KEYWANETTES' main goals were to get full club participation from all of the members and to get the club to participate in as many activities as possible during the school year.

They participated in training conferences, dances, picnics with the KEY CLUB, bingo games at Kuakini with the elderly, helping at the Variety School and supporting Governor Ariyoshi with his campaign by holding signs and waving for him. They also participated in school planned activities such as Homecoming for which they won first place in the door decoration contest, helping with registration during the summer, folding the PTSA Pinions which were mailed to parents, painting Hirata Hall, ushering at the Miss McKinley Pageant, and collecting donations for UNICEF on Halloween night.

School service organizations such as the JUNIOR CIVITAN and LEO CLUB also provided services for not only the school but for the community as well.

JUNIOR CIVITAN provided special services for the handicapped and had several projects to assist and entertain them.

The LEO CLUB furnished senior citizens and young children with happiness and company throughout the year. They helped out at daycare centers and made new friends among the elderly and handicapped. They also worked vigoroulsy picking up rubbish during the Litter Campaign. The LEO CLUB helped to set up some of the McKinley dances and painted the multi-purpose building in preparation or its dedication. In addition, they participated in many Leo-related activities like the annual convention in Waikiki and a bowling tournament with the other Leo clubs in Hawaii. Last year, the Leos were named club of the year, and this year they did well to continue their legacy of excellence.

JROTC Emulates Leadership, Service, Discipline

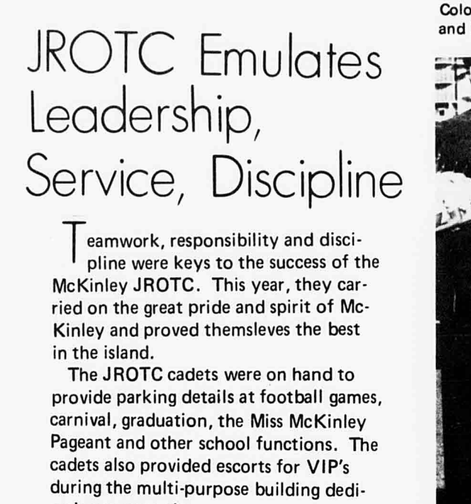

Teamwork, responsibility and discipline were keys to the success of the McKinley JROTC. This year, they carried on the great pride and spirit of McKinley and proved themsleves the best in the island.

The JROTC cadets were on hand to provide parking details at football games, carnival, graduation, the Miss McKinley Pageant and other school functions. The cadets also provided escorts for VIP's during the multi-purpose building dedication ceremonies.

The Sabre Squad got a chance to exhibit their exciting routine during both Homecoming and the Miss McKinley Pageant.

Greatly overlooked, however, was their daily duty of raising and lowering the flag.

In addition to these services the JROTC also participated in several special activities such as socials, parades, field competitions, camps and the prestigious Military Ball.

Honor Societies Set High Goals

The McKinley chapter of the NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY exhibited much school spirit and pride through its pursuit of the development of scholarship, leadership and character. Membership requirements included a cumulative GPA of 3.5 and approval by an advisory board of six teachers. Another requirement was the participation in three service projects per semester which members fulfilled by ushering at Kennedy Theatre and the Miss McKinley Pageant, or making Christmas ornaments and cookies to give out after caroling. The sixty-eight members also took an active part in school events such as Homecoming, the Reindeer Run, carnival, and the Tiger Springfest.

The QUILL AND SCROLL, another honorary club on campus, was made up of 16 members. Invitations were extended to students enrolled in newswriting and yearbook classes who maintained a grade point average of 3.0 or higher. The Quill and Scroll did not participate in Uni-Club activities but handled all the publicity for the annual Tiger Carnival.

Clubs Expand Choices for Future Careers

This year, the FUTURE HOMEMAKERS OF AMERICA tackled the concerns and the problems of young adults, preparing them for the life ahead. The FHA provided learning experiences and opportunities to their members. They learned new ways to improve family life, sharpened their skills for tomorrow's job market, and explored the changing roles of men and women. But best of all, FHA members made a new circle of friends and then widened this circle to include young children, the handicapped, and the elderly.

The FRIENDS OF THE ANIMALS, a subset of the McKinley Zoo Instructor Program, enabled students to participate in social activities and services to expand their knowledge and broaden their experiences in ZIP. The Friends accomplished many exciting projects this year, highlighted by a mainland trip with the Science Club to California. They did service projects with the Nature Conservancy, the Hawaiian Humane Society, and the Honolulu Zoo as well as participating in the McKinley Carnival.

The DIRECTED RESEARCH IN PRACTICAL SCIENCE group, better known as DRIPS, motivated students to enter into the wide field of science.

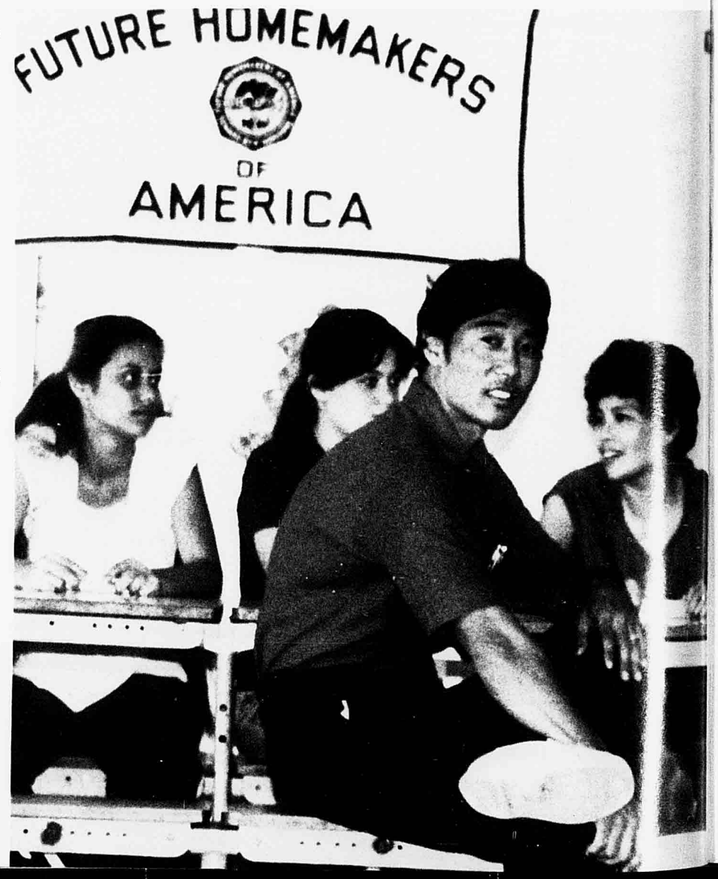

DRIPS members participated in the annual science fair and helped to promote scientific awareness. They also helped in setting up both the school and state fairs. Field trips, social events and numerous fundraisers were among the many activities that these future scientists accomplished.

Science Clubs Provide Explorations Beyond Classroom

The CHEMISTRY, SCIENCE, and MATH CLUBS allow interested students a chance to explore and participate in these particular fields.

Each club provided its members with many interesting and fun-filled activities.

The CHEMISTRY CLUB, wishing to promote interest and understanding in this field, held workshops and experiments after school. The club also participated in the Chemistry Fair at U.H. and was part of many school events like songfest and the carnival. The school year concluded with the annual recognition banquet.

The SCIENCE CLUB went on a mainland trip this year, visiting such spots as Sea World and the San Diego Zoo. Other activities like picnics and excursions were also undertaken in addition to participating in many uni-club activities.

The MATH CLUB existed to promote interest in math and to involve students in the Math Department. The club's purpose was for the members to share with each other their common interest with numbers and to get to know each other better.

A mini-math meet was hosted by the club for all feeder school students to practice their skills in math. The Math Team, a "subset" of the club, along with the other members had a Christmas party to celebrate the holiday season. Yellow T-shirts with computers printed on the back were made for the club members to wear to the song fest in which they participated. The club had a booth in in the Tiger Carnival and participated in many other activities.

Clubs Mix Knowledge, Fun

The LITERARY, BUSINESS, ODYSSEY and SPEECH clubs were good reflections of the spirit and thirst for knowledge and fun which is McKinley.

The LITERARY CLUB was responsible for bringing together the finest literary talent of the school. From short stories to poetry, from art work to photography, the annual Literary Magazine, "Writers Inc.," contained some of the best of the school's writing and artistic talents.

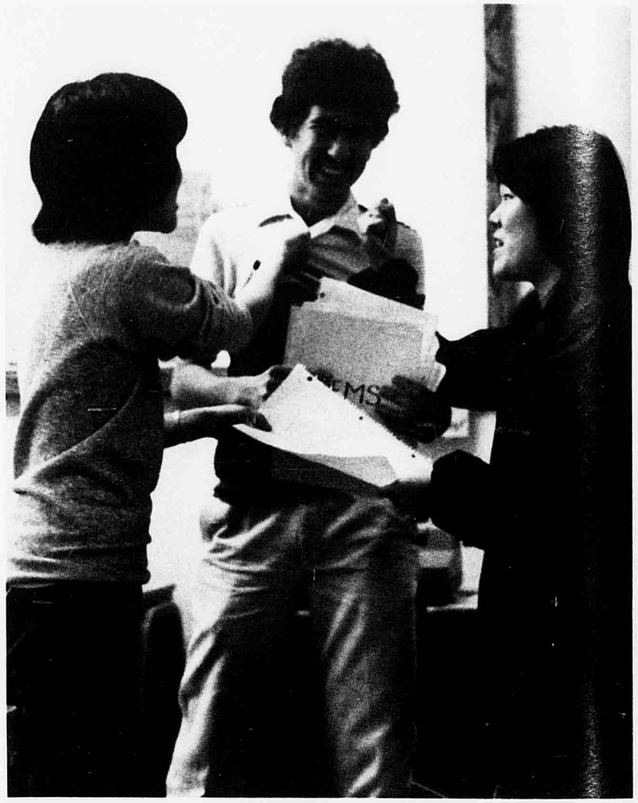

ODYSSEY was a brand new club on campus this year. This club stimulated and encouraged creativity and further understanding of culture and the arts. They helped with the moving of the Library and also participated in the carnival.

The BUSINESS CLUB had a very active school year. They had parties and picnics and participated in several community service projects such as Christmas gift wrapping and canned goods collection. They also visited the elderly and painted the Commercial Building.

The SPEECH CLUB took its members on monthly festivals and tournaments. They also got a chance to become members of the Forensic League, a national speech organization.

They helped their members to learn various speaking techniques and made them aware of the different types of public speaking. They also ran a game booth and handled the P.A. at the carnival.

MHS Clubs Accentuate Strength, Stamina, Fresh Air

The McKINLEY INTRAMURAL ASSOCIATION has been on hand these many years organizing and officiating all intramural games. Formerly known as the Girls Athletic Association, they encouraged participation in such intramural sports as volleyball, football, basketball and tennis. They also handled the annual Leroy Mendonca Race held in May.

The ANGLERS CLUB allowed students interested in fishing to get together with others who enjoyed fishing. Their regular trips to great fishing spots on the island were enjoyed by all. Participation in the carnival and other projects, particularly the Big Island trip in December, made this a memorable year for the club.

Monthly hikes were planned by the HIKING CLUB. The aim of the club was to enhance the members' knowledge of the environment surrounding them. They went on hikes, not only to enjoy the beauty of nature, but also to help the community in clearing the Tantalus Trail. The club participated in an ecology camp towards the latter part of the year to increase their understanding of the surrounding environment.

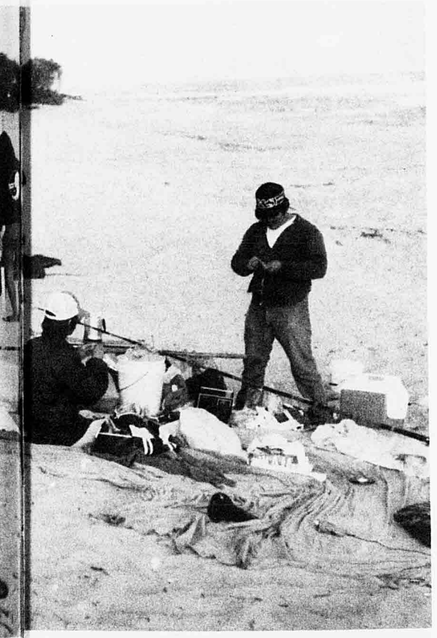

The McKINLEY BARBELL CLUB provided students the opportunity to strengthen their physical and mental being through the principles and practices of weight training and proper nutrition. They also helped to train interested students for competitive meets and contests.

Hobbyists Marvel at Array of Clubs

McKinley clubs catered to many special interests and hobbies. In clubs like the GRAPHIC ARTS, RADIO/ELECTRONICS and CHESS, enthusiastic students could get together with others who have similar interests.

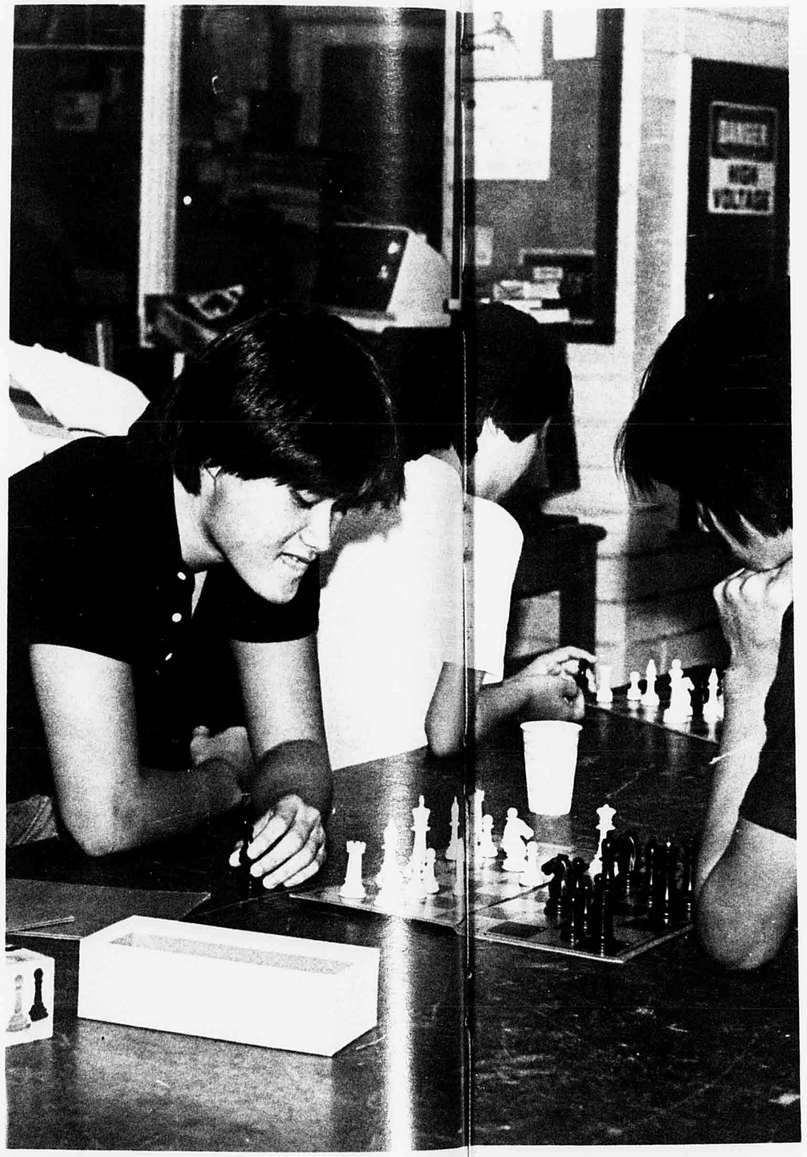

GRAPHIC ARTS have provided many services to the school such as participation in the Tiger Carnival and the Walk for Mankind. They also printed the shirts for many of the other McKinley clubs. Club members found themselves having fun as they learned graphic arts skills and used the various graphic arts equipment.

The RADIO/ELECTRONICS CLUB engaged in such activities as HAM Radio operation, computer and electronics projects. They also built model cars and rockets and worked at the Tiger Carnival.

The fourteen members of the CHESS CLUB met regularly in Shop 5 to practice and improve their chess strategy. They competed among other schools in regular tournaments and worked hard to keep their second place standing in the state.

On Stage, Everyone!

The McKINLEY THEATRE GROUP expanded the opportunities for drama students to work with productions and to attend workshops and plays. This year the group presented a powerful drama, "The Girl in the Mirror," in February and two prize-winning one-acts in conjunction with Kumu Kahua of the University of Hawaii in March.

They ushered at Kennedy Theatre and actively participated at the Alliance for Drama Education workshops and performed at the annual Hawaii State Thespian Conference held this year at Kaiser High School. They also entered the one-act play competition sponsored for the first time by the Hawaii Education Association.

Members of the group also supported other high school drama endeavors by attending the many plays around Oahu. Their club activities also included the huli huli chicken sale for the carnival, winning first place at the Christmas songfest and the gala spring awards banquet.

Music rang out throughout the campus as the McKINLEY CHOIR participated in numerous events. Their annual Christmas concert and their Spring Concert have become a part of the McKinley tradition.

This year their activities included the dedication ceremonies for Hirata Hall, Christmas performances at various hotels and shopping centers and special appearances at Arcadia Home for the Elderly, Muriel Day Care Center, the Hawaiian Regent Hotel and the Waikiki Trade Center.

The McKINLEY JAZZ BAND also provided musical interludes for the school by presenting a spring concert. They also took part in a tri-school concert joining the jazz bands from Roosevelt and Farrington. The twenty-eight musicians met every morning at 7:15 a.m. with their new instructor, Royce Tanoue. They practiced to improvise and ad-lib on their chosen instrument and concentrated on "blues" numbers from their challenging repertoire.

Band Shares Music, Friendship with the Orient

This year's Symphonic Wind Ensemble was composed of devoted individuals who, despite involvement in other activities, still managed to make music a part of their life. Many hours of rehearsal and preparation were spent perfecting technique and expression to make each musical endeavor a success.

The 1982-83 school year was marked by many special events for the band, most notably the return of their band director Mr. Grant Okamura who spent last year on sabbatical, achieving his master's degree in music.

Beginning the year with a "pop," the Pops Concert that is, the band kept up a steady pace. 1982 saw the band engaged in initiation activities for new band members, Homecoming Competitions, the traditional welcoming of Santa at the Ala Moana Shopping Center, and the Songfest where they treated the audience to acapella arrangement in four-part harmony of the Christmas carol "Ring Christmas Bells." The hectic activity continued in 1983 with the Winter and Spring Concerts, the Parade of Bands Competition, and the final duty of playing for Commencement Exercises.

The highlight of the year, a tour of Japan and China with a series of concert dates, was realized as a result of much hardwork and headache on the part of the band's parental support group, the McKinley Band Parents. The students and chaperones visited such places as Peking, Hangchow, and Shanghai in China, and Tokyo and Kyoto in Japan. The experience left a few people in awe. "The Great Wall of China was just incredible! I've never seen anything so huge!" was echoed by many.

To top off the year, both the Wind Ensemble I and the Wind Ensemble II held Spring Concerts. This was a memorable experience for the Seniors in the group because it was the last concert they would play as members of the Mc Kinley High School Band. With love and tears, the Seniors received recognition and leis for their years of devotion, and then put the shoe on the other foot by performing the traditional ceremony of wrapping their band director with floral garlands.

Carrying a feeling of pride and accomplishment with them, the McKinley Band closed out a busy year with the satisfaction of knowing that they had done their job well.

Ethnic Clubs Brew Exciting Mixture

Under the advisorship of Mr. Alvin Nip, the MANDARIN CLUB has participated in such school activities as Carnival and the Spring Festival. Being a relatively small club, the members have been able to plan many social activities. A gathering during the Christmas holidays was one of their fun-filled activities.

Homecoming competitions, Reindeer Run, Song Fest and Spring Festival are several of the activities that the VIETNAMESE CLUB has participated in this past school year. The membership consisted of new American residents of the Vietnamese culture who shared a common experience. The differences and excitement created by their new environment, school, language and ways of living were usually the topics of discussion at their club meetings and get-togethers. Camps, picnics and once-a-week meetings have created one of the closest related clubs in the school.

The KOREAN CLUB has given the students of Korean ancestry the opportunity to " play around and have fun together." This club has proven their spirit by their participation in the Song Fest and the Spring Festival among other school activities. Club members have always tried to share with the school the interesting aspects of their music, song and culture. Like the other clubs, the KOREAN CLUB attempted to create lasting relationships through regular meetings and many out-of-school social activities.

Placing third in the Song Festival, participating in both Homecoming and the Reindeer Run have taught the CHINESE CLUB members the importance of teamwork and friendship have given them the joy of success after much hard work. Wai Leung Lee, member of the club's executive board, said of their club, "The values we have learned together are ones that no one can take away."

Language Clubs Emphasize Colorful Culture of Other Lands

One of the most interesting areas of learning is the exploration of different cultures. The many cultural clubs at McKinley provided an opportunity for the students to learn about and appreciate the varied lifestyles existing around the world.

The WAKAI NAKAMATACHI JAPANESE CLUB promoted fellowship between students and started off the year with a welcome back picnic to unite the senior members with new members. At the annual Cherry Blossom Cultural Show held at the NBC, the 36 members displayed the arts of Kabuki dancing and experienced the hard work of mochi pounding. They also took part in such school activities as Songfest, the McKinley Carnival, and the Tiger Springfest.

Throughout the year, the FRENCH/SPANISH CLUB celebrated holidays and special events of the French and Spanish cultures such as the Mardi Gras and the Spanish Posada. This was the most enjoyable way to understand and appreciate the French and Spanish people. Guest speakers and demonstrators explained the many different aspects of Western European life. Fellowship among members grew stronger as the year progressed, climaxing with the annual year-end banquet.

HUI O HAWAII continued their interest in the Hawaiian language by learning chants and dances to traditional Hawaiian verses. The Hawaiian Club also showed their kokua by participating in many service projects benefitting McKinley.

Cheerleaders Aim Toward Excellence as Their Goal

Despite being involved in one of the hardest sports, the pep squad combined dedication with enthusiasm to bring to McKinley a unique kind of spirit. Known throught the state for their skill in performing routines and adagio and their bright smiles, the varsity squad was presented the Award of Excellence by the National Cheerleaders Association Summer Clinic in Hawaii. They went on to compete in the High School National Championships, held in Dallas, in February. Captain Lori Nakamura, co-captain Joy Yang, and yell leader Sheila Suenaka led the squad throughout the year.

Although composed of only five members, the jayvee squad supported the junior varsity teams at their matches, helping to show McKinley's spirit.

Varsity Football Devastated By Injuries

With a totally new staff of coaches, the varsity football team had a lot of adjusting to do when they started their 1982 season. For head coach Darryl Sakai, this was the first year of coaching the varsity Tigers. Previously, he had coached the jayvee football team.

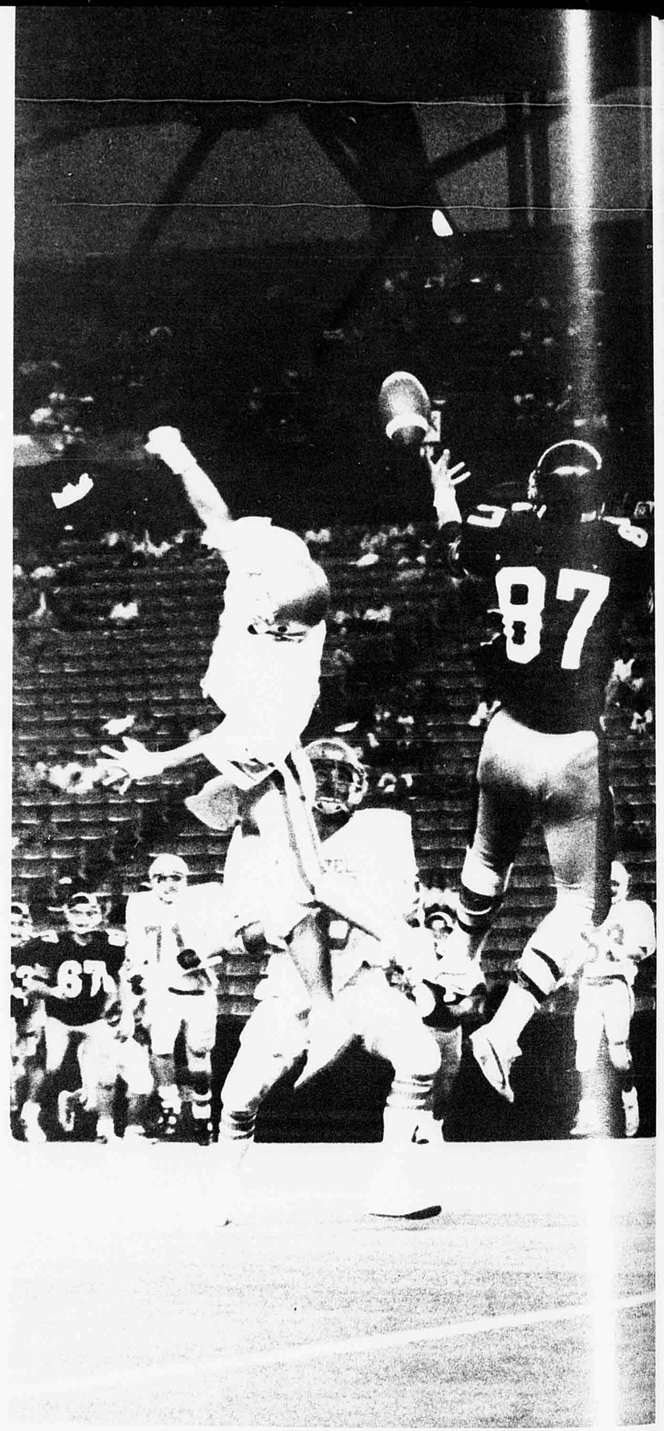

In addition to a new coaching staff, serious injuries put many key players out of action for the season, causing a disappointing year for the team. Concluding their games with a season record of 2-6-0, the players who will be returning next year are looking forward to an exciting season.

In spite of the many disappointing defeats, there were some exciting moments. One such one was McKinley's victory over the Kaiser Cougars, which was executed during the last three minutes of the game, with a score of 13-10.

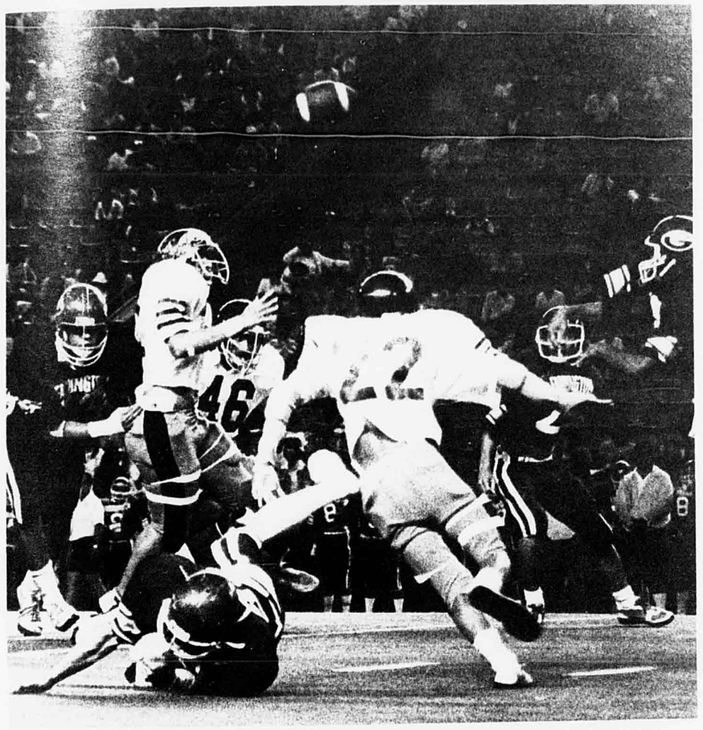

Tri-captains Harris Aki, Kaiser Iuta, and Guy Kamealoha led the team through the year, their leadership bringing them through good and bad times alike.

Faced with a lot of changes and new faces, the varsity football team pulled together to play a tough season. Although injuries destroyed their ranks, they went into each game as a unified body and whether they faced victory or defeat, they came through as a team.

"The boys tried, we tried real hard," said Harris Aki. "It was a disappointing season, but we tried hard."

Jayvee Tigers Attain Second Place Standing In District

Under the spectacular leadership of Captain Tana Alualu, the jayvee football team pulled through the season with a winning record of 4-2-2.

Individual performances and the ability to work well together made each game a unique experience for the players. Head coach David Brown emphasized conditioning and discipline with long gruelling workouts to prepare for the games.

Although they faced many tough teams in the OIA, the players got a lot of satisfaction out of the season, ending with a second-place ranking in the Honolulu District.

Volleyball Rankings Improve Steadily

For the past few years, the girls' volleyball team has steadily built on its program to produce a top-rated team. Just missing a spot in the state playoffs in Hilo, the team ended their season with a second-place ranking in the Honolulu District. With the guidance of head coach Kenneth Rowe, the spikers attained a 10 win, 4 loss record. They hoped to continue building on their reputation next year and to make the state playoffs.

Starting with a fresh team, the jayvee squad used the season to gain experience and knowledge of volleyball. Next year will hopefully see a jayvee team with many returnees.

◀ ▲ LORI LEONG crouches in readiness as the ball volleys on the other side of the court. ◀ LOTU SAU demonstrates her powerful spike serve. ▲ AUDRA HALMOS spikes the ball across the court past two Kalani defenders.

Boys' Volleyball Team Gains Experience

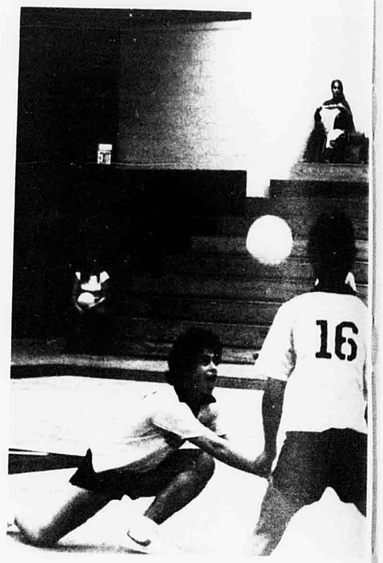

Gaining experience while having fun was the main goal of the boys' volleyball team. Competing against all the other teams in the OIA during the course of their season, the boys found themselves up against some stiff competition and experienced players. They used the competition as a learning experience to develop their basic skills in volleyball.

One of the reasons for the lack of skill in the volleyball team was the small number of returnees. However, next year will hopefully see more returning players for a more successful season.

Boy Harriers Capture District, Division Titles

Hard work and continuous practice were the keys to sucess for the Cross-country teams. Training for the 1982 season started in May when prospective members were recruited at scramble; and throughout the summer, dedicated runners met in the early hours of the morning to run distance.

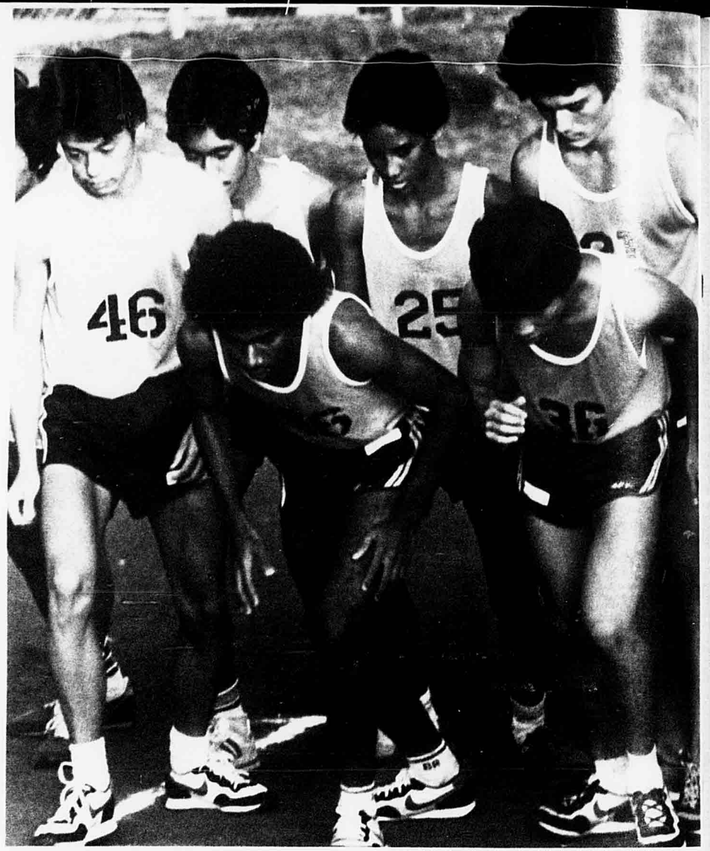

This perseverance paid off for the boy Harriers as they clinched the Honolulu District Eastern Division and the Molokai Invitational titles and made respectable showings at the OIA and State meets. Individually, each member was outstanding, but their ability to work together brought them through as champions.

Although they didn't bring home any trophies, the girls' team also showed the ability to work as a team and made respectable showings in all their meets. Led by captain Stacy Yuen and teammate Jill Maeshiro, the girls took the Molokai Invitational trophy for the third consecutive year.

In preparing to move up to the varsity teams, jayvee runners used the season to condition their bodies and get accustomed to the rigorous training. This provided valuable experience needed in running against varsity runners.

Keglers Dominate OIA Bowling, Snatch Up District, Division, OIA, State Titles

Clinching the state crown was the only way to end a perfect season for the girls' bowling team. After rolling through the season and grabbing the district, division, and OIA titles, the Keglers were ready for a state crown.

Although a relatively small team, consisting of only seven players, the girls had enough drive, determination, and spirit to carry them through the season without a pause. When it came to the state tournament, they were psyched and ready to run away with the trophy.

"We had a determined attitude going into the tournament," said Dona Hamabata, and they certainly did. Up against the top-ranked Aiea and some tough individuals, the team did an outstanding job. "It was strictly a team effort," continued Dona. " This is the first year that the girls' bowling team ever won the CIA and the state titles in one season, and we are proud of it." Dona also bowled a tourney-high score of 616 points.

Sluggers Maintain District Throne

The Honolulu District crown has found itself a home. For the third consecutive year, McKinley's Female Sluggers have reigned as the district champions. They have gained the respect and acknowledgement as one of the better teams in the OIA.

With a nucleus of ten returnees and one newcomer, the squad proved itself to be dominant, as they held the best season record in the OIA of 13-1. Their potential was awesome as they scored a total of 119 runs while limiting their opponents to score only 19 runs in the regular season.

Pride was the key word behind the Female Sluggers' success. Within the word pride are the five words that best describe the girls: preparation, respect, intensity, desire, and enthusiasm. Although the Female Sluggers lost in the OIA play-offs to three-time state champions Kailua and Windward contenders Pearl City, the team walked away proud, for they had every reason to. They will long be remembered for their dedication and their love they had shown for the sport of softball.

Sluggers Face Tough Season

McKinley's varsity and junior varsity teams started the new season with a new training program.

The jayvees were headed by coaches Gary Nakano and Keith Inamine and also co-captains Jay Harada and Michael Miura.

The young team, which had only one returnee from last year's squad, battled tough district opponents who handed them a 0-9 record for the season.

Even though the record was poor, there were some good performances by outfielder Chris Quisote and pitcher Jay Harada, both of whom moved up to the varsity team along with Walter Yamane and Michael Miura.

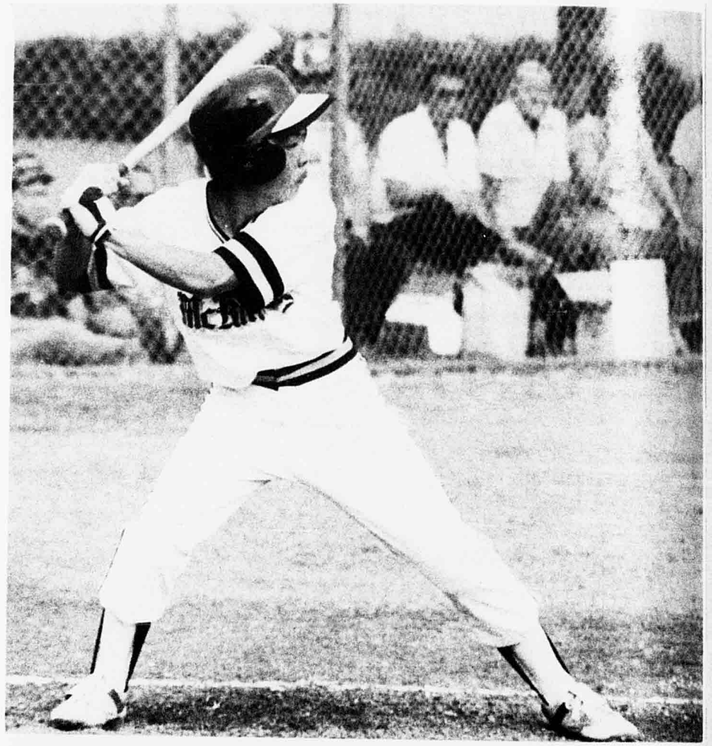

McKinley's varsity sluggers was headed by head coach Gene Takaesu and assistants Gary Nakano, Leonard Kasparovitch and John Tavares.

The twenty member team included eleven returnees and was led by tri-captains Kevin Ebisuya, Wesley Osaki and Brian Yoshikawa. After returning from the Kapaa Invitational Baseball Tournament on Kauai, they opened their season against the Castle Knights.

Conflicts Decimate Boys' Soccer Ranks, Girls Continue to Build

Disappointment reigned during the 1983 soccer season. Because of a young team and organizational problems, the boys had a very difficult season. As a result, the team failed to start the ball rolling and lost all of their games. This came as a heart-breaking blow after they were forced to forfeit most of their games last year because of an ineligible player. Nevertheless, their spirits were high. Hopefully next year will see a restoration of boys soccer team as it regroups and faces another season.

Girls soccer, in its third year at McKinley, worked to instill confidence in its members. In learning the basics of soccer, the team could better compete against their more established rivals.

Fresh Crew Dominates Jayvee Basketball

A Jayvee basketball team is perhaps one of the toughest teams to coach. Each year coaches are faced with recruiting a new team from feeder schools and the sophomore class at McKinley. After a season of training together, most players leave the team.

This year, a fresh crew of freshmen and sophomores dominated the jayvee team. They quickly latched onto the rudiments of basketball and made their season a winning one.

Much of their success was due to the coaching expertise of Head Coach Eric Au and his assistants John Torres and Lyman Zablan. Long hours of gruelling practice was also responsible for the team's success. Often practicing into the night, they developed stamina to outlast most of their competitors.

Swimmers Enjoy Satisfying Season

Starting the year equally balanced between returnees and new members, the boys' swimming team made respectable showings at all its meets. Especially strong in the 200 medley and 400 freestyle relays, the boys placed third in the Eastern Championships in these events. In addition, Matthew Flanagan placed second in the 500 freestyle during the championships. Led by Bernard Yip and four-year letterman Brian Yoshikawa, the team enjoyed a satisfying season.

Because of the low turnout on their side, the girls were unable to make a strong showing. With a team of only four members, they strived to improve individually. The girls' swimming team was led by Annette Toma and four-year letterwoman Tammy Takahashi.

Preseason Shows Promise

What better way to start off the basketball season than to go undefeated in the preseason? McKinley's Boys Varsity Basketball team went the distance against such opponents as Campbell, University High, and Waianae as they racked up a 10-0 win-loss record in the preseason.

The regular season started off with a disappointing loss to the Castle Knights, but the Cagers rebounded to beat the Roosevelt Roughriders. Following their victory, the team posted a 8-4 record finishing out the season with a total of 8 wins and 6 losses.

The highlight of the season came on February 16 when the Cagers upset number one ranked Farrington on a last second shot by Ricki Olomua. Had they beaten their next opponent, Kalani, they would have gone on to the playoffs. Unfortunately, they lacked the extra drive needed to win the game thus bidding goodbye to their chance for a playoff berth.

Girls' Basketball Strives For Top

In preparing for an exciting season, the girls' basketball teams worked to perfect the basic skills of basketball and learn new plays. They trained long hours in order to face many worthy opponents in the OIA.

"Our goal is to strive for the top," said Salilo Toomata.

Coaches Frank Nihi and Lui Faleafine worked with the girls to develop their minds as well as their bodies toward the sport of basketball. Blessed with many returnees, both varsity and jayvee teams looked forward to a rewarding season.

Grapplers Strive for Ranking

With most of them being newcomers, having majority of seniors on the wrestling team wasn't too much of an advantage this season. Despite the lack of experience and the absence of a Junior Varsity team, the 1982-83 grapplers were ready for a great season.

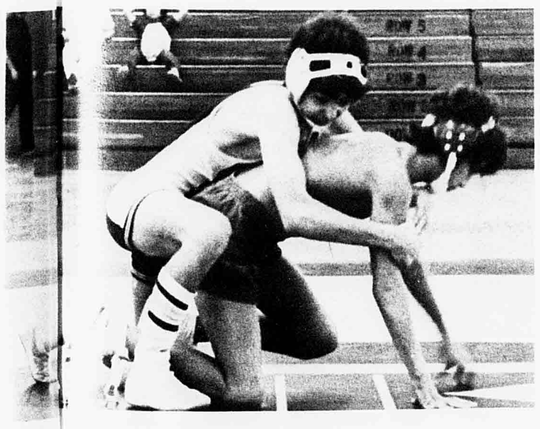

" I've learned I shouldn't give up when things get tough. Just stick it out so later on you can get your letter," said newcomer Frank Rife.

Practice from 3-5:30 p.m. became a daily routine as the team prepared for the OIA East Tournament and going on to place 4th. Other teams competing in the tournament were Kahuku, Roosevelt, Kaimuki, Kaiser, Kailua, and Farrington.

" This year is more strenuous than last year because of the new style of coaching," said veteran Scott Ando.

Turnout Creates New Girls Tennis Teams

A varsity and jayvee girls' tennis team was specially created this past season for the many girls who turned out. The varsity team made up for three seniors, one sophomore, and the rest were juniors, many of them being returnees from last year. The girls' varsity team's main goal was to try their best against the first three tough teams that they played which were Kaimuki, Kailua and Kaiser respectively. The jayvee team consisted of mostly freshmen from Central Intermediate, who came to the daily practices held by the girls' coach, Leonard Loventhal, with hope to have a spot in the line-ups for the next season.

Several first year people turned up for the boys' tennis team. The rest of the team consisted of returnees from last year with an even amount of seniors, juniors and sophomores. Tough, daily practices were held by boys' coach, Richard Yaginuma, after school and on Saturdays.

Both the girls' team and the boys' team gained invaluable experience this past season and are looking forward to a more successful season next year.

Golfers Swing Into Season

In their second year of competition at McKinley, golf team members worked to improve their standing in the OIA. While playing against Eastern Division schools at various golf courses on Oahu, they worked together as a team and improved individually.

Coached by Milton Hirohata, the golf team looked forward to building up their strength and numbers for future years' success.

Judo Team Attempts To Perfect Technique

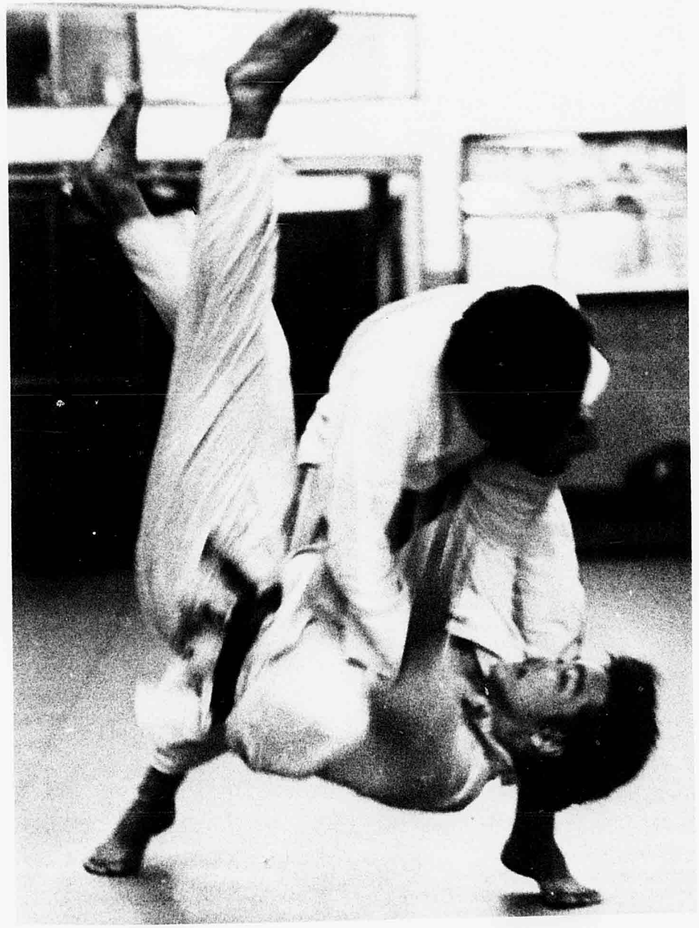

Drawing many of their members from the wrestling team, the judo team met the challenge of preparing for a busy season in less than a month. Because the wrestling season did not end until the state tournament in February, Coach Kelvin Mori had little time to work with the boys to help them develop and improve their throws and holds. However, due to the demands of wrestling, most of the team members were in good physical condition.

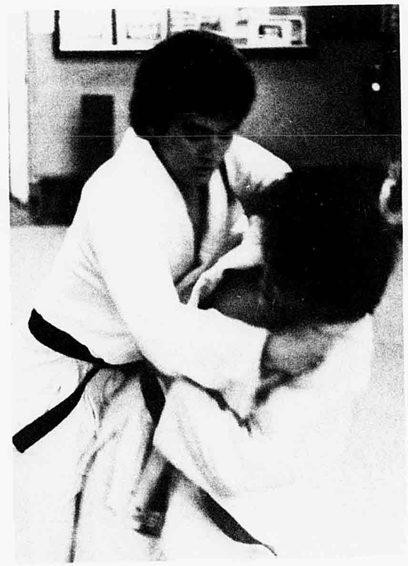

Many returnees brought the experience of three years of judo to the team, enabling them to approach an exciting season with confidence.

Leilani Okuda, the only girl on the team participated only in exhibition matches, since girls' judo is not yet a sanctioned OIA sport. Once it becomes sanctioned, McKinley can look forward to having a co-ed team, with girls' competing along side the boys.

New, Young Talent Sparks Tracksters

Over the past five years, McKinley's track team has been a strong contender in OIA track, consistently ranking among the top five teams.

Although the turnout for the 1983 team was relatively small, there was a high percentage of quality individuals making up a host of new, young talent. Due to the scoring process of track, Head Coach Tom Marks and his assistants Tart Sing Lee, Val Mateo, and Dan Yahata could look forward to a successful season.

A small group of top individuals made up the backbone of the team. Their performances in distance running events held McKinley's reputation as a "distance team." Jill Maeshiro in the two-mile and Stacy Yuen in the 400 and 800 meters held up the girls' team while Farrell Kanoho, Howard Kim, and James Lyau performed in the 800 meters, mile and two-mile.

As their season was about to start, girls' captain Stacy Yuen commented, 'Even though we have a small team, I think we can pull through and have a successful season.'

ACADEMICS

McKinley Keeps Pace with Educational Changes

The reason for attending McKinley High School and, indeed, the reason for the school's very existence was to better the individual and to prepare him or her for adult life through education. The idea of education changed over the years, and an education at McKinley came to mean many different things.

Since the use of computers expanded dramatically worldwide, computers were employed more frequently in the classroom. Students were given opportunities to learn how to use various computers by taking certain courses in mathematics, science, electronics, business and home economics.

With the completion of the new library, students took renewed interest in using reading materials in the more comfortable setting. The space occupied by the old library was used to house the health classes. The audio-visual services moved to more spacious headquarters in the newly-named multi-purpose building, Teichiro Hirata Hall. Services increased, but getting equipment and space organized proved a chore.

In order to prepare them for life in a more technologically oriented world, students were required to take two additional courses: one in math and the other in science. Reactions to this ranged from indifference to resentment.

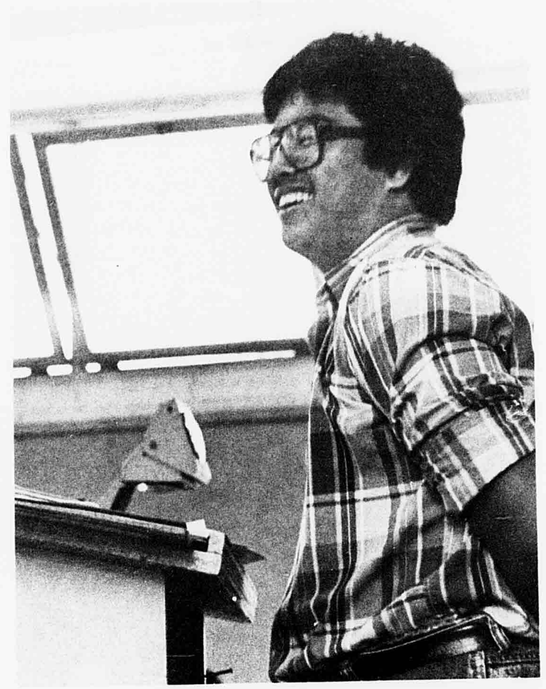

Students were also required to pass the Hawaii State Test for Essential Competencies before being allowed to graduate. Courses to help those who failed to pass were offered.

Publications classes underwent a major change when Mrs. May Lee Chung opted to teach other Language Arts courses. There were new instructors in the classes, one for Yearbook and another for Newswriting.

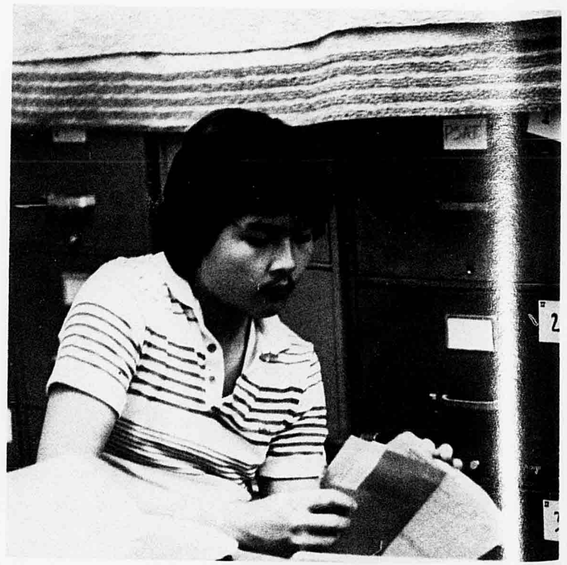

Despite all of the changes and progressions, education at McKinley remained basically strong: teachers who cared tried their best to teach and guide students to a better understanding of the world around them and of themselves. At its best, learning at McKinley was exhilarating and inspiring for both teacher and pupil.

Social Studies Guidance Center on Life Expansion

Progressive changes at McKinley affected the Social Studies Department. The opening of two honors American History and Government classes resulted in the expansion of the Gifted and Talented Program. The ESL Program was also expanded.

After sophomore course requirements were completed, courses such as psychology, humanities and sociology were available to students. These courses proved extremely popular as indicated by the rapid closing of these classes during the scramble.

Although changes occured in the Social Studies Department, the main purpose and objective remained the same. The purpose was to equip each student with knowledge, skills, attitudes and values that are needed to give responsible direction to the student's life. The student being able to apply the knowledge and understanding of man to decision-making and problem-solving situations was another aim of the department.

McKinley's social studies program provided the student with a balance between development of self, responsibility to society and responsiblity to one's environment.

McKinley's guidance course was designed to help students in planning for the future. The class helped students in selecting a college or university and in how to apply for financial aid. Information for the individual student's potential aptitude, directions of interest motivations, and for information about education opportunities and occupational requirements were included in the course.

Diversity Hallmarks Language Arts and Foreign Language Courses

The Language Arts and Foreign Language Departments provided a diverse array of courses designed to aid students with different interests and abilities in bettering their communications skills.

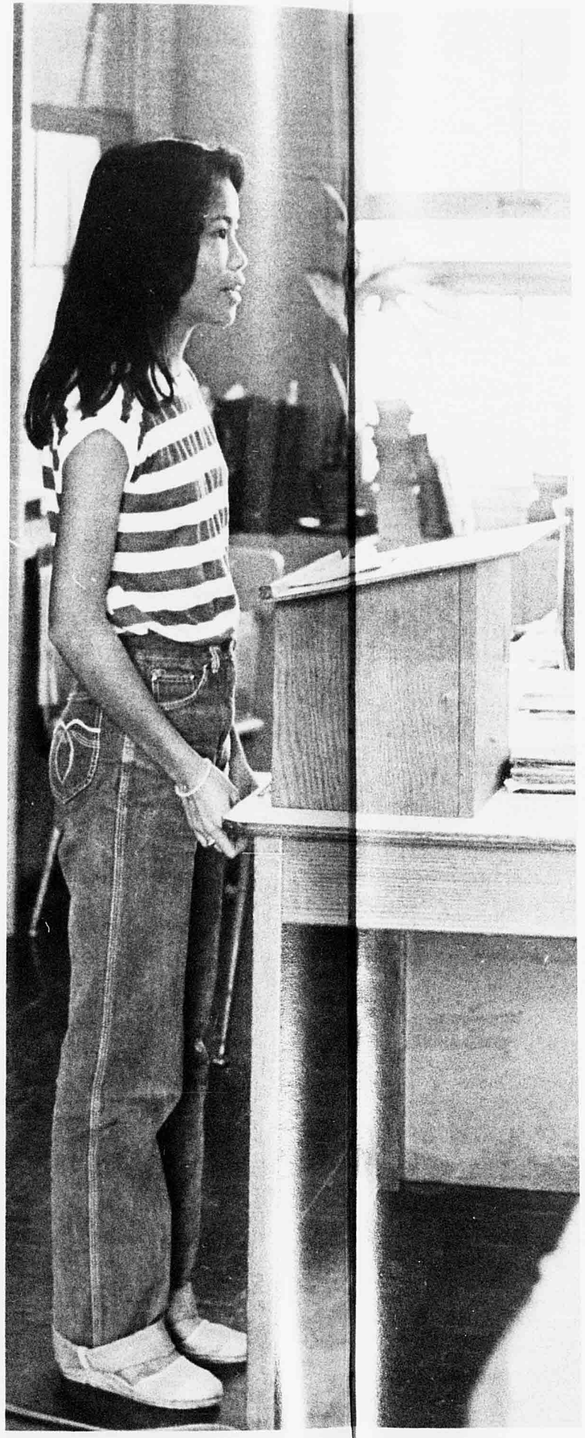

Students could take courses in Chinese, French, Japanese, Japanese Culture or Spanish as electives, and the instructors made the classes interesting and worthwhile. Unusual activities such as field trips to see foreign films, pinata making and other native crafts and preparation of foods from the different cultures sparked the interests of many students. By the year's end, the students had gained more knowledge and appreciation of the culture and language of a different country.

After taking Expository Writing, Oral Communication, and American Literature, students were free to choose from a variety of courses that ranged from Newswriting I to Polynesian Literature. Again, some instructors used varied approaches to stimulate interest and enthusiasm in their sometimes "captive" audiences. Mrs. Bernice Ushiroda's Creative Writing class wrote plays which were later performed by the class for kindergarten and fourth grade children at Kaahumanu Elementary School. Other field trips to the Academy of Arts, T.V. and radio stations, to theaters to see plays and films were all part of the program.

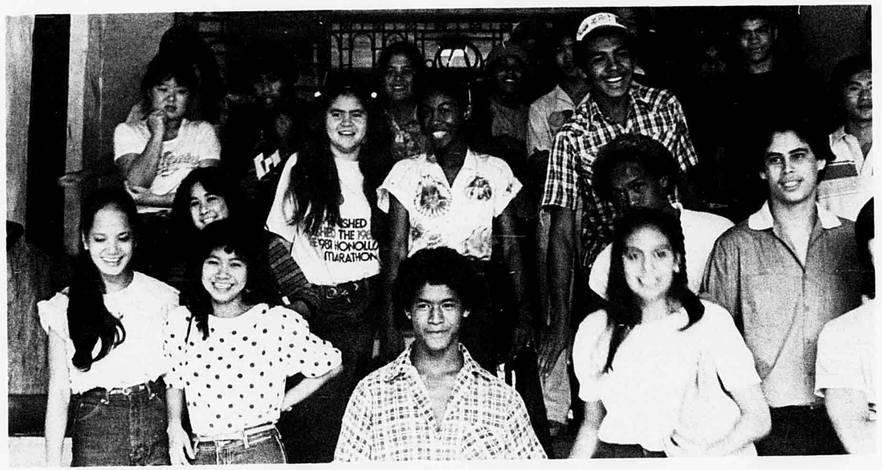

All teachers seemed to try hard in imparting knowledge of language and communication to their students through orthodox as well as unorthodox approaches.

Fine Arts Add Sparkle to Curriculum

Many students, creative juices running high, found outlets in McKinley's fine arts courses: art, drama, and music.

Students whose creative energies flow toward visual concepts had a choice of courses ranging from Basic Art for the beginning artist, to the Enrichment Program for the artistically gifted and talented. Under the guidance of the art department's talented teachers, interested pupils developed fine skills such as hand to eye coordination, communication through the visual arts, and technique. Students were encouraged to be creative and to develop original ideas for projects in their respective classes.

Another aspect of the field of visual arts is drama. McKinley's students were exposed to the various techniques involved in the multi-faceted area known as drama. Beginning acting students concentrated on exercises designed to free the body and the voice while the more advanced students focused on the further development of these skills as well as acquiring new ones. Specialized workshop directors in mime and dance were brought in to help the students.

The auditory counterpart of drama and the arts is music. However a student may choose to express his musical talent, McKinley has a course to suit that individual, whether their interests run to vocal or instrumental expression. McKinley's music students participated in the various concerts presented throughout the year by the band and the choir.

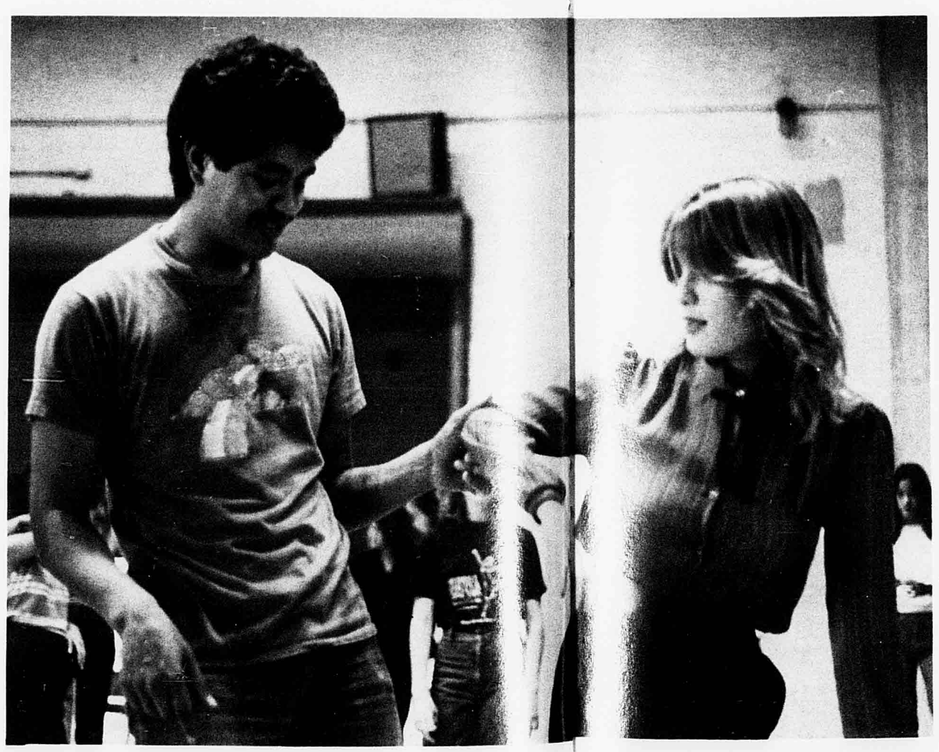

A few students in the fine arts even participated in McKinley's KIKI Brown Bags to Stardom competition back in November.

Math and Science Seek Hard-line Mental Discipline

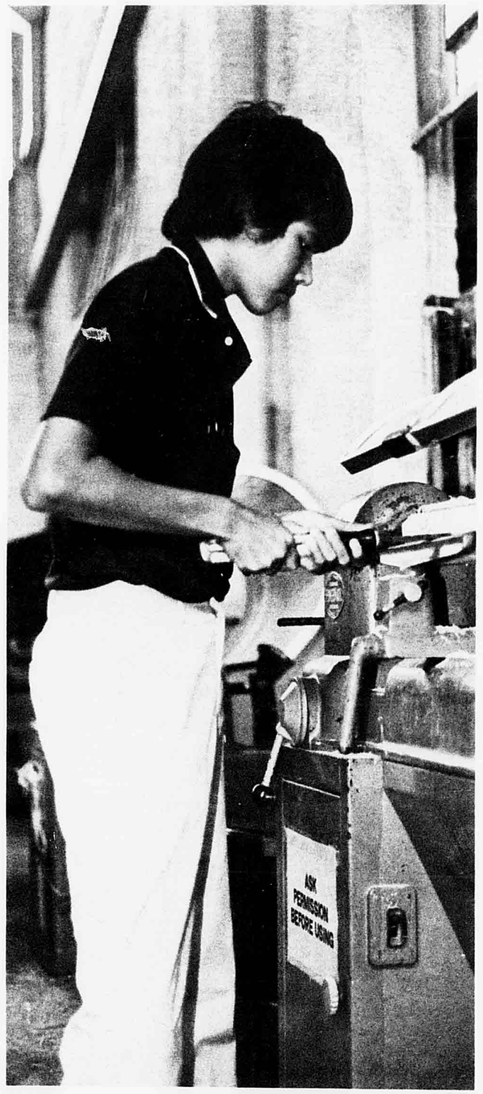

McKinley High School has always excelled in the field of mathematics and science. The math team, for example, has had a great record this year participating in several math meets around Oahu and also in in the Math Bowl.

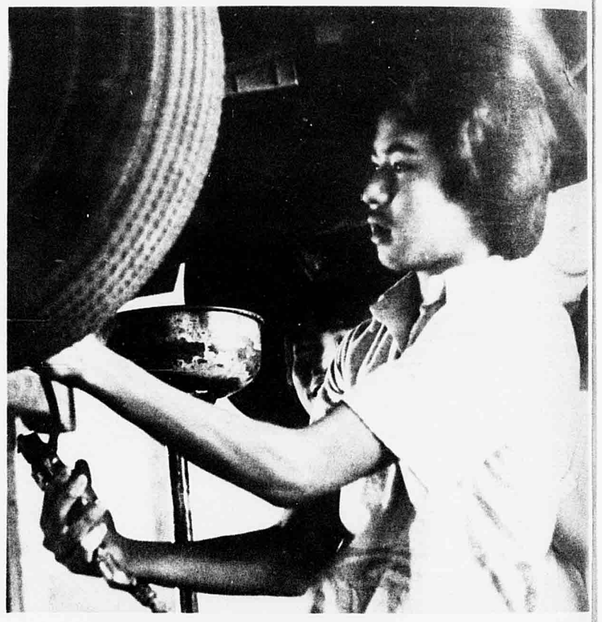

The variety of classes offered afforded the student a wider knowledge of the discipline. From number systems to calculus, the department provided only the best in mathematics education.

In science, McKinley's Zoo Instructor Program (ZIP) gave the students a unique chance at working in a different environment as well as providing a chance to better understand the habits of the animals. Other courses included physics, biology, marine science and chemistry.

With this exciting variety of course offerings and the quality and enthusiasm of the teaching staff, the students gained a greater knowledge of math and science.

Post High Prep

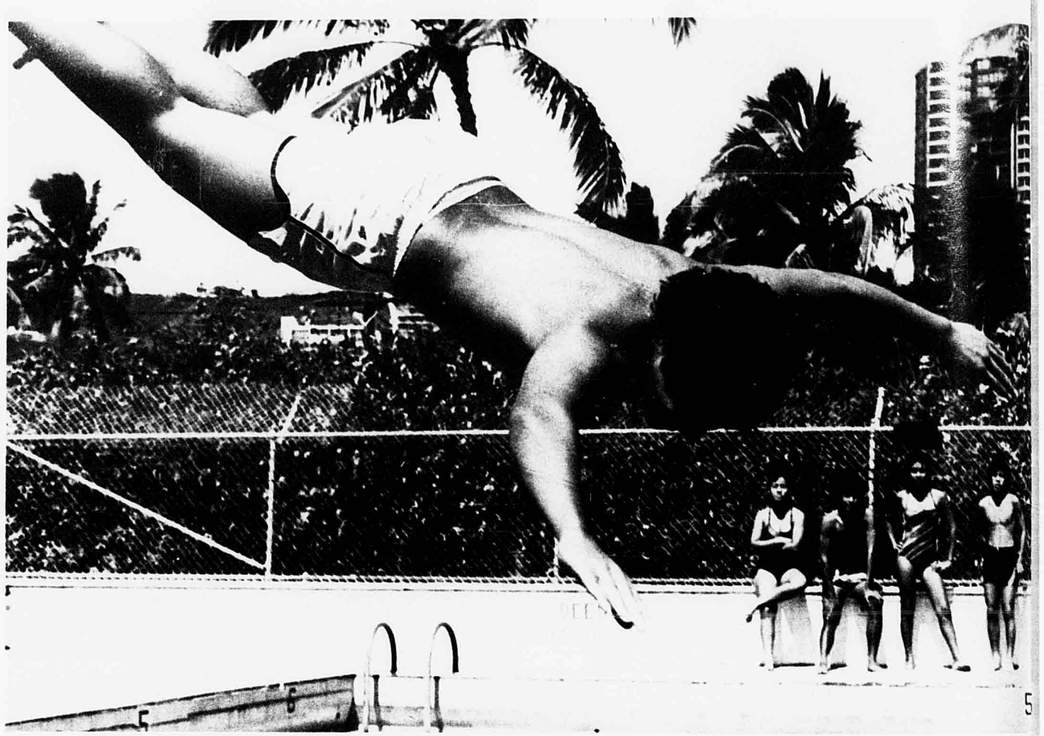

In an attempt to prepare students for life after high school, the Business, Home Economics and Industrial Arts departments offered a large, maybe even dazzling, array of courses. The following is but a scant sampling of classes offered: Business Computer Programming, Mechanical Drawing II, Ornamental Horticulture I, Personality Development, Business Law, Family Foods, Architectural Drafting and Woods I.

This year, McKinley was adopted by the Hawaiian Regent Hotel, and this allowed the Business Department an added chance to give its students a first hand look at business at work. They went on several trips to the hotel and observed the employees working on various jobs. Another addition to the activities of the Business Department was the instruction on cash register operation in the Business Machines course.

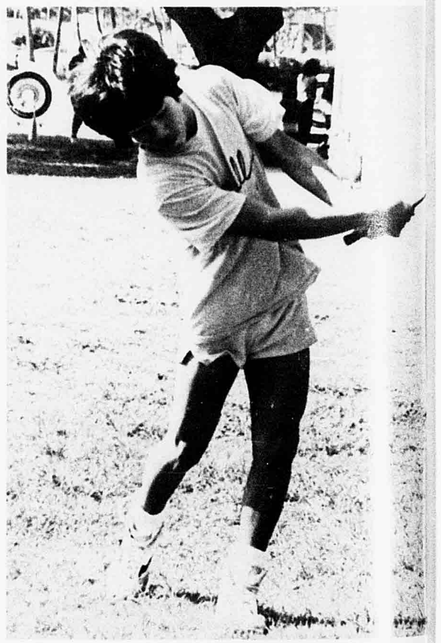

The courses in the Home Economics Department were aimed at giving each student the opportunity to develop to their fullest potential. Courses were divided up into two groups: practical arts courses and vocational-technical courses. The practical arts courses focused on daily life skills and the vo-tech courses prepared students for entry-level jobs in pre-schools and the food service industry. Students involved in the vo-tech courses went through job shadowing and were able to get hands-on experience in different occupations. Through field trips, guest speakers and job placement assistance, all of the students gained a better understanding of daily life and of getting a job.

Students taking courses in the Industrial Arts Department were able to explore different areas of trade. The courses that they took taught them entry-level skills and also gave them an idea of what skills were involved in professions in auto mechanics, drafting, printing, agriculture and electronics. The instructors encouraged the students to pursue their interest in the industrial arts further at community college or in an apprenticeship program.

Total fitness was the main concern of the Health/P.E. Department. The department provided students with opportunities to acquire understanding and skill in a wide variety of sports in order to carry over into their leisure time throughout their lifetime. Its goal was to assist in the understanding and appreciation of the relationships between physical activity and fitness in order to obtain lifelong health and well-being. This year, an effort was made to encourage on-going fitness by successfully offering upper division semester classes such as weight training, aerobic dancing and choices of team and/or individual sports.

For sophomore physical education students, a mini-scramble was held at the beginning of each semester. Swimming, a unit that was not offered last year due to a pump breakage in the pool, was offered to students again. Students had an opportunity to swim, learn basic rescue techniques and play aquatic games. Among other choices were tennis, archery, badminton and football.

A new home was found for the health classes where the "old library" was formerly located. This new layout provided for both team and individual teaching as well as flexibility important to the health curriculum.

Health education stressed the mental, emotional and physical well-being of the student. Some of the units that were covered during the semester included developing self-concept, physical, emotional and social growth and development, weight control, sex education, diseases and first aid. All students were also given the opportunity to earn a certification in cardio-pulmonary resuscitation.

Special Courses Emphasize Basic Skills

Meeting the needs of students in special situations was the objective of the Students with Limited English Proficiency (SLEP), Special Education, the Course for Essential Competency Certification (CECC) and English Workshop programs.

The SLEP program, operated by fifteen members, was designed to help students from other countries learn English as a second language and to help them adjust socially. The students got involved in the Christmas door decoration contest and other holiday activities like Christmas tree decorating in order to familiarize them with American culture, "Hawaiian style."

SMP offered courses in English, math, science, social studies, guidance, PE and work study to students with difficulties in learning. The program staffed with four teachers served about 80 students.

This year, the Special Education Program offered two new courses, one in science and the other in occupational skills in addition to courses in math, guidance, health, skill development, communication skills and work study. Three new teachers were added to the existing staff which provided educational experiences to students with visual and auditory impairments and other learning disabilities.

The program for the deaf was just one part of the Special Education Program, but it differed in that it offered only support services and all of its students were integrated into regular classes. Ms. Gaile Sykes offered her students tutoring, career guidance and instruction in lip reading and social skills.

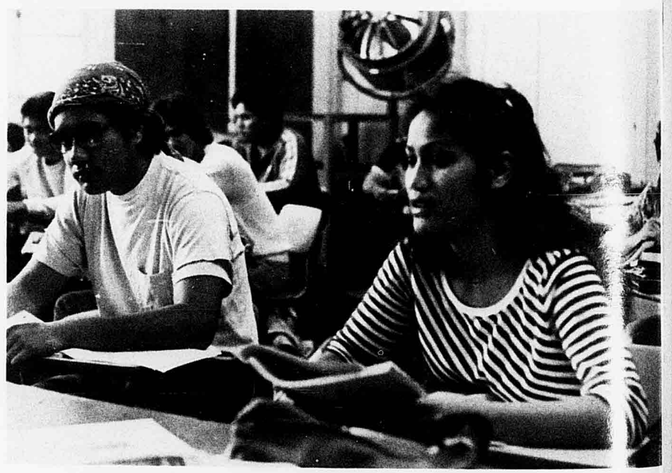

CECC was a one semester course designed to help students pass the Hawaii State Test for Essential Competencies (HSTEC) which all students were required to pass before graduation. Students were taught "survival" skills: things they would need to know in order to be able to function as independent adults.

An intensive basic skills course, the English Workshop was designed for students who needed assistance in acquiring the skills to master the essential competencies. Mrs. Jane Yamashiroya and two part-time English and reading teachers worked with groups of students to teach reading, writing and oral communication skills.

Students Gain Insights Into Leadership

▲ DAVID GHANHINHIN and CYD YANAGIHARA replace the light bulbs in the showcase located in front of the Cooperative Education classroom.

The McKinley JROTC Program offered much to its participants. With such goals as an increase in appreciation for good ethical values and principles, development of leadership skills and familiarity with the U.S. Army and the services it offers, the members of JROTC worked on developing these skills and knowledge.

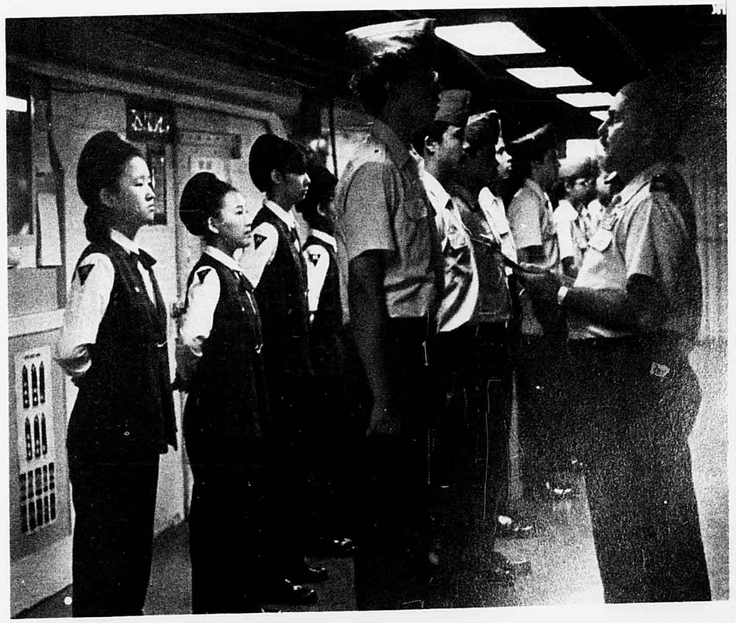

They participated in various activities this year such as the laying of wreaths at the Arizona Memorial, marching in the Veteran's Day Parade, sponsoring the Military Ball, camping at Schofield and competing in the Annual Field Day Competition.

The Cooperative Education Program was for seniors who have met their credit requirements and are interested in a part-time job. Students worked during their fifth and sixth periods at anywhere from Zippy's to Kramers. It provided a chance for seniors to earn some money and learn more about the working world.

School service allowed students to learn about business administration and other office skills. Students worked as aides to counselors, teachers, the business staff, health room personnel, the library staff and the school secretary under this program.

FACULTY

MHS Teachers - A Class by Themselves

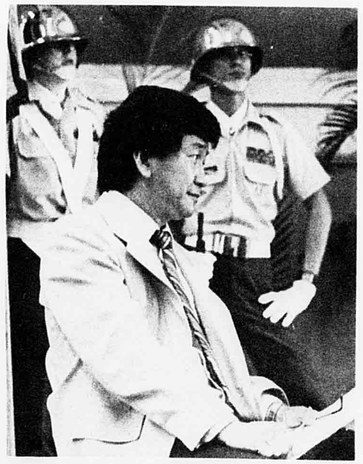

I have said often that McKinley is the best high school in Hawaii. It helps to have excellent students and programs. But most important, the school is blessed with a staff of "master" teachers. Teachers are the "catalysts" that make things happen at a school. At McKinley, many good things are happening as a result of teachers.

Where most schools usually have only a "handful" of "master" teachers, McKinley has over half of its staff in that category. A "master" teacher is a "super" or extraordinary teacher. He/she is conscientious and dedicated and does an excellent job of teaching--one who motivates or stimulates students to want to learn and reach their potential. A "master" teacher is committed to the profession--one who spends many extra hours in non-instructional school-related activities such as serving as an advisor or a member of a school committee, project or function. He/she is also one who provides the "caring" of students and for the school. The "master" teacher prides him/herself on being "super"--he/she is never satisfied. Finally, the "master" teacher performs in the above-excellent level consistently--being "super" is not a "one-shot" performance.

Fortunately, I am surrounded with a staff of many, many "master" teachers. McKinley's teachers are in a class by themselves.

Faculty Goes The Extra Mile

Everyday faculty and staff members could be seen working with students and committees. They got involved with every aspect of McKinley life, not just teaching. The faculty played a major role in extra-curricular activities. From carnival clean-up to school plays or chaperoning at a dance, teachers were in the thick of things.

They lent a helping hand in more ways than one. They offered advice not only about the lessons they taught but about all sorts of things. When a student was down and needed encouragement, many times this help came from a teacher who was willing to give that extra minute.

All this was what made the Tiger faculty and staff so very special. They got to know their pupils, they tried to understand, and best of all, they were always there when the students needed them.

Service Aides Make Campus Liveable Space

Support services at McKinley were at an all-time high with the campus looking green and clean and beautiful, with incidents of student misbehavior under control and lunch and snack services well attended.

The custodial staff under the management of Mr. E. Victorino kept the campus and its buildings in peak condition while the cafeteria staff under Mrs. Sharon Young, brand new to the campus, kept the students satisfied with the tasty and nutritious snacks and lunches. The security aides kept "peace" on the campus and incidents of misbehavior to a minimum.

McKinley would not have been able to function at its optimum level without these hard-working personnel.

CLASS OF 1985

Sophs Progress to Become MHS Ohana

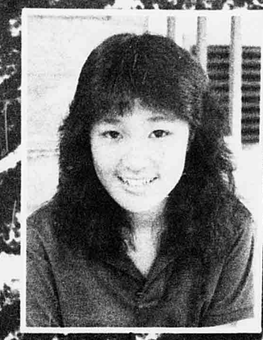

For the incoming Sophomores, it was indeed a time of progression as they began the adjustment to life at McKinley, a new bell schedule, having only three classes a day (except fridays), and an unlimited number of school activities. Coming out of different middle schools such as Kaimuki, Washington, Stevenson, and Central, the newcomers quickly united as one as they prepared for their first initiation as they entered their class as native Mustangs.

700 ET-like Creatures Invade MHS

It was September 2, 1982, at 9:00 a.m. Approximately 700 ET-like beings were wandering about the campus in a state of confusion. They were, of course, the new sophomores, the Class of 1985.

Entering McKinley for the first time can be just like being abandoned on a strange planet. Like ET, who was unaccustomed to our "earthly ways," McKinley's sophomores were unfamiliar with the traditions, rules, and activities of the school.

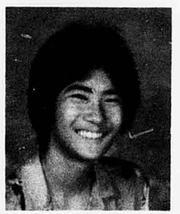

Various individuals found themselves sitting in the wrong classroom only to be embarrassed by having to exit while all eyes were on them. Others were shocked by screams of "GET OFF THE OVAL!!" as they were about to set foot on it. Many, after a couple of weeks still did not know who "Sakamoto" or "Fukuhara" were. But, through trial and error and intelligent observation, they made a happy and quick adjustment to be in the groove.

Sophs Tackle Tough Tests

Once again, sophomores could be seen pondering over the Stanford Achievement Tests. Number two pencils were tapping away as the nervous sophs carefully filled each bubble.

This nationwide test, administered in October for three days, was taken in English classes. Students were given forty minutes each day to decipher the questions and select the best answers. The compiled reselts of all the students in Hawaii were compared with others from the mainland. The end scores revealed that the State of Hawaii has made good progress and this was a positive reflection on the sophomores.

CLASS OF 1984

Juniors Experience Action-packed Year

McKinley's Juniors tested themselves to an action-packed year of spirit and achievement. The frowns at the beginning of their second year at McKinley soon gave way to smiles as they became involved in their special activities.

Homecoming competition made them winners. The Junior Class took third place both in the door decoration and float contests.

Junior Class Week was full of craziness and excitement. Backwards Day and Punk Day added new twists to the fun-filled week. The class play full of songs and dances got the Class of '84 hyped up for the ultimate event of the year: Junior Prom.

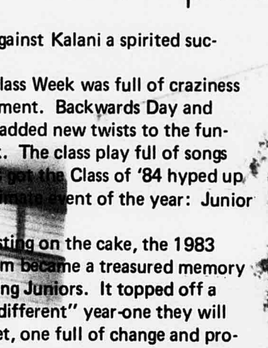

Like frosting on the cake, the 1983 Junior Prom became a treasured memory for attending Juniors. It topped off a "new and different" year-one they will never forget, one full of change and progression.

Seniors Rally Together for Outstanding Year

Using the expertise and knowlege gained from the past two years, the Class of '83 was prepared to show the underclassmen what being a "Mighty Senior" really meant.

Despite some controversy over the seating arrangement during the first pep rally, the Seniors rallied together and proved to the student body that the Senior Spirit was alive and hard to beat. During the year they had won quite a few rallies which included their own.

Seniors Rally Together for Outstanding Year

Using the expertise and knowlege gained from the past two years, the Class of '83 was prepared to show the underclassmen what being a "Mighty Senior" really meant.

Despite some controversy over the seating arrangement during the first pep rally, the Seniors rallied together and proved to the student body that the Senior Spirit was alive and hard to beat. During the year they had won quite a few rallies which included their own.

ter only a few days of practice and the almost exact precision of the " sensuous" Seniorettes.

Homecoming 1982 came barely a week after the class game. Top honors as well as a $75 monetary award were given to the class for the Homecoming Float Competition during halftime of the Homecoming Game on October 16.

May 23-27, an especially outstanding memory.

The second to the last event in which the Class of '83 would spend together was the Senior Dinner Prom held at the Hawaiian Regent Hotel's Hawaiian Ballroom. Being the social event of the year this formal-floral prom included a prime rib dinner, music provided by Kaleidoscope, and portraits by Studio 3. Saturday, May 28, 1982 from 6:00 p.m. to

Future Gleams Brightly

As the seniors reflected on their earlier days at McKinley, many memories blossomed. Some were pleasant and others a bit bitter, but these memories will forever be a part of them.

Now they go on to a new phase. Some will go on to college and others will begin to work for their living. But whatever they do or wherever they go, they will carry with them the memories of McKinley High School.

The seniors will leave behind a legacy of great pride and spirit for the underclassmen to emulate. But that spirit isn't only left behind, for each senior carries with him his own little part of greatness that was the class of '83.

Backward Glances, Precious Moments

I'll never forget the time I made five interceptions in one game when I played JV football. ALBERTO VILLAVER

My treasured high school memories include being on the best drill team on this island and being in the drama class...also being picked up for truancy for the first time. CHI HUNG LIAO

I'll never forget my trip to Japan with the band in my sophomore year. I wish it could've last longer though, like a few years! KRIS TAGAWA

The one memory I'll never forget is when I was in the "Growing Up Naked" play last year. It was very exciting and helped me to learn a lot. LISA FERREIRA

The most memorable time in my 3 years at McKinley was when somebody yelled "get off the oval." This really showed me to respect the school's tradition and be part of the school's family. MARIO FUENTES

McKinley has wonderful teachers who help and greet you each morning; and this school works together as a family, and that's what I would remember for years to come. ROBIN ADKINS

Prom Night Sparkles with Elegance, Beauty

Upon entering the Hawaiian Regent's Hawaiian Ballroom, the scent of flowers and perfume was heavy in the air. Under the glittering lights, couples sparkled in thier formal dress.

From the start of the Senior Prom, excitement was high in the air as couples took their seats in preparation for dinner or posed for portraits by Studio 3. As the evening got under way, seniors enjoyed their prime rib dinners, and danced to the music of the local band, Kaleidescope.

In a beautiful ceremony, Scott Ando and Alison Uda were crowned King and Queen by principal Richard Sakamoto. Then the royal pair led the court onto the dance floor and sparkled as they danced elegantly to a traditional waltz.

Because this was the last time the senior class would be together before commencement exercises, everyone who attended the prom treasured the event as a night to remember. Themed "Leaving for a Dream," the prom became one of many treasured memories for seniors who would soon move out of high school and into "big" world.

BLACK AND GOLD

Black and gold is waving,
Boys we're back of you.
Play your way to victory,
We'll be ever true.
Eager eyes are watching,
Hearts are beating fast,
For McKinley's honor,
Fight, boys to the last.

THE McKINLEY ALMA MATER

Hail McKinley, hail
Hail McKinley, hail
Thy sons and daughters
Sing thy praise,
And loyal serve thee all their days.
Alma Mater, thee alone we love,
And thy colors floating high above.
Hail McKinley, hail

Reflections Reveal an Exercise in Progression

In many ways, McKinley has experienced a number of innovations, most of which were beneficial to students, faculty, and staff members alike. One of these changes was the opening of a new, more spacious library which houses an extensive source of materials. Keeping up with today's technology, classes in business and math experimented with computers and learned skills which are essential for success in the future. A revised bell schedule was implemented to improve our long standing double period classes, and Student Council elections enjoyed an increase in participation. New activities such as the Reindeer Run, Balloonogram Sale, and Trashbags to Nowhere Assembly offered students a chance to be crazy and have fun.

Students and teachers received a pleasant surprise at one of the first pep rallies of the year. As part of the Hawaii Hotel Association's "Adopt a High School Program," McKinley was taken under the wing of the Hawaiian Regent Hotel. Classes took advantage of this opportunity to see first hand how a major hotel operates and caters to its clientele by arranging field trips and career-shadowing sessions.

In keeping with tradition, two young trees were planted and dedicated with ceremony to the late Sgt. Daniel Abella and the Senior Class. The Chinese banyan or "lollipop" tree dedicated to the Senior Class was part of a campus-wide beautification project and replaced the missing tree on the front lawn.

As the school develops and improves, and new faces come and go beneath his watchful gaze, President William McKinley's statue stands as a reminder of what is traditionally McKinley.

Aliens, Tragedies, Miracles Climax Eventful Year

A myriad of happenings distinguished the 1982-83 year from previous ones. The public was repeatedly beseiged by little outerspace creatures and amazed by disasters and medical breakthroughs. Hopes of national economic recovery were contrasted with tragic deaths and warfare abroad. Following are comments by students concerning a few of the events which marked this year.

Cyanide-laced Tylenol

The scare made me paranoid. Every time I got a headache, I didn't know whether to take Tylenol or not. It was either living with a headache or taking a chance of dying. LISA KANESHIRO

...scary because I always (used to) take Tylenol. NAOMI WEIGEL

I think the person who actually put cyanide into Tylenol is crazy and something should be done to him. It also caused the Tylenol company a huge amount of money. It was a crazy act to do. ELSIE AYSON

I'm glad I didn't have a headache. SAM HUFF

I wasn't really scared because I don't use Tylenol but it made me cautious about other aspirins. I check out the box to see if it has been tampered with. EDWINA SILVA

E.T. is the cutest little green creature I have ever seen. He showed how much love and happiness can be brought about by friendship. JANIS OKAWAKI

It was very entertaining especially since I saw it three times a day, six days a week, for two and a half months working at Waikiki Twin Theatres. MICHAEL SHIKUMA

Hurricane Iwa

Hurricane Iwa was a threatening feeling for everyone. No one knew what was going to happen next. Everyone helped with each other helping out neighbors or friends, even people they didn't know. That showed the ALOHA SPIRIT. DONNA KANEMARU

It was kind of exciting because of the blackouts and such. It was hard because electricity wasn't working and you couldn't eat anything. TERESA COLE

After the struggle of one hour and forty-one minutes in Calculus class, I was hearing something that I could not believe. THE SCHOOL IS CLOSED REST OF THE DAY! Well, because of the storm, I could rest for couple of days but I would rather not go through that situation again. KEUMJUNG CHUNG

It was pretty scary because there was no light, but yet I had fun. The worst part o f it was taking cold baths. DONNA YAMASHITA

I'd remember Hurricane Iwa. It has been years since Hawaii has had a hurricane. It left the islands in shock. Hurricane Iwa may have taken our property, but it didn't take the Aloha Spirit in the people of Hawaii. Many of the people supported the unfortunate ones who had lost their homes. Like the song says, "It didn't take away our pride." LINDA INATSUKA

I was so afraid because all electrical power was off. They even shut off the water lines. It makes everybody sad because some of the people lost their houses. JOEL CALDE TERA

I enjoyed E.T. tremendously. I think that if something like that were to happen it would be great. If I could have one wish, it would be to be able to have that kind of relationship with an outerspace creature. TRISH MAXWELL

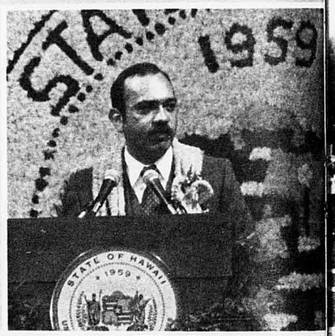

NFL Strike

I was really mad because I used to watch football every Sunday and now I have nothing to do. DAVID CHENG

In a way, the strike did affect many people including me. I personally enjoy watching football and making bets. There should have been other ways to solve the disputes. CINDY FUNAKOSHI

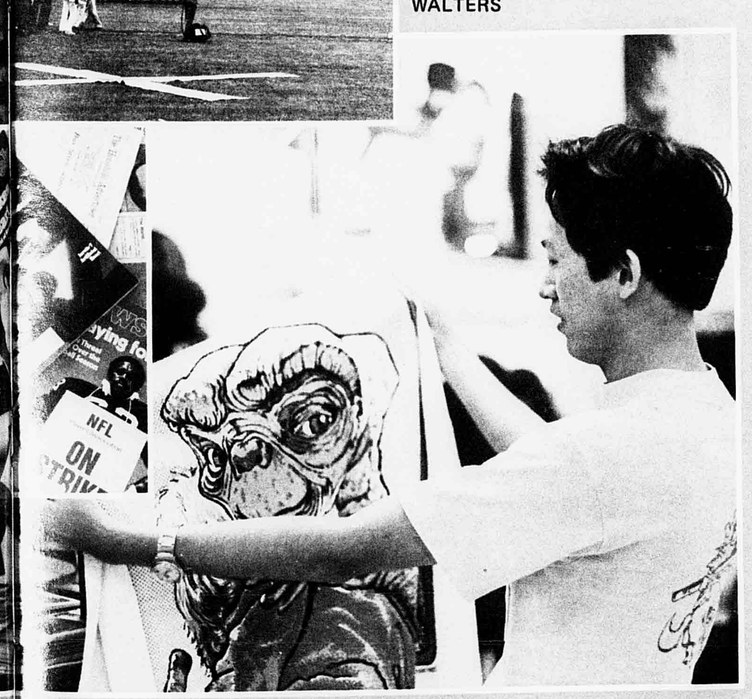

They shouldn't go on strike because they make more than enough. Look at other prople who are unemployed and who are in poverty. HOWARD KIM

This could kick off a trend in other sports. KEVIN POLK

Ice Palace

I feel that the opening of an ice skating rink in Hawaii is very good. We get the chance to do something fun that we never thought we could do. JAMIE NUGENT

If you bruise your butt, you could just sit down, and it wouldn't get swollen, so I guess it was OK. BRIAN YOSHIKAWA

It's good fun. Otherwise, you wouldn't get to skate because it doesn't get cold enough here. RAINE ASATO

Brezhnev

When I heard about Brezhnev dying, the first thing I thought of was, maybe now the U.S. and Russia can live in peace. DAN VARNEY

When Brezhnev's death was announced, my first reaction was that I would experience war for the first time in my life. I didn't want to die so soon. MARTY WALTERS

Russian Cosmos

The people of Hawaii wasn't even affected by the Russian Cosmos. I bet to most, it really didn't matter where it fell, but if it fell here, then we would panic. LANCE KANESHIRO

I think nations who use satellites should have a self-destruct device onboard for emergency situations such as the Cosmos. I also think the Russians should pay for the cleanup of any radioactive fallout from the Cosmos satellite. MICHAEL COMMAND

I didn't want it to fall in my backyard. LISA TANAKA

'Tootsie'

I think Dustin Hoffman is a real good actor. For a woman impersonator, I think he looks cute. The movie was really good, real to life and funny. I want to see it again. MINHCHAU TRINH

"Tootsie" is an inspiring movie, especially to those who have specific goals ahead of them. This movie depicts determination and self-confidence to succeed in bringing those goals into reality. TODD NISHIMURA

'Bear' Bryant

A light has disappeared in the world of football. SUSAN YAMAMOTO

We lost one of football's greatest men. He was a legend and will be missed greatly. KATY CLARK

McKINLEY HIGH SCHOOL LIBRARY
1039 South King Street
Honolulu, Hawaii 96814

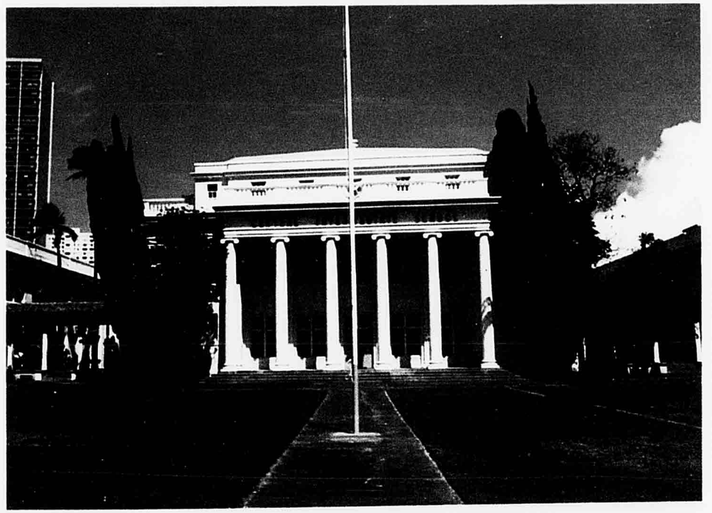

We come from many different places...

From McCully Street to Wyllie Street, from Washington Intermediate to Kawananakoa and from the suburbs to downtown, we come from many different places. We come to McKinley to be a part of one.

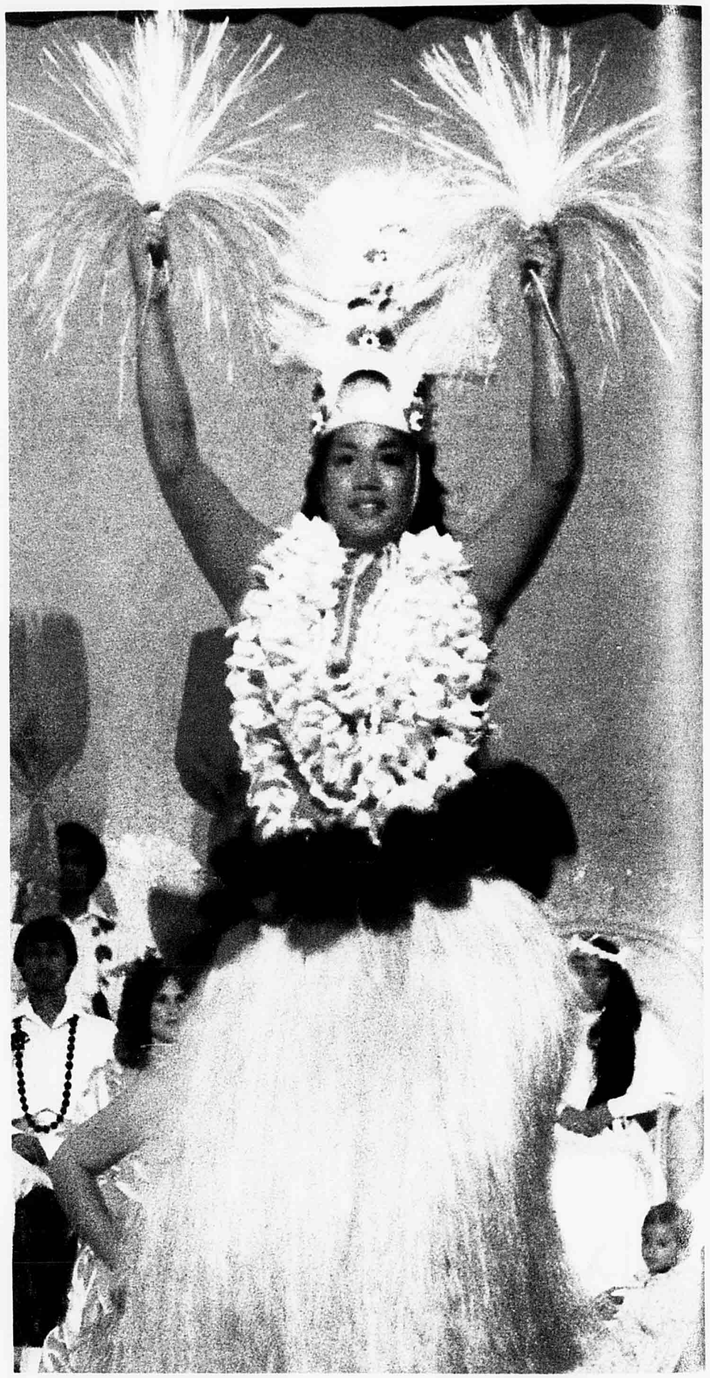

Whether we are living in Kukui Gardens, a luxury condominium in Waikiki, an apartment in Moiliili, a kamaaina home in Puunui, or on a boat at Ala Wai Yacht Harbor, we all share one thing in common...the sense of being a part of McKinley.

There are those with district exceptions, and like some of the teachers travel a long way to get to the school they love. Cheryl and Trent Takaoka ride to school all the way from Kailua to spend 6 hours a day, five days a week to become part of the McKinley family.

Then there are others who are spending their first year here at McKinley for they are the newly-located from the mainland and the orient. Darren Robinson from Pennsylvania, Jody Marques from Arizona, Maynida Weital from Ponape Island, Do Hee Kim from Korea, Efren Polycarp from Palau and Goan-Wen Wang from China come to this very special place in the heart of Honolulu we call McKinley High School.

We come from many different places, and with us we bring our different cultures. Take a stroll on our campus, and you will find that our school is a microcosm of our state, the "melting pot" of the Pacific...an American Indian boy walking hand in hand with a girl from Taiwan sharing lunch-time conversation, the theatre group casting a show with a family made up of a variety of races, the newly-organized Cosmopolitan Club, the football team wtih Samoans, Hawaiians and Haoles sweating side by side to make the Tigers the tops, the many ethnic clubs on campus.

A variety of clothing, unique faces and different languages spoken distinguish each group, but still there is an atmosphere of togetherness; for we are learning that with a better understanding of the different cultures, our generation can possibly live and work together in harmony.

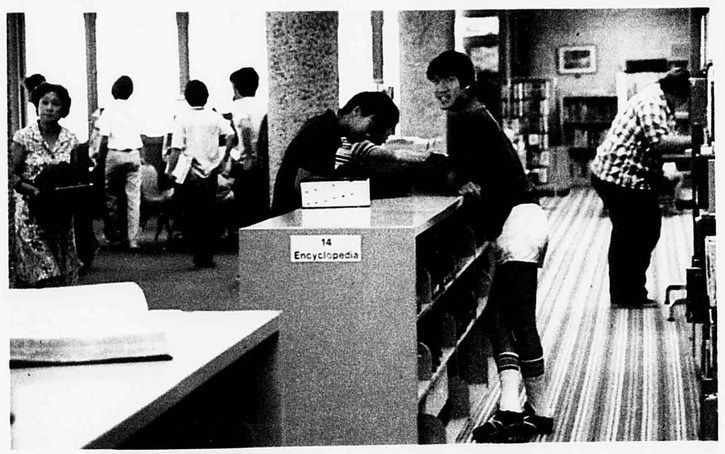

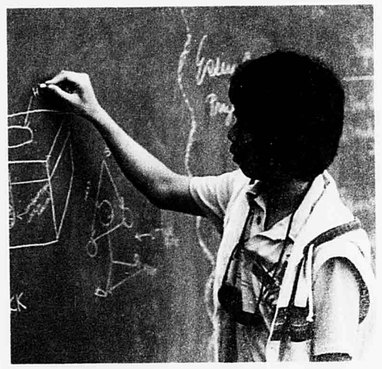

Each day holds new experiences for us. A sophomore learns not to walk on the oval; he learns the new cheers and routines at the football games; he learns the school's alma mater and the unique "Black and Gold" and learns to sing in harmony and with respect these songs of tradition.

We also learn other things from each other. Even a broken romance can teach us possibly how to live. Teachers, counselors, books talk about morals, philosophy, priorities besides the basics of reading, writing, mathematics, science and now computer tech, all readying us and stimulating us for adulthood and the life experiences to come.

Yes, we learn something everyday, but it will never be too much.

To play and compete, laugh and enjoy...

For many of the guys, hanging around near the cafeteria during recess and lunch or watching the "chicks" go by can be the mellowest thing about school. For many of the girls, discussing a new shade of lipstick or nail polish or the cute guy in biology class can be the ultimate experience.

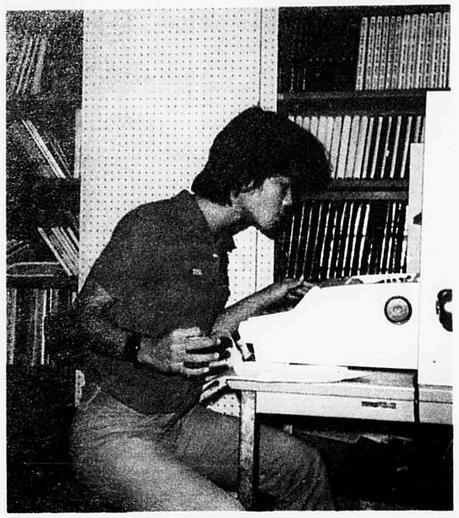

We laugh and enjoy many things in school; and to top it all, many times we learn from these "fun" experiences...rocking out with the visiting Air Force Band, rooting for our favorite during the "Brown Bags to Stardom" competitions, being deeply moved by the musical, "Charlie and Algernon," wearing costumes to school for Halloween, competing in the annual Christmas Song Fest.

For all of us, school provides us the opportunities and experiences for us to mature in the social graces and interpersonal relationships with our peers and our teachers.

△△ ZACHARY FRANCISCO, junior, has some fun as he demonstrates some fancy frisbee catches during the visit of the Jammers Professional Frisbee Team. △ "Eh, what's up, Tana and Wes?" A friendly smile from TANA ALU-ALU and WESLEY FERNANDEZ as the Black and Gold photographer greet them at the lunch line.

To work together in various ways...

McKinley is like a picture puzzle... every piece so different, yet they fit together to create a complete experience. Even if only one piece is missing, the picture is incomplete. And so it is on our campus. Everyone works together to create a bond of unity, harmony, and pride.

Each float that the various clubs put together for the Homecoming Parade is a product of teamwork and imagination. So is the basketball team doing their best on the court, the yearbook staff working to meet their deadly deadlines, the entire school pulling together to sell Zippy Coupons or getting the May Day pageant together.

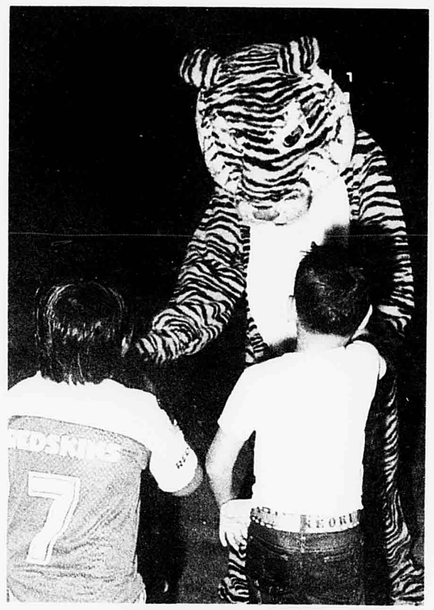

Whether we are aware of it or not, we are constantly working together in hopes that our end-product will be a success.

To share ideas, our talents and our time...

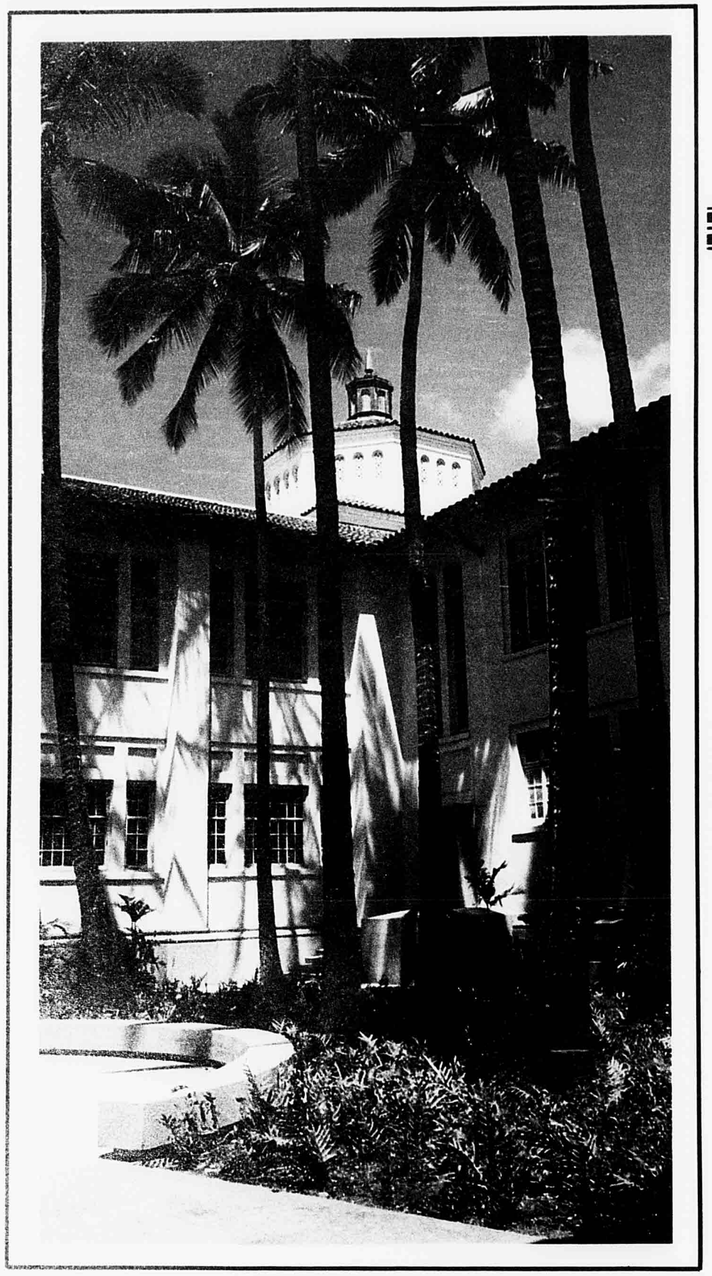

The Student Council needs ideas to make campus activities come to life. The band and choir constantly share their talents with the rest of the student body so we can enjoy good music throughout the year. The teachers give of their time outside of class as advisors so we can get that much needed extra help.

The last bell of the day rings, but there is still much discussion and learning going on and rehearsals being held so that students and teachers alike can share the good times.

IN HARMONY with our space and our fellow man

It will be wonderful if the "aloha" spirit permeated our Aloha State. Perhaps we can start at a little place called McKinley High School and strive for harmony with our beautiful surroundings.

It is often said that McKinley's campus is one of the most beautiful in our islands. Many liken it to a college campus, and many T.V. productions and commercials are shot on our front lawn. The pride we have for our school makes us strive to keep the walls of our buildings free of graffitti and the grounds free of litter.

But more important is the fact that we should strive for harmony with our fellow man. Once more we work towards this end. Each act of isubordination, each fight that breaks out on campus, each act of "hi-jacking" can set us back in our goal of achieving harmony with our fellowman.

But possibly we can learn from all of these experiences so that we can live with respect towards others and for ourselves.

STAFF & CURRICULA

TO LEARN was a joy and it brought about a certain harmony of mind and body. To learn from so many wonderful teachers was also a joy that will linger for many years to come.

administration

Staff, Curricula Combine For Top-Notch Learning

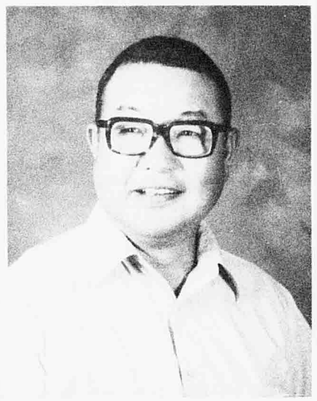

MR. RICHARD SAKAMOTO
Principal

Students of McKinley were extremely fortunate to have a number of master teachers at the helm of many classes. Principal Richard Sakamoto constantly reiterated that the school was blessed with a staff of these versatile teachers who were able to make their classes come to life whether it was Mathematics, Industrial Arts, English, or Social Studies.

The teachers continually contributed to the marvelous reputation of McKinley that Mr. Sakamoto once again entered the school as a contender of outstanding high school in the state for national competitions and evaluations.

The thrust of subjects taught by teachers took on a decided focus towards "mastery learning." Mastery learning involved being taught basic principles of the course step by step then being examined on them. If students did not pass the carefully prepared examinations, they were once more given further instructions and practice and then tested again until they "mastered" each step.

This process led to most students being able to tackle the Hawaii State Test of Essential Competencies with relative ease so they were able to graduate. "Back to basics" was also continually being stressed, and the school library offered more services for both students and teachers in doing research work and study.

Student Services Abound

Student services abound on campus, and teachers have been given special assignments and trained to help with the many student activities.

Librarians helped the individual student, an entire class or with teachers' curriculum needs. In a brand new air-conditioned library, Mrs. Audrey Chinn and Mrs. Patsy Suyat were kept busy with aiding both students and teachers besides keeping track of the many books and periodicals.

The athletic director and the student activities coordinator had their hands full as they organized the many activities of their respective areas. Mr. George Maeda advised many student council committees besides coordinating all SC events. Mr. Henry Kusunoki worked with the many sport events throughout the school year.

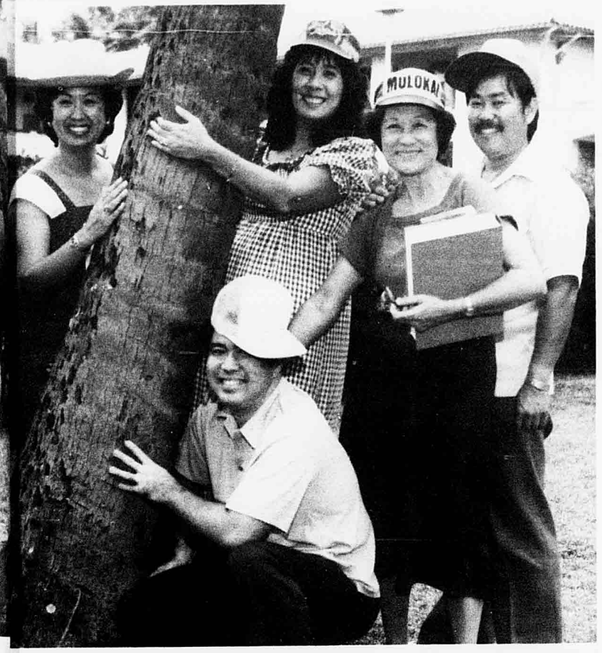

The registrar, Ms. Sylvia Lee, began her duties prior to school to get ready for registration duties. Her duties encompassed keeping and updating the many student records, preparing registration guides and procedures, and coordinating class schedules and grading systems.

Another busy man on campus was Mr. Dennis Sakata, the Media Coordinator, ranging from simple duplicating needs to complex sound effects for theatre productions. He also kept inventory of the many who primarily helped the teachers prepare media needs for their classes. He and his students worked on audio-visual requests and audio-visual equipment and worked out all film requests.

Mrs. Pat Lau, complex resource teacher, was kept busy with the many liason duties she was responsible for between McKinley and the Honolulu district office as well as with the feeder schools and other complex resource teachers.

Her main thrust was to work on curriculum updating and consistency and aiding the administration with the essential competencies and performance expectations.

Music, Art Departments Spark Student Talent

McKinley's Music and Art department helped unleash the various talents of the students. For the students in the music department, many learned what the words "pride and unity" really meant. They learned to have pride in themselves and for others. They cared for each other and shared with one another. They took time before and after school perfecting their skills they adapted from their intermediate and their elementary schools. Others began their music training in high school.

The music department included such courses as Wind Ensemble and the Symphonic Bands. They displayed their array of musical abilities to the student body with several concerts during assembly and evening performances. Other courses included Choir, Classic Piano, Jazz Band, and Music Theory, all designed for students who may want a music career.

McKinley's Art department was known as one of a kind on the islands with courses which other schools do not have. This included Weaving, Advanced Ceramic co courses, and a new enrichment course in art for the gifted and talented. The art teachers were also exceptionally talented with all of them practicing artists known in the community.

The goals of the Art department was to expand with more courses to offer the students and also to help the students realize the importance of art as part of their daily daily lives.

During the Pops Concert Assembly, flautists STEPHANIE KOMAE, AMY TAKEKAWA, QUIN OGAWA, JEANNIE AKANA, JACOB FARIN, and RAINE ASATO are featured in the Stars and Stripes Forever.

9 TO 5 AND ALL OVER THE WORLD...

New Courses Highlight Business Computer Training

With a staff of teachers that spent more than just regular school hours working with students, the Business Education Department flourished and was the only department in the state to win the Manpower Training Recognition Award presented by the Hawaii Practical Arts and Vocations Association.

The arrival and permanence of the Computer Age was evident in the wide array of courses that the department offered. This included the new Advanced Computer Programming course and Word and Data Processing course.

Some of the unique courses that were available to students were Advanced BASIC Programming and Intro. to COBOL Programming. Also, word processing was incorporated into many clerical courses.

Many business-minded students benefited from another new course, Office Procedures IIA and IIb, which met before school and included practical work experience in various offices on campus.

Other practical experiences for students enrolled in the department were gained through co-curricular activities such as working at the Halloween Haunted House and Christmas gift wrapping at Fort Street Mall.

At the end of the year, the Business department achieved their goals, as many of the students achieved their goals with the help of the department staff. The department succeeded in preparing McKinley students for the business world, whatever their interests may be.

New Cultures Captivate

Want to "doouble yoour woorld"? The foreign language department would have been your key to courses such as Japanese, Spanish, French and Mandarin.

These courses were all 1 year courses, but the department did introduce a new semester course on Spanish culture.

The regular language classes emphasized language and culture while the conversation classes emphasized basic conversation skills and culture.

Some of the department's accomplishments included an updating of the language lab and audio visual material and articulation with feeder schools.

Students also took part in the foreign language festival that state language teachers organized. The department also sponsored a full range of department related clubs such as Mandarin, Japanese and French/Spanish clubs.

P.E. Builds Strong Bodies, Minds

o assist students in understanding the relationship of physical activity and fitness to optimal lifelong health and well-being was the continuing primary goal of the Physical Education and Health Department. Students were provided opportunities to acquire understanding and skills in a wide variety of sports which hopefully would carry over into their leisure time throughout their life.

McKinley's P.E. classes included a weight training program as well as extensive aerobic dancing classes.

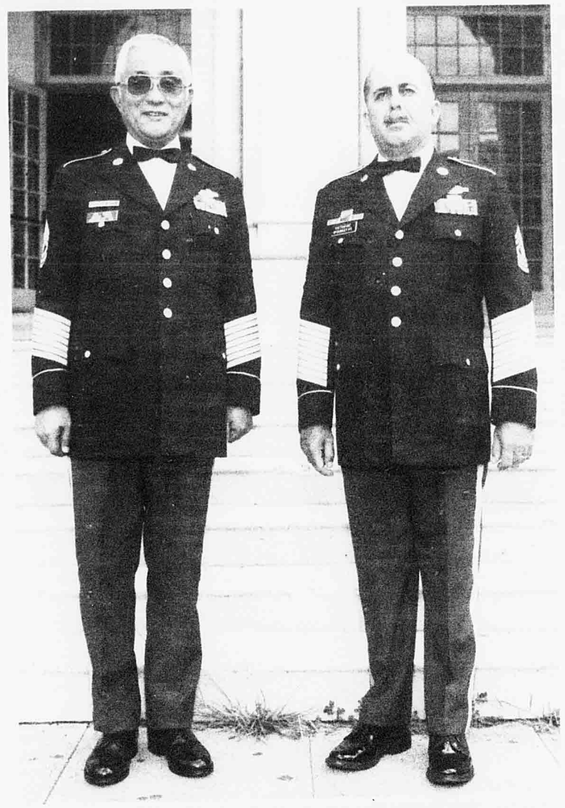

With an effort to relate what is learned in the P.E. classes to the health program, the staff strived to develop the students mentally, physically, and socially.

JROTC Builds Character

Leadership, responsibility, discipline and teamwork were the keys to unlock the doors of success for McKinley's Junior Reserve Officers Training Corps.

While the program familiarized the students with many aspects of the U.S. Army and developed their sense of duty and honor, it also provided many activities for participation such as the Military Ball and marching in the Veteran's Day Parade.

There was also much variety in the program itself with such units like the drill team, the Honor Guards and the Drum and Bugle Corps.

Home Economics Displays Array Of Fascinating Courses

The cohesiveness of the Home Economics staff revealed itself in the popularity of its course offerings. Many students, boys and girls alike, were enrolled in the wide range of courses offered by the department. Though these classes have been opened to boys all along, it still proved interesting to see boys cooking, sewing, and performing other housewife-like duties.

Students developed basic life through learning experiences, as the department provided many opportunities for them to explore the various areas of Home Economics.

Some of the unique courses offered included P.I.P. Food Service and Child Care Service. Food Service was not all cooking and eating, but also featured units on food management, budgeting, and other useful skills. Many students interested in preschool and primary education benefitted from Child Care Service. During two periods every other day, they worked at various preschools near campus.

Home Economics students also participated in the Wisteria Student Artistry Food Show and the Hawaii Association for Education of Children and Youth State Convention.

IAD Prepares For Life

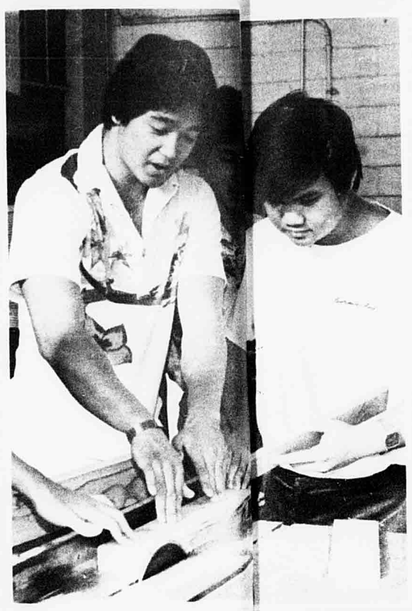

In an attempt to prepare students for life after high school, McKinley's Industrial Arts department offered a large and helpful array of courses. Courses ranged anywhere from Woods I to Electronics Tech. II: Research and Development to Auto Mechanics.

In addition to the use and servicing of transistor radios, this year's Electronics class introduced an aiding Electronics repair and solving problems of electronic circuits program. This program allowed second and third year students to work on not only simple kits, but also on such things as the television and if possible, the computer.

The department also offered two clubs: the Graphic Arts Club, where students printed their favorite designs and pictures, and the Electronics/Radio Club, where students built fun kits, worked with rockets and even amateur radios. This year, the Radio Club, a.k.a. KH6NF, made history by making contact with the space shuttle Columbia.

L.A.D. Offers Course Variety

Members of the Language Arts Department led by department chairperson Mrs. Amy Berglund, have been busy all year working on a new curriculum for the department. Next school year, all students will be taking a year long course in English and the semester courses will be eliminated to incorporate the new phase program which will include ninth graders for the first time.

Besides their regular teaching load, many English teachers have been contributing their ideas so that the new program can adequately cover verbal and oral skills, writing and literature.

The English Department also featured a new CP course in dramatic literature called Backgrounds in Drama; students not only read various plays but discovered the historical, philosophical backgrounds of various periods, how they affected the playwrights and how the playwrights affected their times.

Creative writing courses also featured drama activities as Mrs. Ushiroda led her students to write original scripts for children which were then performed for various elementary school students. Other language arts arts courses made various field trips to experience a variety of plays, films and guest lecturers. The drama classes with the McKinley Theater Group presented two major productions which were well-attended and supported by the department.

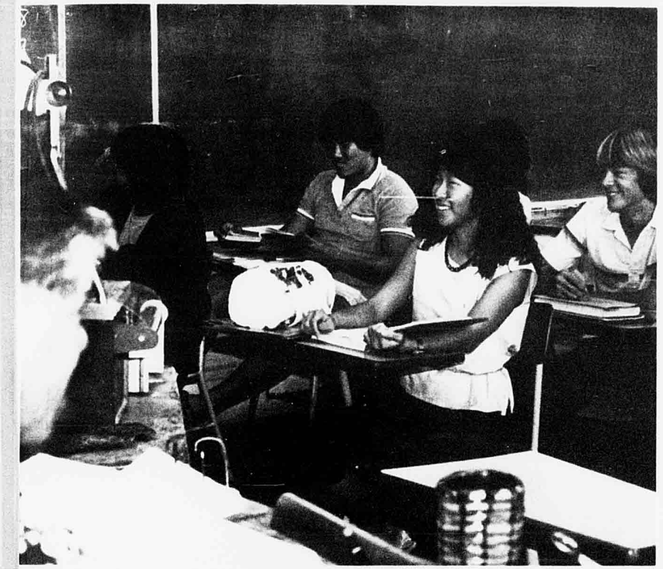

Newswriting and yearbook production classes maintained meeting the grinding deadlines as well as learning about writing stories, copy and headlines, creative and factual. Dictionaries and the thesaurus were constantly used, and grammar and spelling checked. Students received training in proofreading for grammatical spelling and "typo" errors and learned techniques of layout design.

Math Meets Many Needs

The Math department's main goal was to meet the needs of the students enrolled in math courses and to provide the skills needed in everyday life or to go on to higher education.

The wide array of courses provided career education and guidance. Math courses applied to many occupations ranging from accountants to electricians to farmers. For the more mathematically-minded student, there were two Advanced Placement Calculus courses available. After completing this course, the student could take a test for a college credit.

The department conducted the annual MAA (Math Association of America) exam. This test screened out the most talented students, who competed with other high school students nationally and internationally.

The Math Club, led by advisor, Mrs. Loretta Chee, bathed in the glory of their success. They captured first place in the Homecoming banner competition, the Halloween pumpkin carving contest, and the Christmas Songfest.

Science Fascinates

Did you ever want to dissect a frog, work with computers, fly or blow up a rocket or hatch baby chicks? The science department provided the opportunity for all of these activities.

Courses ranged from Horticulture to AP Chemistry. Special programs included the Zoo Instructors Program, Plants and Animals of Hawaii and Directed Studies in Science.

Not only did students rack their brains, but they found the classes high-spirited and fun.

Clubs connected with the Science department proved to be exhilirating because of the many activities planned by the students and advisors.

Mrs. C. Yamada's class trip to Sea Life Park and Mrs. M. Kadooka's Physics field trip to fly rockets at Kapiolani Park were some of the many trips taken by the Science Department.

Past, Future Combine for Exciting Mixture

The past came to life as Social Studies teachers re-enacted historical events in the light of current news. Even the future was discussed for the coming events could prove even more relevant to the high school student.

With these thoughts in mind the department members worked towards developing each student into a responsible, well rounded citizen and to equip the student with knowledge, skills, attitudes and values in order to enhance his life.

Special programs within the department included Honors classes in U.S. History, Modern History of Hawaii, American Problems, and AP European History. Curricular activities were enhanced by Career Day in March, Çareer Kokua, Law and Justice Seminars and the use of computers.

Students learned a lot through the guidance of department chairperson Mr. Neal Takamori and the gentleness and warmth of Mrs. Dianne Sugihara, the suavity of Carl Hanson, and the humor of Robert Jacobsen.

Special Classes Aid Students

School alienation was a problem which confronted certain students at McKinley, and the Special Motivation classes helped to meet this problem. Not only did the classes concentrate on basics but also helped the students to understand and accept themselves as individuals with an awareness of their own feelings, values and needs.

Other special education classes also helped the exceptional students to be part of the school family and to help them learn as well as prepare for adulthood.

Their aims included helping the students to cope with and solve personal and academic problems, to acquire values such as mutual respect and cooperation and to maintain contact with the other students and teachers.

Having been disrupted from their studies, CEDRIC LEN-WAI and BRADLEY MANE turn to see what the commotion is all about as their teacher MR. G. TANAKA looks on.

DOORWAY TO NEW WORLDS

Students Discover America

The Second Language Education Program again proved to be helpful to many McKinley students. The department offered courses to help foreign students pass the HSTEC and for them to become proficient in the use of English. It also helped familiarize them with many phases of American culture.

The Course for Essential Competency Certification was a semester offering for students who did not pass the HSTEC. Included was a simplified version of the test where the students actually performed the required skills.

The courses began with simple pronunciation of English words and progressed to communicating fairly complex ideas into English. The students were also taught cooperation and respect for others.

SECURITY - PASSWORD TO HARMONY

Staff Keeps Campus Clean, Safe

Under Mr. Ernest Victorino, 9 members of the custodial staff kept the buildings and campus looking immaculate. McKinley boasts one of the nicest campuses in the state of Hawaii, and the custodians with the help of the students endeavored to keep it looking neat and clean.

A great looking campus was not the only goal of the school community. Everyone tried to keep the campus safe and secure; and with the help of the security aides numbering 4, campus disorders were kept to a minimum.

Under Mrs. Sharon Young's efficient supervision, the 6 members of the cafeteria staff prepared nutritious and tasty meals for lunch and snack-time. Many students took advantage of purchasing lunches for 45 cents. Deserts were a special treat that also cost 45 cents, but many students and teachers often purchased the delicious pies and cakes.

The lone health aide, Mrs. Ruth Miyamoto under the supervision of nurse Mrs. Amy Mizuno, looked after the health of the students and made arrangements for emergency care.

STUDENT LIFE

TO ENJOY the many activities that the school provided was the highlight for many. And enjoyment of going to school, whether social or otherwise, brought about a certain harmony.

ON-CAMPUS LIFE MORNING TO EVENING

Life There, No Way - Life Here, OK

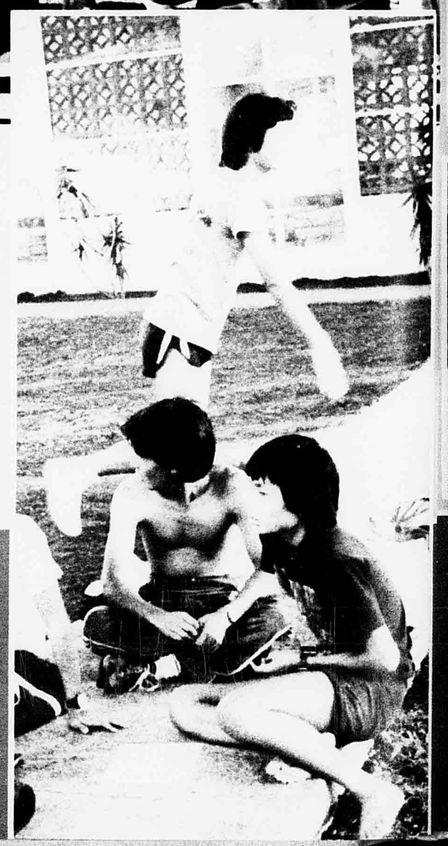

Drug trafficking, mugging newcomers, obscenities on the walls, hijacking teachers, lectures on how to escape from jail, bomb rallies, raw liver on bun for lunch, teachers with hunting knives, TV throwing competitions, stealing Camaros, punk rock concerts, the "Warriors" Club... imagine students living it up at school like this. Fortunately, it was another kind of experience for McKinley-ites.

Campus life here was something wonderful to be remembered. It included homework trafficking, greeting newcomers, graffitti-free walls, aiding the teachers, lectures on college education and future jobs, pep rallies, pastrami on bun for lunch, teachers with textbooks in their hands, song fest competitions, cruising with Camaros, band and choir concerts, and the Uni Club. This was school life here at McKinley, and the student enjoyed it to the fullest.

And that's how it was in 1983-84 here at McKinley. But student life was more than this. It was not only homework and lunch, teachers and books. There was another important factor for students to go to school.

Friends Liven School Daze

Looking forward to another week of school was quite nauseating for most students...waking up to those cold mornings, going to class still half asleep, staying up late at night doing trig homework for Mrs. Chee, sitting in classes all day until the behinds got sore, burning rubber in the parking lot only to find out new tires were needed. School sure seemed to be monotonous and tiresome; yet student life did not only mean studying, sleeping and eating. There was something quite fun that McKinley and other schools all shared...something special that made student life more enjoyable...FRIENDS!

Friends made McKinley a place to mingle and socialize. Friends were there to talk with, to joke with, to study and eat with. McKinley was also a place where students found their best friends, good friends, pals, buddies, boy friends and girl friends.

During morning and lunch recesses, it was not only a time to eat, but also a time to get together with the gang. The senior band students hung around the steps of the English building; the athletic boys cruised by the courtyard of the social studies building; the foreign students mingled in front of the administration building; many juniors congregated beneath the library; and the cheerleaders joined together at the math building.

Friends cheered with each other at football games, laughed at each other's corny jokes and cried together at graduation. Certainly the importance of friendship was clearly etched in the smiles of the students.

Partying Is Good For Your Health

We learned a lot when we went to school. In elementary school it was "2+2=4," spelling bees and getting curious about the birds and bees. In intermediate school it was "radical 4=2," playing football and knowing about the birds and the bees. In high school it was the quadratic formula, auto shop and... beginning to PARTY HEARTY!

Yes, it was true. Partying with the boys and girls and just having a good time was an important part of high school life.

Parties were usually held on Friday or Saturday nights with the gang at hotels or a friend's home or even at the beaches. Others preferred to be alone with their steadies. Still others had a good time by going to the beaches, movies, shopping or just plain cruising at Ala Moana or Waikiki. Special nights were spent at concerts or romantic dinners. But still, of course, partying was number one on their list of activities.

Even during school hours the students did things off campus. No! This didn't mean going to K.C.C. for a coke. It meant field trips and excursions with the classes...trips like rocket flying at Kapiolani Park, competing on Lanai with the Cross Country Team, performing a play at Kaahumanu Elementary and working with other Thespians on Maui at a drama conference.

Good Spirits Prevail

What was the most memorable fun-filled activity that captured the spirit of the students at McKinley? No, it was not the opening day speech by Principal Richard Sakamoto. No, it was definitely not the proposed teacher strike. Rather it was Homecoming! Homecoming for most of us, was a time of unity and strength, of "crazed" people cheering for the Mighty Tigers at the football game, of jamming students showing off their stuff at the dance, of beautiful people around the oval during the candlelight ceremony.

It certainly was a joyous and happy occasion for all.

To the sophomores it was a dazzling event that they had never experienced before during their intermediate school days. They were bombarded with so many activities in one event at one time: the dance, the parade, the election and presentation of the court, the banner and float competitions, the assembly and, of course, the football game.

To the juniors it was an event that they had experienced before but looked forward to again. Perhaps they were already thinking about the next year when they would be the leaders of the school to make Homecoming better and more spectacular.

And finally, to the seniors it was yet another reminder of the fast approaching climax to one chapter of their lives: Commencement.

"OOOO! I PITY DA FOOLS! I PITY DA FOOLS!

Homecoming Activities Ignite Student Spirit

In mid-October, the grandest event of the school year got underway with the entire school wrapped in enthusiasm and eagerness. With the 1983-84 Homecoming Court representing the spirited McKinleyites, this year's event was something other schools might have envied.

Under the coordination of the Homecoming Committee with chairperson Tess Nagasawa and advisor Mrs. Meg Uyehara, many activities were set to fire up the students for the last and, certainly, not the least of activities - the Homecoming game against Farrington High School.

The Homecoming Parade, the rally, the Candlelight Ceremony, the dance, all drew large followings and were enjoyed thoroughly by the students. But these were only the preliminaries to the big game on Saturday against Farrington.

It was a night to remember. The ever-present band was playing the familiar tunes that got the people to their feet. One could hardly hear themselves amidst the crowded stands with the students cheering and the music playing.

Things got a little quieter though as the Homecoming Court was presented and the Homecoming Float and Banner Contest got underway. The results: the Math Club won the banner competion and the Junior Class won the float competition

But when the second half started, the spectators went "bananas" again.

Although the game was not the most exciting one of the year with the score being 6-0 in favor of McKinley, it nevertheless psyched up the spectators and drew the 1983-84 Homecoming events to a close with a victory and a bang!

Thus, it, too, passed on to become a treasured memory.

Prom Time's Good Time

Uh, gulp! Um, uh, oh boy! Uh, excuse me, uh, pardon me, but uh, would you like to uh, would you, whew! Would you, um, care to go to the prom: I mean, uh, you know, do you, gee, do you want to be my date for the prom?"

"Um, why, uh, why oh, I, you, uh, why sure, uh, I'd like to go to the prom with you, uh, I think uh, why sure, I would. I could."

A conversation like this happens every year in every high school...maybe not as pathetic, but something like this happens. They happen not only for proms but for the dances, too.

McKinley held several social events which proved to be something very special for the students here. Events like the Welcome Back Dance was a time to meet new faces and old friends, while the Aloha Dance was a time to say goodbye and adieu. Dances also provided a chance to show your "Michael Jackson" moves, to score with a special person or to just kick back and relax talking with friends.

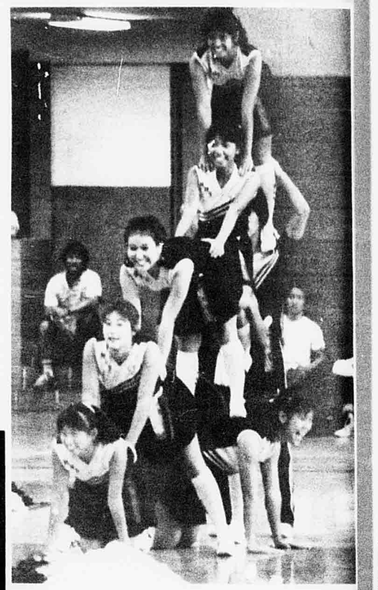

The social events that were probably the highlights of high school life were the proms. The sophomores had their first classy dinner together at their banquet. The juniors had their first taste of prom life at their Junior Prom, while the seniors had their last at their Senior Prom. Of course, there was the Winter Prom where all grade levels got together for a time of sharing the Christmas Spirit.

These social events helped round out the year to make it one of fun and harmony.

CONCERTS AND SKITS, RALLIES AND BITS

(clockwise from top left) AUDY KIMURA performs a special concert during lunch recess in the auditorium. SANTA arrives from the North Pole to pay a visit during the Christmas Songfest. The cheerleaders complete their strenuous task of building a pyramid at one of the pep rallies. "Hey, you! Your zipper is down!" screams Bob Marley and the Wailers...uh...MICHAEL AFOA and COMPANY. SHIRLEY UEGAWACHI took third place with her hula act at the Brown Bags to Stardom assembly. Before the start of the holidays, the choir performed a special Christmas concert. Here KENT MIYOSHI sings a Christmas carol.

"EH BRAH! WHEN INTERMISSION! I GOTTA GO TOILET!"

Assemblies Entertain, Delight, Excite

School would be nothing but a bore if it were just a routine of coming, studying, eating and going, especially if the routine had to be repeated five days a week. So something had to be provided to make school life more enjoyable, to ease the tension and stress of school work. And that was why McKinley High created the assembly programs.

The school and student council provided a wide variety of assembly programs for the students to see and enjoy. Programs ranged from those in the auditorium like the Band and Choir concerts, Brown Bags to Startdom Competitions, Prom Fashion Shows and drama performances and to those in the gymnasium like the Pep Rallies and Christmas Song Fest. For some students this was their favorite for they had a chance to shout and cheer, laugh and relax.

Assemblies were also a source of respite for students to get their minds off that big examination or the daily hassles they might be going through.

Thus the primary goal of the assembly committee was met: to provide enjoyment for students and teachers.

Music Tops

Music played a major role in the students' life and behavior. A number of students could be seen breaking to the raps of Curtis Blow and the electric of Herbie Hancock. Others swayed to the beat of reggae as it became a popular form of music on campus. Students listened to musicians like the late Bob Marley, Peter Tosh and reggae-rock groups like Eddy Grant and, of course, The Police with their hit album, "Synchronicity."

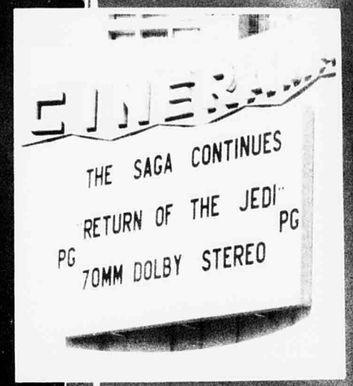

Others took to the harder side of rock playing music such as Quiet Riot and Motley Crue on their car stereos or walkmans. Other music that was popular included Michael Jackson with his number one album "Thriller," David Bowie, Van Halen, Ozzy Osbourne, Stray Cats, Iron Maiden and Oingo Boingo.

The school year opened with a concert by Journey followed by Def Leppard, BOC, Aldo Nova, Lionel Ritchie, The Pretenders, The Police, Willie Nelson and Hall and Oates.

Movies like "Return of the Jedi," "Flashdance," "Risky Business," "The Right Stuff," Sudden Impact," and "Terms of Endearment" were some of the favorites.

The fads and fashions for the past year were the "Flashdance" look and the plastics. Sweatshirts were cut around the neck and sleeves and worn loosely around the shoulders by many girls. Plastic things like jellies (shoes), bags and other accesories were tremendously popular with the girls. Jeans continued to be popular with both boys and girls. Rock buttons, mohawk haircuts and hobo bags were other fads of this past year.

MR. GEORGE MAEDA
Student Activities Coordinator

SC Gears For Business

Careful thinking and planning were done by the Executive Board even before the start of school in September to plan for a fun-filled '83-'84 year. The council's hard working members contributed much to the outcome of the exciting school year, for they were the ones who, with their efforts, provided the student body with an opportunity to purchase See's lollipops, lottery tickets (of which the money collected went to the Star Bulletin's Good Neighbor Fund), a chance to send a Valentine Gram to a special someone and to participate in the famous no-talent show, "Trash Bags to Nowhere." Besides all of the activities that they planned, they created a program to teach elementary school students leadership skills and participated in meetings and workshops such as the Hawaii State Student Conference and the Honolulu District Student Conference.

Setting down regulations for which the student body was to follow was the Senate's concern. To carry out all legislative matters was its primary function. With thirty senators, ten students each representing their respective classes, they worked hard and well as a group. As in the previous years, the Senate participated in its annual induction of senators held at the State Capitol and in the Christmas Song Fest held at the school gymnasium.

Selfless Boards Work For Students, School

Sometimes the activities and services that were provided to the student body was taken for granted. What some people did not realize was that there were hard working committees behind every service and activity around school. There were two boards, the Service Board and the Social Board that were behind all of this.

The Student Services Board Committee was composed of nine different committees; I.D. Card, Activity Card, Lockers, Bookstore, Lost and Found, Special Programs, Elections, Uni-Club and Handbook, which provided the student body of McKinley with its basic needs and services.

More fun-filled activities were planned and coordinated by the eight committees of the Social Board; Black & Gold, School Spirit, Special Activities, Winter Prom, Homecoming, Assembly, Publicity and May Day. This year, the goal of the Social Board was to increase involvement within McKinley's student body and to attract all different types of people. This was the board that planned various activities throughout the nine months of school to increase the interaction between students and to bring harmony among the students and faculty of McKinley.

Pinion Staff Slaves Daily

If someone were to say "What is unique about McKinley?," one fast answer would be "They've got a daily newspaper." And that is certainly something very unique. McKinley is the only high school in the state with a daily newspaper, "The Daily Pinion."

The staff had to be unique also to carry out the daily task of completing the work. The Pinion staff under the direction of Mrs. Cynthia Oyama, was lead by an editorial board consisting of four editors, Cydette Iwamoto, Liane Tong, Hency Yuen, and Eric Lee. They were the ones who had the primary responsibilities of getting the Pinion to the students everyday.

The whole staff worked together as a team writing and typing stories to be printed in the Pinion. And because of this united type of work, the Pinion always seemed to be completed and delivered on time to the students to read and enjoy.

Staff Meets On Weekends, Nights, And Afterschool To Finish Deadlines

Isn't it unreal when you have a handful of inexperienced students create a magnificent book such as the one you are reading now? The task was definitely strenuous yet eighteen students and one advisor took that responsibility to get the yearbook done. Some came afterschool while others came during the weekends and even nights to meet the seemingly endless deadlines the staff had to cope with.

The major problems this year were basically copy writing, inexperienced photographers and, in some ways, the lack of students to work. Though problems like these and others popped up like flies, the staff managed to get the work completed and in time for the student body to receive their own personal book of memories. For many on the staff, it was a great privilege to be the ones to creat this special memory book for the students.

Even if the work was difficult, it certainly didn't mean it wasn't fun. Classes were filled with laughter from the humor and crazy antics of Mr. Nakamoto (affectionally known as "Nakas") and the staff. Students got to know each other better, and many were delighted to experience things they hadn't done before such as handling cameras, printing pictures, working on layouts, making up headlines, and most of all, producing a book they made themselves with their own two hands.

Clubs Aim To Please Many

JUNIOR CIVITAN had an annual project in sponsoring dances to benefit the handicapped. The LEO CLUB helped with the Weepul campaing in cleaning various neighborhoods, worked in booths for various community fairs and collected funds for UNICEF.

The KEYWANETTES and KEY CLUB also participated in the UNICEF project. Keywanettes also did other service projects within the school such as giving free car washes to teachers in appreciation of their hard work.

The Key Club also participated in school service such as helping to keep the school beautiful, the annual tradition of cleaning the statue and leading the rest of the school in campus beautification.

All these service club members gained leadership training, made new friends and learned the value of initiative and hard work.

Science Leads To New Tech

By any yardstick, the 1983-84 McKinley MATHEMATICS CLUB's year has to be deemed successful. Emerging tops in the Homecoming Banner, Pumpkin Carving and Songfest competitions, certainly the year was among the best ever for the 60-member club.

Under advisors Mrs. Loretta Chee and Mrs. Ernell Young, the club stressed participation and involvement. The Math Club once again supported the Math Team in the Oahu Math League competitions in their bid to capture an unprecedented third consecutive title.

Meanwhile the CHEMISTRY CLUB competed in the island-wide competitions for high school students at the University of Hawaii chemistry department in making various types of chemical products. They also learned about computer applications in chemistry.

The SCIENCE CLUB focused on science-oriented activities and school and community services. The big event of the year was a science study tour of the Big Island. It was held during the spring vacation, and club members toured the island which included visiting the many scenic sites.

Next year should be an exciting year for them because they will be going to the science expo to be held in Japan.

MINDING THEIR OWN BUSINESSES TOGETHER

Clubs Add Fun to Class

McKinley's Business, Speech and Graphic Arts clubs taught the members of these clubs valuable skills and brought students of common interests together.

Teaching students to be aware of the many facets of the business world was the major goal of the BUSINESS club. The club was very active, creating a Halloween Haunted House, promoting money raising activities, going to business related seminars, and creating and selling products.

McKinley's SPEECH club promoted and encouraged the excellence of speech and encouraged appreciation of culture within society. The members of the club participated in debates, extemporaneous speaking, original oratory, impromptu speaking, storytelling, dramatic and humorous interpretation and poetry reading. Out of the nine events held statewide, the November 19 Original Events Festival was held here at McKinley.

The GRAPHIC ARTS club learned invaluable skills such as silk screening and off set printing. They incorporated these skills into helping other clubs around campus screen their club T- shirts.

MTG Focuses On Ensemble

Ensemble work was the aim of the McKinley Theatre Group as they produced two major productions with the aid of their advisors, Mrs. Mary Lou Sandla and Mr. James Nakamoto. They also worked together with the Kaimuki High School drama class in the two productions, "Charlie and Algernon" and "Voices from the High School." The second play was presented at the grand theatre complex at Kaimuki High.

Club members also took part in the Christmas Song Fest and placed second and also took part in a few assemblies. They sponsored workshops and presentations by various artists and performers for the language arts department.

Members were also in attendance at the Alliance for Drama Education workshops and the State Thespian Conference held this year at Baldwin High on Maui.

The year was climaxed by an informal banquet, and theatre awards and certificates were presented to students for the hard work done during the school year.

Choristers Activates Full Year

McKinley High School CHOIR's main goal was to work together and create an ensemble spirit. As one choir member put it, "We tried not to out-sing one another, but gave it all we had."

They learned breathing techniques so that they would not strain themselves and enunciation so that they could be understood. They also had a lot of fun and camaraderie as they performed at various concerts.

The Christmas School Concert, the Spring Concert and the concert at the Hawaiian Regent Hotel were some of the highlights of the year. They also performed at various feeder schools.

The band has sent many performers into the High School Select Band, the Hula Bowl Band, and the Solo Ensemble Competition. On March 1-3, the band toured Maui participating in a mini-parade ofbands, also consisting of other bands on Maui.

The three bands, Wind Ensemble I and II, and Jazz Band, enabled students to express their talents and feelings to the entire school and community.

Clubs Zero In On Growth

Many clubs around McKinley emphasized the growth of the individual as being of great importance. Some of the clubs that recognized this were NHS NHS, FHA and FRIENDS OF THE ANIMALS.

The NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY was a club around campus that was comprised of academically talented students. Based on their academic ability, service, leadership and character, the NHS invited its members to the club. This year the club's goals were to promote enthusiasm for scholarship, to develop leadership skills, to to build personal character and to render services to the school and community. They ushered for the school play "Charlie and Algernon" and for commencement. Besides sponsoring scholarship programs, club members spent some of their Saturdays going to quiz bowls around the island at different schools.

Education in areas of growth, family, vocational preparation and community involvement. Being the only club that focused on the family, it emphasized the personal growth and leadership potential.

This year, the club made many contributions to the school and community by ushering for the school play "Charlie and Algernon," by promoting good nutrition and by helping the public library. They also prepared refreshments for the Blood Bank event and donated money to go towards the March of Dimes.

FRIENDS OF THE ANIMALS frequented the Honolulu Zoo many times this past year and devoted much of their time helping the staff at the zoo. They cleaned the barn, fed the animals, helped with the puppet show and gave tours of the zoo to students. Helping the zoo, however, was not the only community service that they did. They also went to Straub Clinic and helped in the purchasing department, pharmacy, wards and the library. Tours of the Humane Society were also given by the members just to mention a few of the many helpful things that they did for the community.

LOTS OF VARIETY ADDS SPICE TO CLUB LIFE

Clubs Focus On Creativity

To stimulate and to encourage creativity were the purposes of the the ODYSSEY CLUB. The club's main objective was to become more aware of the cultural events in the community by attending various events such as plays and modern dance. In school they participated in the Halloween costume contest. They also performed several service projects for the college guidance office and offered tutorial services.

The club that published the annual McKinley High School literary magazine, "Writer's Inc." was the LITERARY CLUB. The club selected the finest literary talent in the school and gave the students an opportunity to demonstrate their creative skills in writing short stories, poetry, songs, humor, artwork and photography in the magazine.

MIA's primary functions were to coordinate intramural sessions for the student body and to offer their services to the school and community. This year, they were spotters for a McKinley track meet, helped out with the wheelchair marathon, and coordinated intramurals games for volleyball, archery, weight lifting, tennis, ping pong, badminton and basketball.

The PHOTOGRAPHY CLUB's main goal was to teach the members picturetaking and developing. This active club toured the Eastman Kodak Company Plant and local television stations, as well as trying their skills at Foster Gardens and at the Honolulu Zoo.

Clubs Work On Mind, Body

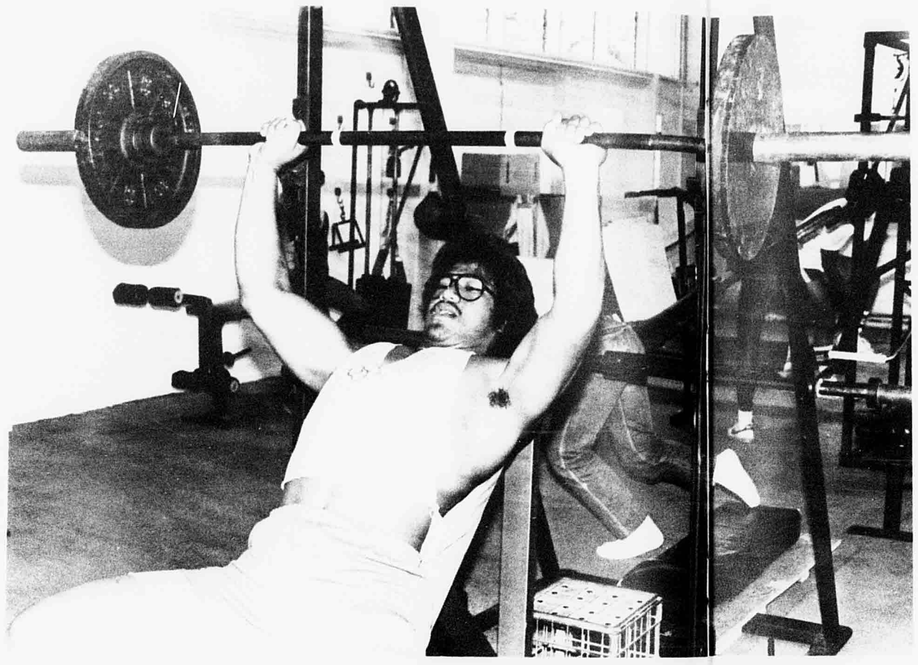

Through principles and practices of weight training and proper nutrition, the BARBELL CLUB gave students the opportunity to strengthen their physical and mental being. The club also helped to prepare students who were interested in weight lifting for competative meets and contests.

The members of the CHESS CLUB practiced concentration and different strategies to improve their game. They also competed in chess tournaments with other school's during the school year.

The RADIO-ELECTRONICS CLUB allowed students to better their background in electronics and computers. Those students who obtained amateur radio licenses could operate McKinley's HAM radio station.

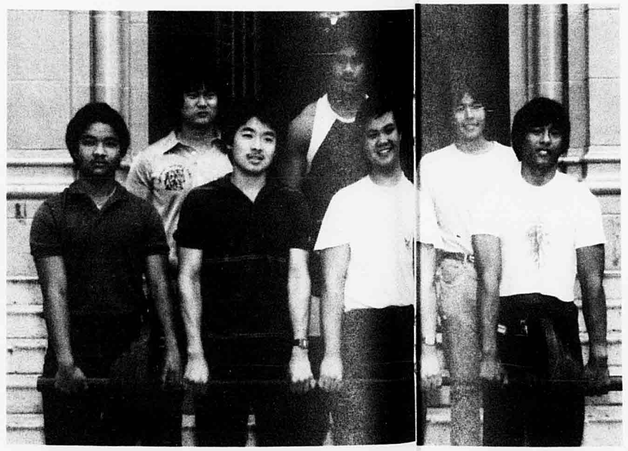

HIKING CLUB members broadened their knowledge of Hawaii's environment by attending various hikes and camps. They also helped to keep our environment clean by pulling out harmful vines and weeds that destroy plants and participated in community clean-ups.

LEARNING FROM OUR ASIAN NEIGHBORS

Clubs Focus On Friendship

The KOREAN CLUB tried to capture those special feelings that they once had in Korea. They became a group by sharing and doing exciting things together such as going on picnics, having a mini-olympics and an end of the year banquet. They learned to become independent Koreans in America.

MANDARIN CLUB members promoted the appreciation of Chinese culture and unity among students, as well as just being a group of friends. During the school year they sold Zippy's coupons, helped with coffee hour for HSTA and had a Christmas luncheon and an end of the year banquet.

Like the Mandarin Club, the CHINESE CLUB promoted Chinese culture. They learned the importance of teamwork and friendship. As one member said, "The values that we have learned together are ones that no one can take away."

UNI-CLUB PROMOTES ENTERTAINMENT, SERVICE

Clubs Enjoy Many Cultures

The primary focus of the JAPANESE CLUB this year was to raise money for a planned trip to Japan in 1985. Thus many of the club's activities were geared toward fund raising. These fund raising activities were interspersed with social activities such as picnics, a Christmas dinner, car washes and a dance.

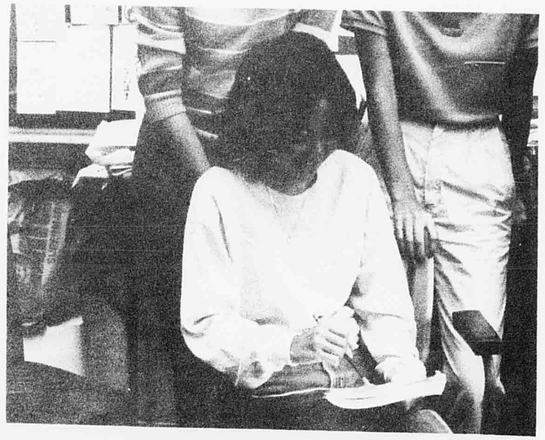

The FRENCH-SPANISH CLUB was open to any student interested in the study and practices of the French and Spanish cultures. The club's activities were designed to increase understanding of the French and Spanish customs and life-styles. They celebrated many of the holidays of these countries such as Christmas, Mardi Gras (March 6), Independence Day (May 5) and a pre-Bastille Day/year-end banquet.

To promote better cultural understanding between various ethnic groups that existed on campus, to increase understanding of the language and culture of American society and to promote friendship among these groups was the purpose of the COSMOPOLITAN CLUB.

In achieving these objectives cultural exchange workshops on various topics from Asian, Pacific, European and American settings were introduced by fellow members and guest lecturers. Group singing, demonstrations, tutorial assistance for the newly-arrived, field trips and service projects were some of the activities of the year.

JROTC Clubs Socialize

One special group on campus that consisted of non-commissioned officers, corporal status and above, was the HONOR GUARDS. With its purpose to provide social activities for its members, they planned outings and fun things together to ease the stress of constant discipline.

Although it looked like the members of the SABRE & CHAIN were always training hard and never had fun, they had their share of fun times together. With their sale of Zippy's coupons, M & M candies and a carwash, they were able to raise some funds for their senior banquet to provide social activities for its members.

Drill Teams Flourish

With their dream to take away the Silver Cup from Guam at Field Day on April 28, the BOYS DRILL TEAM enforced strict rules upon themselves and trained hard to look sharp. They could be seen working out hard daily afterschool and on the weekends. This dedicated group of boys put in much time and effort to perform in the events such as Flag Reveille on October 19, Sponsor's Day Parade on January 13 and the Field Day Competition on April 28. Like the Boys Drill Team, the GIRLS DRILL TEAM worked equally hard. Participating in the Flag Reveille on October 19 and the Christmas Songfest on December 20, their goal was also to win the Field Day Competition on April 28. They were also often seen practicing various dance and marching routines on the lawn and performed at several pep rallies for the school.

Rah! Rah! Rah! Three mighty Tiger cheers for the 1983-84 Varsity Pep Squad who, for the second year in a row won the Award of Excellence by the National Cheerleaders Association Summer Clinic in Hawaii. The squad achieved their goal by doing very well in the High School National Championship in Dallas on December 29.

Going to Dallas were Seniors Captain Alan Woo, Co-Captain Chris Bumanglag, Dance Captain Janis Okawaki, Juniors Dodi Kuramoto, Kiku Mochimaru, Luz Pascual, Sophomore Shawn Nishida, and Coaches Gaile Sykes and Mario Fuentes.

"Cheering was not as easy as it seemed in the beginning," said Junior Dodi Kuramoto. "In fact, cheering could be on of the more difficult sports in the OIA." she continued. Much time, patience, and effort was put in by both the squad and their coaches.

All year long the pep squad cheered for most of the sports. They also tried to promote spirit throughout the school.

Pride Marks Varsity Team

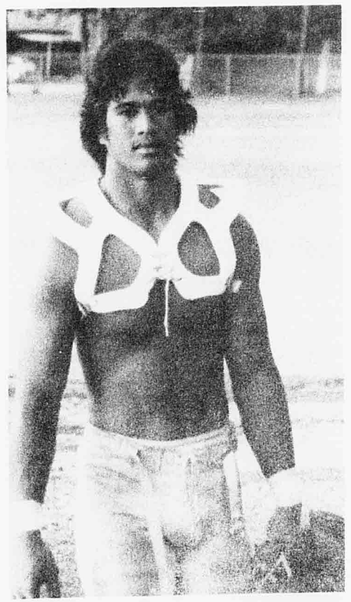

The 1983 Tiger Football team finished the season with a 5 win, 4 loss record, placing them second in the OIA East. But, the team was even better than the record showed. Led by Senior quarterback Jaime Kurosawa, the mighty tigers were in every game until the final seconds. "We had a great team and everything was together. It was fun!" exclaimed Senior team member Jeremiah Moeava.

In the playoffs, McKinley faced the Rams of Radford, the second place team in the OIA West. Though the outcome was not in our favor, the mighty tigers displayed the pride they had in themselves and the team.

Making the First Team for the OIA East All-Stars, was intimidating Senior Theo Adams. Seniors Jaime Kurosawa, Earl Everett, and Junior Iotana Alualu made the Second Team. Earning Honorable Mention were three mighty Seniors, Gary Montalbo, Jin Chu, and Peter Millare.

Team Enjoys Successful Season

"Da Boyz" of the Varsity Football Team Defense had the "Eye of the Tiger" all season long. This tough defense held back opponents with their mighty tiger strength. Teamwork was a big key in the success of the team.

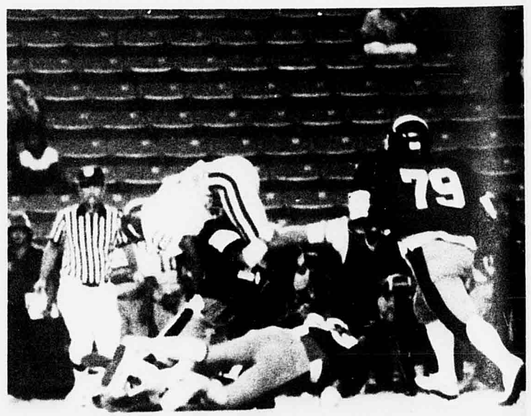

Junior Defense Lineman Nick Maafala was selected First Team-All State Defensive Lineman. Senior Wesley Fernandez made the Second Team OIA East All-Stars. Seniors Mo'o Mo'o Utu, Leo Salavea and Junior Damien Au made Honorable Mention.

"We had a fine winning season," said Senior Leo Salavea. Senior Mo'o Mo'o Utu commented, "We could have taken it all the way."

These boys practiced long and hard during the summer and throughout the season. They were determined to do their best to the very end.

JV Season Appears Promising

The awsome JV Football Team finished their 1983 season with a 6-1-1 record. Under the coaching of Head Coach Dave Brown, these Mighty Tigers took Second Place in the OIA East Division.

This group of determined young Tigers were tied for the top seat but 'ost the title to Roosevelt at the very end of the season. Leading this team were Co-Captains Mendel Wong and Terio Bumanglag. Quarterback Mendel Wong commented, "It was a good season." Andrew Salavea added," We should have won this year."

Girl Spikers Look To Better Year

With only two returnees on the Varsity, Captains Audra Halmos and Lori Leong, this young team worked very hard all season long. Under the direction of Coach Kenneth Rowe, these Mighty Tigers practiced long hard hours after-school. The Varsity finished their 1983 season record with a 6 win 8 loss record. "We had the team this year, but we lacked teamwork and we could have done better. We should have a better team next year." said Senior Audra Halmos.

The Jayvee team learned a lot about volleyball this year. For these Tigers, playing in the OIA division was a totally new thing. With this new experience, these Mighty Tigers finished a very good season.

Girl Varsity Keglers Win Championship

The Girls Varsity Bowling Team took the Hawaii State Bowling Championship for the second year in a row. The team consisitng of Captains Berdine Au, Kelly Ramos, Lori Ramos, Tracie Hirano and Tammy Nitta successfully defended their title by winning their district title and then going on and winning the semi-finals and state championships on the Big Island.

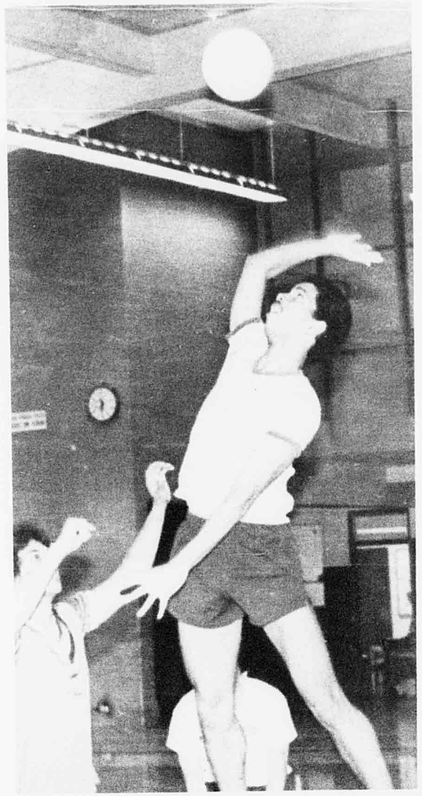

The Keglers bowled their way to being the state champs by beating the best teams and twenty-five of the best bowlers from each district. "That was truly a remarkable achievement," reported a fan.

With only a few boys on the team, the Varsity Boys had a good season. They gained much experience this year and they hoped to have an even better season next year.

Team Strives Despite Losses

The Boys Varsity Volleyball Team finished their 1983 season with a 4 win 6 loss record. This team was mostly made up of Seniors with 4 returnees, Ken Arima, David Maielua, William Bulawan, and Noberto Espanto. Under the leadership of Captains William Bulawan and David Maielua, the team strived for perfection. But also they went out there to have fun, to gain experience , and to learn teamwork. These Tigers challenged their tough opponents in the OIA East division and showed what the Tiger Sensation was all about. This team practiced Mondays thru Fridays afterschool all season long.

Harriers Savor Victories

The Harriers did it again! The Boys Varsity and Junior Varsity teams, led by Co-captains Jerry Cabradilla and Grant Miyasaki, defended their OIA Eastern Division Title successfully. This victory was sweeter than the others because they lost their Honolulu District Title to their rival, Kalani High School, by a narrow margin a week before. To this sweetness, another OIA Eastern Division Title was added by the boys JV team.

As for the girls team, they remained competitive throughout the season, winning the Mililani and the Lanai Invitational Meets with ease under Captain Chan U Lee.

Indeed, the 1983-84 season was another entry to the Harriers' long list of successful seasons.

Girls Soccer Displays Determination

The 1984 Girls Soccer Team finished their season with a 1 win against Waialua and 7 loss record. This 18 member team practiced Monday thru Friday from 3-6 all season long. With only 4 returnees, Lisa Takemoto, Lynn Uyehara, Denise Tuzon, and Shinal Ige, this young team had spirit, determination, and patience throughout the season. Their team yell went like this:

Coach: "Chick-a-chack-a-chick-a-chack-a"
Team: "Hoy-hoy-hoy"
Coach: "1-2-3"
Team: "Tiger Team Pride"

"We didn't have a winning season, but yet I feel this was a good experience for everyone because we learned many things...especially patience." expressed Junior Natalie Kiyono.

Sluggers Use Season To Rebuild

With a young, new baseball team, Coach Gene Takeyesu and pitchers Jay Harada and Marc Isobe competed against fierce competition from the teams in the OIA East Division.

Co-Captains Mike Simao and Gary Montalbo were the only returnees on the team. They provided the leadership for these young Tigers. They played tough teams such as Kalaheo and Kaiser. But despite their inexperiences they had determination and spunk throughout the year.

Sluggers Start Slow But Sure

The JV sluggers consisting of nine sophomores and five freshmen, opened the season against Castle, to whom they lost to 8-0. The team failed to hit, scoring only three runs in their first four games. In the field, they committed too many errors. Pitcher John Rau commented, "The team lacked experience which we gained as the season progressed." In the final five games, with an exception of Kalaheo, the Tigers kept opponents close throughout the game. In the season finale against Kahuku, Lyle Nakamatsu tied up the score in the sixth inning with a 2-run triple, and later scored the winning balk by the Kahuku pitcher. These sluggers were led by Co-Captains, pitcher Shane Yoshizawa and catcher Kenneth Osaki.

Players earning a spot on the Varsity squad were Cary Borden, Lyle Nakamatsu, Kenneth Osaki, John Rau, Robby Rodrigues, Shane Yoshizawa and Michael Yu.

Softball Team Slides Into Third Place

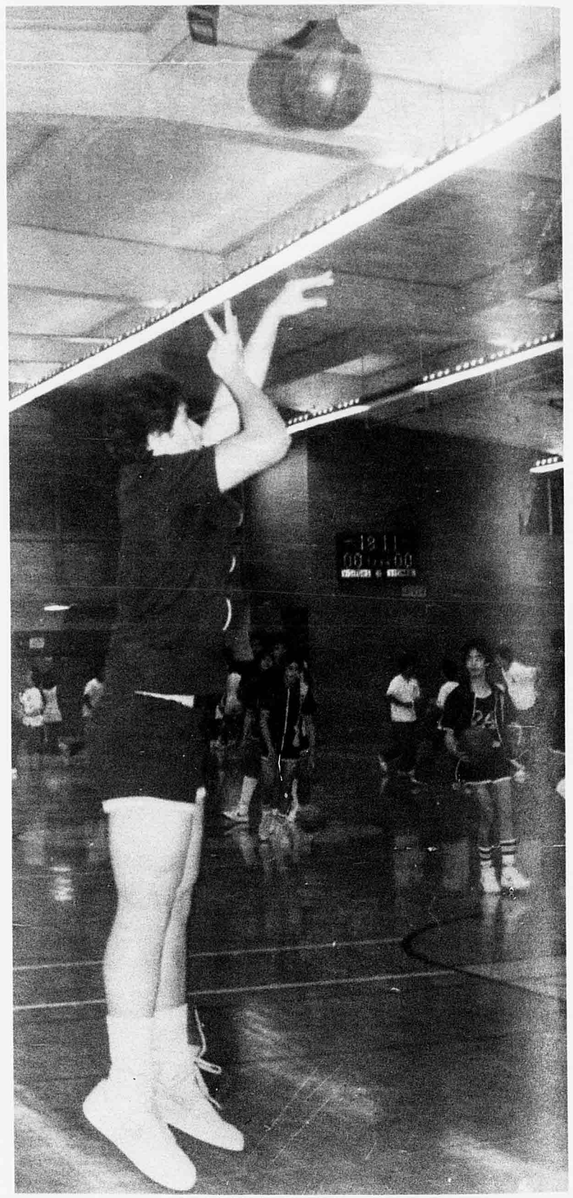

Under the leadership of tri-captains Joann Yatogo, Clarice Koyanagi and Lauren Fujimori, the Varsity Girls Softball Team captured the 3rd seat in the OIA East Division.

With only six returnees, this young team finished the season with a 9-6 record. These Tigers were very close to getting into the playoffs for 1st place but the odds were not in the Sluggers' favor. The Rough Riders of Roosevelt won by one run in this critical game for these Mighty Tigers.

Junior Tammy Tamura commented, "We had a good season considering we didn't have the talent like the years before."

Cagers Win District Championship

The 1984 Boys Varsity Basketball Team captured the Honolulu District Championship. With such a talented team, Coaches Lui Faleafine, Earnest Nihi and Warren Kawakami had a lot to work with. The high scorer of the team was Senior William Bulawan, a four-year letterman. The number one high school recruit, Theo Adams, played the position of center. Tigers went to the top with a record of eight wins and four losses during regular season.

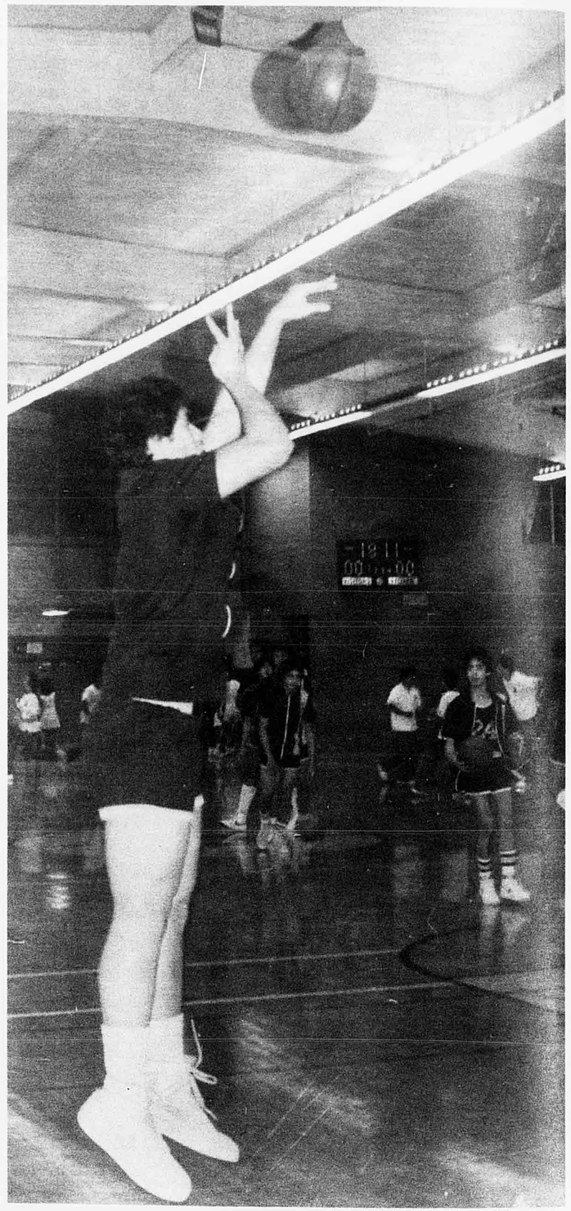

There were seven returnees; Cedric Cole, William Bulawan, Theo Adams, Jeremiah Moeava, David Maielua, Alfred Bolocan and Jerry Miyasato. The team felt the most memorable game was against Kalaheo at their first meeting.

These Mighty Tigers practiced every weekday from 4:30-7:30 and their games were on Tuesdays and Fridays. "I felt positive about the team. We could do it if we played together" said Senior William Bulawan.

Wahine Cagers Aim For Wins

Since all of last year's starting five graduated, coaches Lui Faleafine, Earnest Nihi and Warren Kawakami, had a big challenge on their hands. With only five returning players and five players that moved up from the JV team, there was a lot of rebuilding for these Cagers.

These Mighty Tigers gained much experience competing against their opponents in the OIA East Division. The team did not have the talent like last year, but the coaches were hopeful in building up the material that they had. "We were young with not much talent but we hoped to have a good season" said Captain Jo Ann Yatogo. "We worked together and we believed we could do it," said Captain Audra Halmos.

Girls J.V. Cagers Focus On Basics

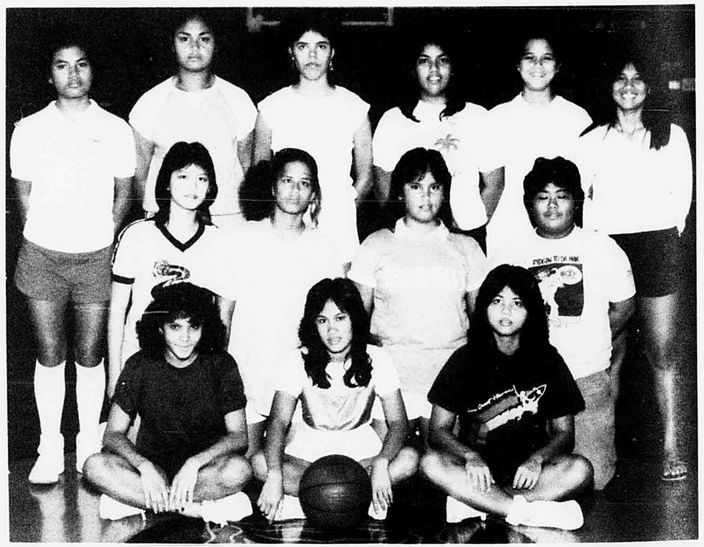

Winning wasn't the most important thing. Just improving everyday and learning the fundamentals were what counted." These were the words stressed by Coach Rhona Halmos throughout the practice sessions. Said Co-Captain Marsha Ho, "We had the talent, but we needed to put it together to form a team." Indeed, they did have the talent. Led by returnees Marsha Ho, Billy Jo Morales and Fia Toomata, the Wahine Tigers boasted one of the most domination front lines. Newcomer Cris Sakai also provided help up front.

"Lots of work on teamwork and concentration was needed," said CoCaptain Cris Sakai. Teamwork was necessary for another successful season, and the mental concentration assured a good game everytime they played.

The 1984 Rifle Team captured second place in the OIA competions. Under the leadership of Sergeant Major Robert Victorine, these mighty Tigers improved a lot this year. This team boasted two captains, Philip Buchanan and Patrick Marksbury, who led these Tigers to the top. Patrick Marksbury won the 1984 Top Shooter title in the OIA.

The team practiced mainly during after school hours on the weeks of their competitions.

Swim Team Marks Progress

With a team of five boys and eight girls, the Swimming Team finished a successful season. Captain Mathew Flanagan said, "We had a pretty good season this year. I hope more students come out for the team next year."

The team practiced weekdays, 3:00-4:00, at the McKinley pool throughout the season. At the OIA Eastern Championship, the Boys took 3rd place overall out of six other schools and the girls took 6th place overall. Taking 1st place in the 200 Meter Medley Relay were Mathew Flanagan, Joey Sullivan, Michael Kim and Jun Kuroda. Mighty Joey Sullivan took 4th place in the 200 IM and Captain Mathew Flanagan took 2nd place in the 100 Meter Backstroke.

The Swimming Team's two coaches were Harry Mamizuka and Larry Oshiro. "We had a lot of school and team spirit," commented Senior Pat Sullivan.

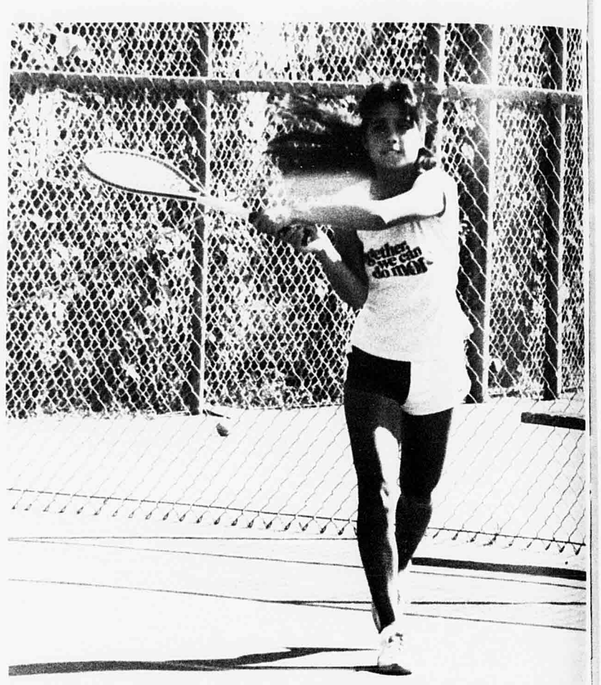

Tennis Grows, Improves

The Netters gained much experience this past season, improving in skill and sportsmanship. The Boy's team, with seven returnees, did well this season placing 5th in the OIA East. The Girl's team on the other hand, with nine returnees, did not do as well and placed 9th.

These dedicated Tigers practiced everyday afterschool and challenged their opponents on Wednesdays and Saturdays.

On both tennis teams, there were more experienced players but there were many beginners, too. Many sophomores picked up playing tennis quickly with the help of veteran Coach Richard Yaginuma. Also assisting the teams was Assistant Coach Mike Yamamura.

"The reason why the team improved was because of a better coaching staff and the participation of each member of the the team was great" expressed four-year member, Senior, Debbie Kubo.

Wrestling, Judo Rebuild

The twenty member Wrestling Team dedicated their 1984 season to their late coach, Troy Emoto.

With five varsity returnees, Glenn Nochi, U-Seog Chong, Steven Risso, Travis Olsen, Jeff Henry, and one J.V. returnee, Mark Hashem, the team faced many tough opponents in the OIA East Division.

These mighty Tigers practiced hard after schools and competed on weekends under five coaches, Troy Teruya, Albert "Boo" Chee, Nino Murry, Chris Johnson and Timmy Teruya.

At the Eastern Tournament, the J.V. placed third overall with two first-place holders, Mark Hashem and Scott Schewe, a freshman at Washington Intermediate. The Varsity took fifth-place overall. Almost the entire varsity team took third-place honors individually.

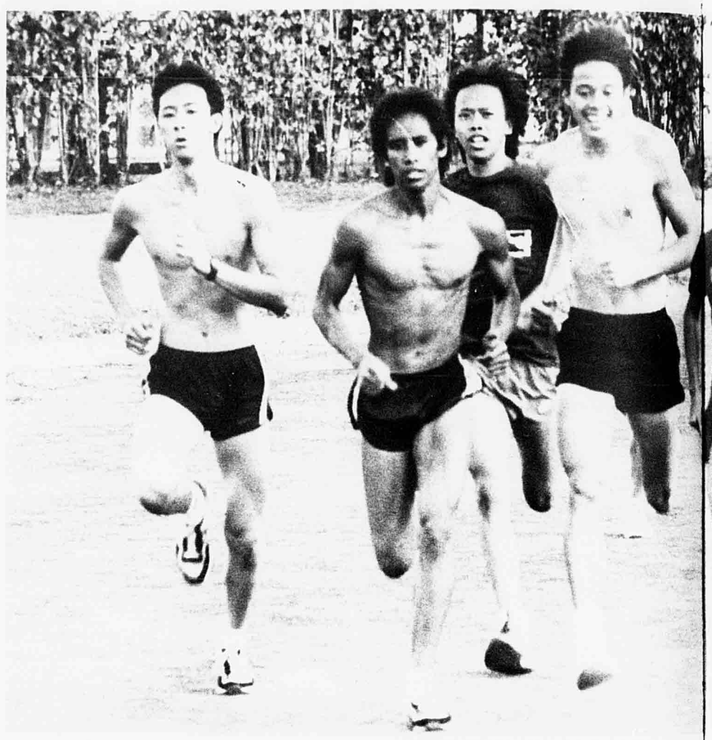

This season was the rebuilding year for the Judo Team. The team was divided into three divisions, the light weights, the middle weights, and the unlimited.

"The team had the potential to take the championship. All we had to do was to practice harder," said senior Steven Asaumi. Junior Trent Takaoka added, "We tried to mold ourselves into a winning team and hopefully take the OIA Championship in the near future."

Tracksters Keep On Truckin'

Individual performances as well as the overall achievements of the Boys and Girls Track and Field Teams this past season were quite commendable and inspirational.

With the grace of the hurdlers and jumpers, the exploding speed of the sprinters, the brute strength and skills of the shot-putters and the discus throwers, the perseverance and endurance of the distance runners and the grim determination of all the Harriers combined to produce yet another proud and inspirational season.

With crumpled schedules in their hands, the sophomores, McKinley's Class of 1986, was seen on the first day of school scampering around. The worried expressions on their faces during the first few days of school soon disappeared as they became familiar with the large student body and the large school campus.

With a slow start in selecting their class images because of some disagreement on the selected images, the class re-voted and finally selected the stallion as their mascot, black and lavender as their class colors, carnation as their flower, "Theme from Mahogany" as their song, and their motto was "Our courage today will determine our destiny tomorrow." These class choices would carry them throughout their years at McKinley until graduation.

After some stumbling along in the beginning, the sophomores began to harmonize as a spirited class and started to get things rolling. Placing third in the December Song Festival, they were extremely excited. Doing a cute routine for the song, "Rudolph the Red Nosed Reindeer," the crowd cheered them on in their Christmas spirit.

They continued to grow, and during the week of March 12-16, which marked Sophomore Class Week, the school discovered their maturity and growth. The highlight of the week was the fun-filled class banquet on March 16.

One of the last activities as a class was the cleaning of the front lawn after commencement, a task traditionally left for the "babies" of the school.

As they looked back, it seemed that it was a very good year, and they looked forward to being a part of McKinley's history and tradition as the mighty Class of '86.

The Class of 1986 had their first taste of class competition during Homecoming. Having Super Sophomore Seth Sakamoto as Homecoming chairperson and Miss Silva as advisor, the Class of 1986 captured the second place spot for costume and banner competition and third place for float.

Representing this class in the Homecoming Court were escort Kaipo Kaimimoku and attendant Christine Sugai. These new birds at McKinley were thrilled and surprised about the Homecoming festivities. It was a totally new and exciting experience to go through the costume, banner and float competitions, to participate in the candle light rally, and to see and be part of the Homecoming football game against Farrington.

Sophs Turn Cheering Experts

Refusing to lose to the juniors and seniors, the sophomore Class of '86 was tough. Tough in a sense that they refused to be beaten by the other classes.

"Super Sophs" was an appropriate nickname given to them as they were capable of drowning out the rest of the audience during pep rallies. Sophomores, usually the quietest in pep rallies, were unlike what they were stereo-typed to be. They had unity as a class and cheered loudly when it was their turn to yell at pep rallies.

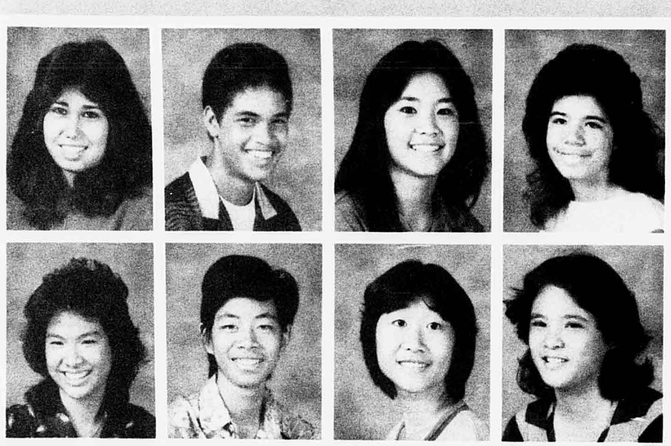

Sophomores like Patsy Mauga cheered their hearts out for both her class and for the band of which she is a new member. Because of students like her, the sophomores became known as a class with a lot of spirit.

Band Creates Goofy Clowns

For many sophomores in band, October arrived all too quickly. It was initiation time!

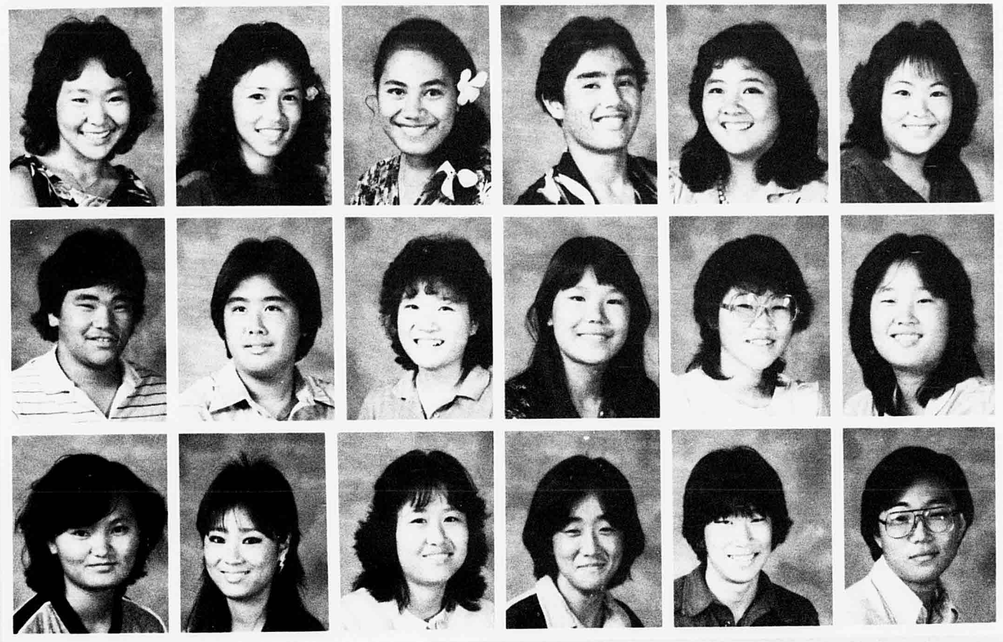

Band students went to school early that October morn so they could think of the wildest and craziest get-up and make-up for the sophomore band members. New band members ended up with balloons sticking out of their hair, underwear over regular wear, boys made out to look like girls and girls made out to look like boys. It seemed like something out of a wild Fellini movie.

Sophs Suffer H.S. Courses

Wondering how their first advanced placement English course would be like, courageous sophomores of the Class of '86 first stepped into the unknown realm of Mrs. Mae Fujii's class in early September. Fearing to have piles and piles of homework to be taken home each class period, they were prepared. However, to their surprise, the difficult, but fun-filled course turned out to be a challenge they relished.

Being a highly interesting course, it covered the areas of Greek mythology, Arthurian Legends, religion through literature and short stories, just to name a few. The areas that were covered prepared the class to go on to the junior and senior English classes the following years.

Sophs List Favorites

Pep rallies and athletic events were high on the list of favorite school activities for many sophomores. Darrin Kendrick said that he enjoyed the pep rallies "because it was fun to watch"

Christine Ulufale enjoyed volleyball and basketball and looked forward to most of the athletic events. Feagai Aufotu looked forward to P.E. classes because he enjoyed playing sports.

Other events sophomores enjoyed included the dances and the banquets. They liked these events because it was "a neat place to meet people and make new friends."

They also enjoyed the many different classes even though the periods were longer than they were accustomed to.

Sophs List Favorites

Pep rallies and athletic events were high on the list of favorite school activities for many sophomores. Darrin Kendrick said that he enjoyed the pep rallies "because it was fun to watch"'

Christine Ulufale enjoyed volleyball and basketball and looked forward to most of the athletic events. Feagai Aufotu looked forward to P.E. classes because he enjoyed playing sports.

Other events sophomores enjoyed included the dances and the banquets. They liked these events because it was "a neat place to meet people and make new friends."

They also enjoyed the many different classes even though the periods were longer than they were accustomed to.

HS Activities Excite Sophs

Joining a club or organization was something that many sophomores looked forward to when they first arrived at McKinley. Having the opportunity to get involved in the various clubs and organizations was a new experience for most of them.

Many sophomores interested in student government tried their shot at getting a position in the Senate. Others wanted to be part of the only daily high school newspaper on Oahu, the school's notorious "Daily Pinion" or a part of the "Black and Gold" staff. The more athletic ones spent their afterschool hours on the makai side of the campus practicing their favorite sport.

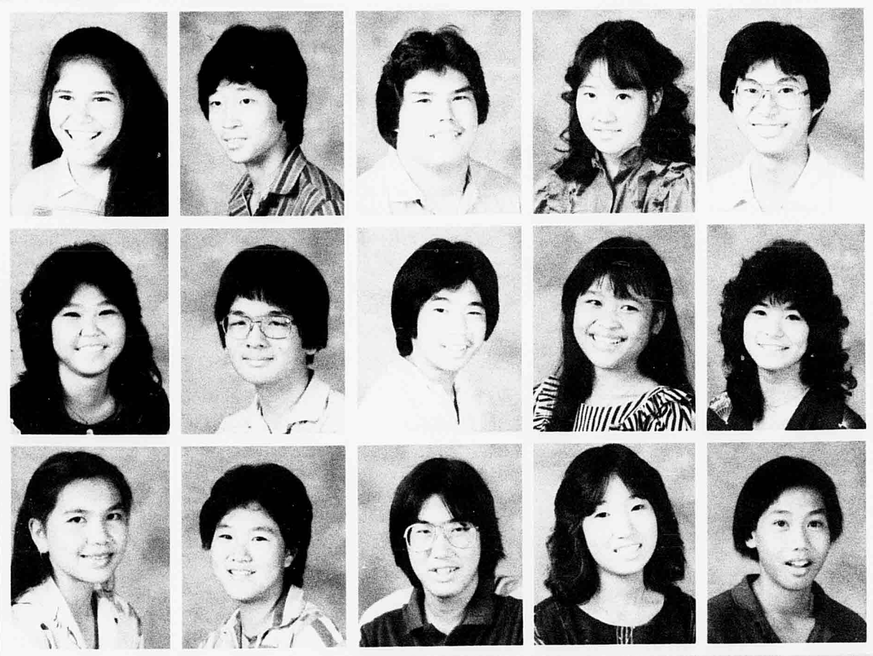

In all, the sophomores' first year at McKinley was a growing experience with the many optional things each student could do. Life at McKinley made an impression on many.

Fun, Learning Activities Fill Junior Class Calendar

The juniors returned to school in early September to complete another year at McKinley. Now familiar to the school campus, they could greet their sophomore friends fresh out of intermediate school and assist them in various ways.

One of the first things the Class of '85 did was to get their class T-shirts. Although they were not able to get their shirts in time for their class game, they had an opportunity to wear it during class week which was from April 9-13. Spots of the blue shirts with Pegasus printed on the back could be seen all over campus. The Class of '85's flower is mailepikake, their song is "Between the Laughter and the Tears" and their motto is "Live today, dream tomorrow, remember yesterday". The final event of the Junior Class Week was the Junior Prom that was held on the following week on April 21, 1984 at the Hyatt Regency. It was a good break from their studies, but it ended shortly when they had to start preparing for the May 5 SAT. Many juniors worrying about college took the test to get a taste of the difficulty.

The '83-'84 year ended with the juniors helping to set up the chairs on the "oval" for graduation. On June 3, 1984, they sadly watched their upperclassmen graduate and felt excitement as they realized that they would be leading the school next fall in September.

Jiving Juniors Cheer Mightily

Disadvantaged in winning spirit competition at pep rallies last year because they were the "babies" of the school, this year the mighty junior class had an even chance of beating their upperclassmen. Not giving in to the Class of '84 or '86, these "jiving juniors" had great unity as a class and cheered with all their might during pep rallies and football games.

The "Jiving Juniors" took seats in their designated section of the gym to fill out their entire section with spirited juniors. They could be seen standing up and swaying back and forth during spirit competition for their section and locking their hands with their neighbors' hands when singing "Black and Gold." Juniors certainly added and contributed to the spirited rallies in the gymnasium and football fields.

Juniors Make Sweet Harmony

On December 16, the McKinley High School Choir presented their Christmas concert in the M. M. Scott Auditorium. Many juniors participated in the joyful singing of Christmas carols and songs. The concert's theme was "Traditional Christmas Carols."

Under the direction of Ms. Puanani Howell, the concert featured a number of talented juniors singing solos. A choir member as well as a Brown Bags to Stardom participant Julie Windham, junior, sang her beautiful version of "I'll Be Home for Christmas."

Unlike the concerts in previous years, there was no dancing, but the concert did end with the choir singing their traditional concluding song, "Nu Oli."

Juniors Ease Into Second Year

Just as that always-too-short-summer was in the final phase, the Class of '85, the excited juniors to be, took half a day off from their daily summer activities to register for their second year at McKinley.

Finally over with being labeled as "sophomores," this class looked forward to being the "jiving juniors," as they wanted to be known. They were content to be in the middle of the three classes, not being the babies and not having to worry about graduation like their upperclassmen. Those who missed out in participating in school events in the sophomore year had the opportunity once more to be a part of the "Tiger Ohana" or those who were involved in their sophomore year continued participating in the many things offered at McKinley.

Their experience of one year in high school made the registration process a breeze as they paid their dues, bought their yearbook, and picked up their schedules.

Juniors Reveal New Talent

As sophomores they sat back and watched, but this year, they were ready to be a part of this exciting event that could possibly open a future for them. Like the others, they practiced diligently with their groups until the big day.

On November 4, the KIKI Brown Bags to Stardom Contest was held at McKinley's auditorium. An excited mixture of participants consisting of mainly juniors and seniors paced the backstage area until their names were called.

Three of the six groups that participated in this event were from the Class of '85. They included Shaunna Touchi doing her Hawaiian dance entitled, "Ke Aloha Mele," Ruby Son singing, "Out Here On My Own," and Music in Paradise comprising of Mark Chun and Julie Windham sang, "Up Where We Belong."

Although they did not place within the first, second and third places, they are all young talents blooming to be stars!

The juniors enjoyed a variety of activities during their second year of high school including the Halloween Costume Contest and their Junior Prom.

Maria deJesus enjoyed the many assemblies and the drama performances "because they were fun!" Terry Ikeda enjoyed the pep rallies because he had a chance to go home a bit early on pep rally days.

Gerald Tom and Jenny Wang enjoyed the lunch time and recess hours because they could relax and visit with friends.

Junior Prom Excites Many

In intermediate school and in their sophomore year, the juniors attended banquets and wondered how long it would take for them to have their own prom. Their dreams were finally realized on April 21, 1984, when the juniors of the Class of '85 experienced their own prom themed "Miracles". Starting at 6:30 p.m. at the Hyatt Regency, it was a semi-formal and floral optional event. Reigning over the court were King Walter Yamane and Queen Lori Fujikawa.

The romantic mood that filled the air was reminisced upon by the juniors as treasured memories even long after the event was over. It turned out to be a pleasant night for most juniors of the Class of '85.

SENIORS

TO COMPLETE a phase of their lives successfully was the goal of the senior. For most of them it was a job well done, for they had contributed to the growth and harmony of the school they learned to love.

Activities Fill Final Year

In early September, they returned to McKinley's campus as they did in the past two previous years, but this time with a tingle of excitement because this time, they were to return as seniors, a small dream that every boy and girl had.

The glory of finally being a senior was overwhelming, but it was also a great responsibility. They were the first class in McKinley's history to have their senior portraits in color for the yearbook.

By October, this organized class distributed their burgundy and white long sleeve class T-shirts with its strikingly handsome design. In November, the senior council sponsored a candy corn count to celebrate Thanksgiving Day. December was a time of harmony among the seniors as they joined together to sing in the Christmas Songfest. February was about to be an activity-packed month with the selling of See's lollipops for Valentine's Day and the Sr.-Jr. Luau; but unfortunately the hard working committees for the luau did not receive sufficient response from the classes and the luau had to be cancelled. However, this did not stop the mighty senior class for they had their Senior Class Week in early May to look forward to and the highly anticipated Senior Prom. It turned out to be a lovely night for many and the most memorable event for seniors to remember many years after graduation.

Football Generates Senior Fall Activities

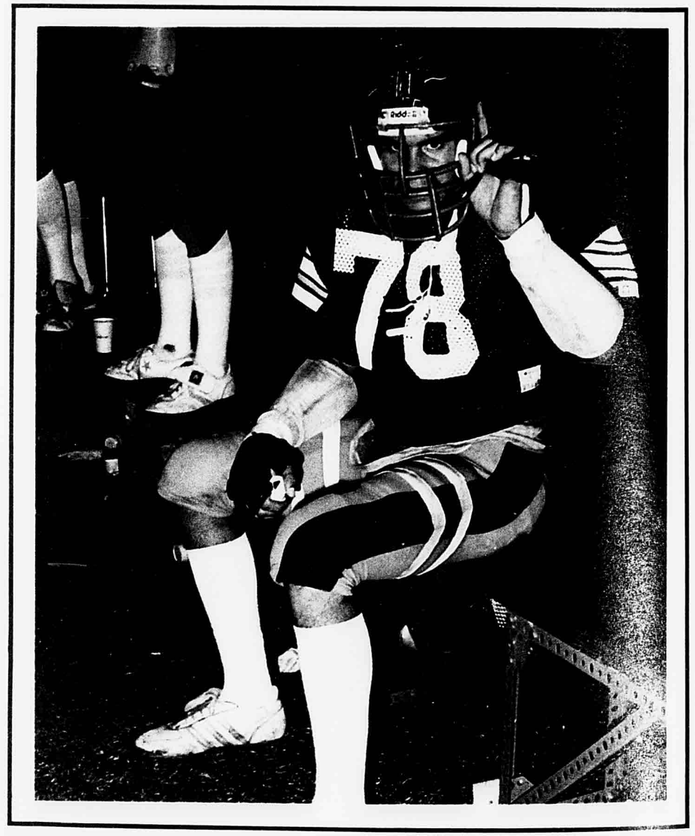

On the eve of September 23, McKinley's Varsity Football Team challenged the hard-hitting Mustangs of Kalaheo at Roosevelt field. Excitement was in the air, for this was the game dedicated to the Senior Class of '84.

Seniors had spent long hours in preparation working on flashcards made out of old movie posters that Daphne Suga's dad donated. and the Seniorettes practiced for hours after school under Miss Kakuda's direction.

From the time the team entered the field cheers from the Seniors never ended. "Mighty Seniors No. 1" printed in burgundy and white on flashcards danced to the rhythm of the music played by the band. The mighty seniorettes entertained the crowd during half-time with their special style of cheering and dancing. Though the game ended with the score of McKinley 13 and Kalaheo 14, spirits were not entirely dampened as "Black and Gold" was sung with pride.

Seniors Explode into Glorious Color!

For the first time in the history of McKinley, the Class of '84 courageously broke the tradition of taking senior portraits in black and white and went to full color. Polls taken last year showed an overwhelming positive response to this new idea, giving the yearbook staff a chance to proceed with this plan.

During the summer, the staff and Ace Portrait Studios set up a deal that if students took their portrait during the summer, they would get the five required poses plus two extra poses free for $12.00. There was some concern about having to pay more for picture taking as compared to the previous years. However, many seniors took advantage of this opportunity and continued to go down to the studios even after school opened in the fall on the set dates. The staff was pleasantly surprised at the turnout when 490 Seniors took their photos in their colorful Aloha attire.

"It's neat that we'll be the first at McKinley to be in color," commented HOWARD AKINA, and when asked how he felt about paying the $12, he replied, "I didn't mind paying the $12...it's worth it!"

Computers Fascinate

Computers...a product for now and the future...the most progressive product of our time. McKinley was fortunate this past year, for each senior from English class went through a course on computers conducted by Mrs. Iris Inouye, formerly a McKinley math instructor. From this crash course, the seniors learned the basics of computer programming and that most of the large businesses here in Hawaii and on the mainland use computers in their daily work.

"My goal was to make as many seniors as possible computer literates and to feel comfortable in front of a computer," said Mrs. Inouye. Student Maurice McCall said, "Computers are an extension of man's physical consciousness."

Seniorettes Startle Fans

The air was full of excitement and anticipation as the students and teachers assembled in the gym for the pep rally. Oh, there were and will be other pep rallies, but this one was special. This one would feature one of the proudest and unique traditions of MHS. The Seniorettes of 1983-1984 debuted with smashing and hilarious success. With their "sexy" bodies and alluring moves, they quickly drove the audience wild.

But this was only the glamorous side of the coin. All those shakes and steps were not bestowed upon the seniorettes overnight. For two hard weeks, they sacrificed their valuable time to practice their act. Things wouldn't have been so smooth if it hadn't been for Ms. Barbara Kakuda's excellent instructions.

If you were wondering about how the Seniorettes did their acrobatic moves, you're not alone. Even Seniorettes themselves didn't know how they did it. To quote some of them: "I remember how my jewels hurt when I did my splits." "I don't know what I did, but I remember girls screaming and whistling."

"Mahalo!" Rings Out To Teachers

Teachers played a large part in the life of seniors during their three-year stay at McKinley. Many seniors wished to thank all of their teachers for helping them through to their senior year.

"I'd like to thank Master Sergeant Ito and Sergeant Major Victorine for they have straightened me out in high school." PHILIP RAPOZA

"Tom Marks...because he had to put up with me for three years on the track team and also for giving me a chance at different events." PABLO SANCHEZ

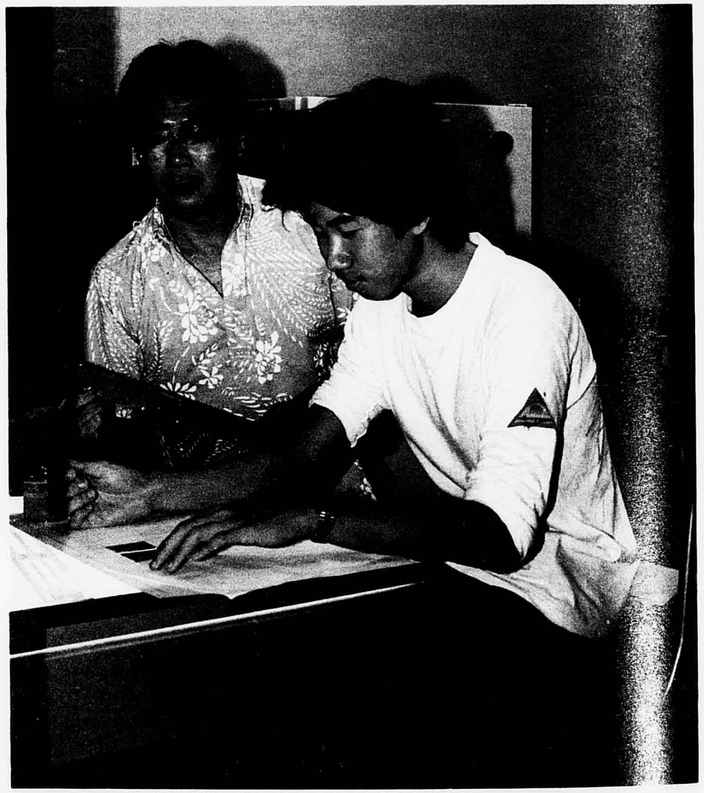

"Mrs. Tomie Ahn...Throughout the years at McKinley, she has helped me do all sorts of things and got me into Publications." NESTOR AVELLANA

"Mrs. Mae Chung, English teacher...because she made me stop 'futtin' around and really do the kind of work I'm capable of...she's honest and tells you things straight." AUDRA HALMOS

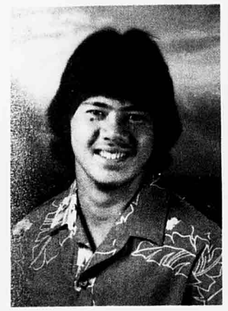

"Miss Howell...for teaching me how to develop my singing, and to Mr. Chang for teaching me self-respect." VINCE VANDERFORD

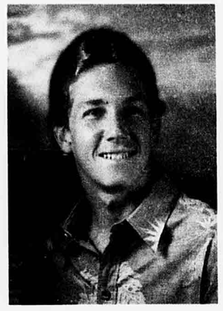

"Mr. and Mrs. Kishimoto for making me a disciplined individual." LIANE TONG

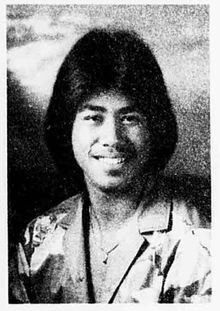

"Mrs. Sugihara and Mr. Kimura...They both made school more fun while I was learning." JODIE NAMBA

CHRISTOPHER CHA, activities and lay-out editor for the yearbook, works on a design for the senior section with the help of yearbook advisor, Mr. JAMES NAKAMOTO.

Seniors Fantasize

To make life tolerable, Seniors created their own dreams and fantasies. Some of the fantasies seemed to be based on practical aims and goals, and others were pure dreams that just might come true.

Senior cheering section is all smiles as they win the cheering competitions during the Senior game Pep Rally in the gymnasium.

'84 Iz Numbah One

It was great for Seniors to feel that they did their best during their three years at McKinley.

As sophomores they were awed by the number of traditions McKinley prided itself in such as the sacred oval, "Black and Gold," and the faculty play; but they quickly got into the spirit of things.

During their junior year they placed in the homecoming door decoration and float contests and won the spirit award once or twice. Junior Prom which topped off Junior Class Week turned out to be a classy affair.

Many activities filled their senior year like their senior class week which was climaxed by a fabulous assembly show. Seniors always knew they were the best!

Seniors Set Example

It was natural that Seniors would be the the leaders of the school, and the Class of '84 took up the challenge. The seniors held many important positions in student government, in various organizations, on the editorial staffs of the Daily Pinion and the Black and Gold.

David Ige was junior class president last year, and this year led the student council as president. Nora Yoshioka was an editorial assistant for the yearbook and this year served as editor-in-chief.

Key position on every athletic team were also filled with seniors. They exemplified leadership as well as good sportsmanship , pride and unity.

Seniors List Favorites

Surprisingly, many seniors like Michael Afoa listed children's stories like "Charlotte's Webb," "The Little Prince," "Peter Cottontail," and "Huckleberry Finn" as their favorites.

Other books included the Bible, "The Hobbitt," "Moby Dick," and best-sellers, "Love Story," "The Parsifal Mosaic," and "Gone with the Wind."

NBC was clearly the winner in the eyes of the seniors, for their TV favorites included "Knight Rider," "Hill Street Blues," "A-Team," "Cheers," "Family Ties," Saturday Night Live" and "Facts of Life." Other popular TV shows included "The Jeffersons," "Three's Company (clearly a senior favorite), "Happy Days," "Hart to Hart," "Knots Landing," "Dynasty," "Fame," and "Magnum P.I." Only one new show was listed among the senior favorites: "Webster."

Two movies, "Flashdance" and "Return of the Jedi," received the bulk of the votes. Other movie favorites included "Star Wars," "The Empire Strikes Back," "The Outsiders," "E.T.," "An Officer and a Gentleman," "Risky Business" and "Trading Places."

There were no clear favorites when it came to songs, but Journey seemed to be the all-time favorite group of the seniors.

Commitees Plan Exciting Events

For the Senior Class to run smoothly, 12 major committees were organized to handle the many activities with the Commencement Committee having 17 sub-committees which handled everything from announcement, caps and gowns to set-up and clean-up.

Seniors like Jamie Nugent, Megumi Kuwada, Sheryl Lee, Jimmy Leung, Annette Freitas, Rochelle Wong, Sheri Sakata were only a few who gave up valuable time to work as chairpeople of the various committees.

Seniors like Patricia Wong, Debbie Kubo, Alison Ebesu, Naomi Yogi, Dean Arashiro, Steven Asaumi and Bruce Leong were some of the sub-committee heads for commencement.

When asked how she liked serving the Senior Class, Dorene Lee replied, "I wanted to get involved and do something for the class to the benefit of all. It proved to be most rewarding."

There were also 22 faculty members in involved as advisors including activities like Senior Class Dinner and Class Week. Spanish teacher Sharrie Lee served as Class Gift Advisor while husband and wife team, Mr. and Mrs. Kishimoto, advised security and ushers for commencement.

Mr. James Nakamoto had previously advised senior class play and commencement rehearsals and said, "It's always a joy to advise seniors, for they realize it's their last year and thus tend to be more responsible and spirited. This class is no different. I enjoyed my time with them."

Other teachers actively involved with the seniors included Mrs. M. L. Chung, Mrs. M. Fujii, Ms. Barbara Kakuda and Mr. Neal Takamori.

Seniors "Veg Out" on Weekends

"Hey, bud, let's party!" seemed to be the thing to do for many seniors over the weekend. Many spent their time "cruizing" with their friends and going to the beach. Still others worked at their part-time jobs at restaurants, department stores, repair shops, service stations, McDonald's, jewelry stores. Others enjoyed their hobbies which included just about every kind of sports and things like stamp-collecting, reading music, pets, video games, eating and sleeping.

"I spend my weekends with the ROTC people since I'm on the drill team. I spend my time practicing our routines." SUN KYUNG KANG

"I spend my weekends checking out chicks." REDENTOR BAUTISTA

"...yearbook work, beach, movies, volleyball." CHRISTOPHER CHA

"...football games, cruizing, vegging." DENISE TUZON

"...practice paddling, going out with friends." DARYN RESGONIA

"...shop for clothes or go to beach or watch movies." MARITES PRUDENCIO

"...going fishing or to the beach." DEREK KUBO

Fortunately for YOON SEOK KANG, GEORGE CHOY, and EDDIE CHOW, electronics is a hobby with them as they build a radio from scratch in electronics class.

Future Beckons

The future looked scary at times, but most seniors could hardly wait to get out into the "real world" as one senior put it. Many said they were going out to find a job; others were going on to college and more schooling and a few didn't know exactly what they were going to do. The following plans revealed a wide diversity of interests the seniors had set for themselves.

"My future plans are going away to a good university on the mainland and then go into dentistry." SUNNI YOON

"I'd like to own my own restaurant." DARRELL KAWASAKI

"I would like to work. I don't want to go to college. I would like to visit my aunt in the Philippines." JEANIE FAAFITI

Unicorn Leads Way

Three years ago as sophomores, the seniors chose "Snoopy" as their class mascot, but because of copyright problems changed it to the Unicorn, a majestic mythical beast.

The Unicorn captured the mystic and ethereal quality of their motto: "Today's Dreams are Tommorrow's Memories."

Class Rings Remind of Good Times

That magic moment when Seniors selected their class rings was finally here. Naturally they wanted a ring that would truly capture all those memories, good times and other special moments that were so much a part of the past three years.

During their junior year, the class of '84 had a difficult decision in choosing a company, but they finally selected Josten's to serve them. Their decision was based on various qualities of the company and the ring which they produced.

In designing the ring, the committee had to consider such factors as method of construction, styling, engraving, prices, choice of stones and the lifetime warranty. Finally the committee came up with a unique design of their own.

This was the first year that girls were offered the mini size, making their rings look very feminine.

Seniors who did purchase rings would have something they could cherish which will remind them of all the precious moments that were part of their high school life.

McKinley's Da Best But

In a survey that the "Black and Gold" staff conducted, seniors expressed what they liked about McKinley and what they would like to change about school. Dozens and dozens of seniors answered that they liked the people, students and teachers, the variety of courses offered, the new library and the nice atmosphere. Many students replied that they liked McKinley as it was and would change nothing. One unidentified student said that the restrooms should all be cleaned up or completely rebuilt. The long class hours and the school lunch were two high priority items that seniors wanted to change.

BUM JIN CHANG wants to have all the graffitti removed. CHRISTINE YUEN wants the prom rules and regulations reconsidered. SUZZANE LANCE enjoys the great school spirit. CHANG YEN LOUIE likes the school location and MILTON LAU enjoys the electronics class.

MICHELLE LASTIMOSA writes: "Something I like about McKinley is the Daily Pinion because McKinley is the only school who has a newspaper everyday."

McKinley boasts one of the most beautiful high school campuses in the islands with shade trees that are decades old.

Graduation Tops Year

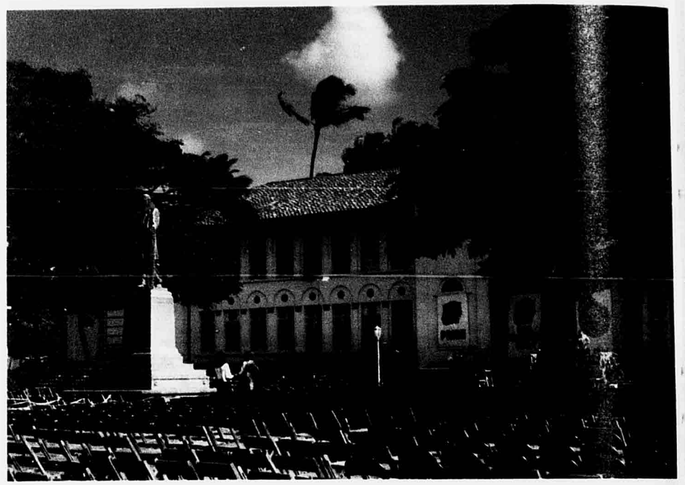

Seniors could hardly wait to get out of school, but like any other graduating class, there were mixed feelings when it came to commencement.

It was not easy to leave a school they had grown to love over three years of ups-and-downs. It was not easy to leave friends they had made among the underclassmen and teachers. It was not easy to know that they would be going on separate ways.

But it was grand to know that their hard work had paid off. College was going to be an adventure. The military and work force also looked intriguing, and many looked forward to be on their own..

Senior Prom Brings Magic to Spring

For seniors like Christine Yuen, Brian Tateishi and Devera Mataele, the most exciting event of school was the Senior Prom. Like many others they chose the Senior Prom as their favorite school activity, the one activity that they looked forward to. Marie White was more than ecstatic for now she could at last attend her own Senior Prom which was held at the the Hawaiian Regent Hotel on May 26, 1984.

The Saturday evening was beautiful with a moon that was almost full. It was a perfect evening to celeberate spring and their last year in high school together, to get dressed up, to smell good with the perfect perfume, cologne or flower lei, to dance with their dream date, the special someone to share an evening with.

The theme for the 1984 Senior Prom was "A Time for Us," the song from the movie version of "Romeo and Juliet." Like the song, the evening was a perfect capping of the school year.

Reigning as Queen was Wendy Maeda with King Jon Goto. The court consisted of attendants, Amy Takekawa, Sheri Sakata and Lori Leong; and escorts were Jaime Kurosawa, Ryan Oshiro and Dale Funakoshi.

It seemed as if magic filled the air as the prom continued through the night. Many couples enjoyed the entertainment and dancing which also added to the excitement and sparkle of promtime.

It certainly was a night to remember and the glitter and sparkle of that special time became a cherished memory all too soon and not to be forgotten for a long time.

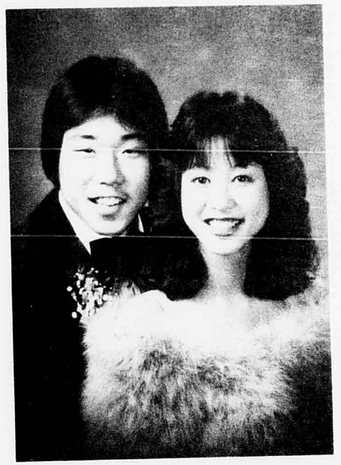

The photos would tell the story; the flower pressed between the pages of a dictionary would tell the story; and the faded prom bid would tell the story of an evening filled with beautiful memories.

IN HARMONY - ALOHA OE

The school year came to a beautiful end despite the threatened teacher strike and the firing of the superintendent of education. Harmony reigned in events like the all-school Career Day, Homecoming Candlelight Rally, the various proms and banquets and class days, the Aloha Pep Rally and the Aloha Dance.

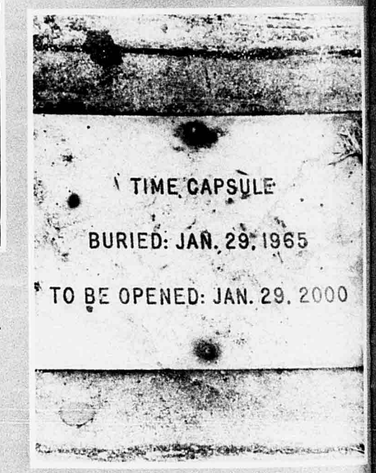

Commencement was beautiful as ever as students and teachers said goodbye to the seniors. Classroom farewell parties on the last day of school was also an occasion of beautiful harmony as students celebrated the oncoming of summer and said aloha to their friends and teachers. Yearbook signing kept up to the very end as students wrote tomes in each other's yearbooks.

But soon it was June 7, the very final day, and it was time to say aloha to school year 1983-84. It was a very good year.

FAREWELL TO A FRIEND...

Wallace Habu was a very cheerful guy, always active and outgoing and ready to delight his friends. If he ever felt pain or sorrow, we never knew it; for he hid it like the "tears of a clown."
Michael Afoa

I didn't know there was a time capsule buried near the cafeteria. It would be interesting to find out what's inside in the year 2000. DONNA LING

Disharmony Strikes World

There was much talk of and disagreements over the arms issues. There were many acts of agression. There were civil strifes in South American countries and the Middle East.

Hawaii had its share of disharmony in the State Legislature and over the Nukoli land development and MacDonald's in Waimanalo; and Madam Pele continued her rumblings for over 15 separate eruptions.

Invasions and Massacres

The Beirut Massacre of our marines was a gruesome, pathetic display of barbarism. JAE CHUNG

It was something that should not have happened. ERIC OCHOCO

The invasion of Grenada was a triumph for democracy. The communist scourge must be averted. REYN TSURU

Accident or Agression?

The shooting down of a Korean Airline Passenger plane by Russia was uncalled for. Russia should pay! MARTIN NAKASONE

It was the most inexcusable malicious act by any nation. GORDON WONG

Teachers Huhu?

Sure, I'm for teachers making more money, but is a strike going to get them what they want? Will they really see the difference on their pay checks? Is it really worth making ten-day lesson plans and then correcting all the work after the strike? What if they lose? Is a strike really necessary? CINDY TERAO

I hope the teachers don't strike because it will affect our class work. But I guess teachers need better wages like everybody else. STACY SHISHIDO

...the biggest break for students since 1979. RUBEN LEON

But There Were Good Times, Too

Good times and excitement were also part of the 1983-84 package. People thrilled to the Winter Olympics and looked forward to the Summer Olympics in Los Angeles. Our advancement in space technology was something to be proud of. TV offered its share of excitement as it presented the Super Bowl. Though films like "Silkwood" and "Star 80" had a rather depressing outlook, there was joy to be experienced in "Terms of Endearment" and "To Be or Not To Be." MTV was more thoroughly entrenched in our daily living, and Michael Jackson was a definite force to be reckoned with in the entertainment world.

Look, Ma, No Cord

It's great, the progress we're making in space. If only we could do as well with relations with Russia. LISA TINNERMAN

The biggest breakthrough since man first landed on the moon. YIK SHAN CHANG

The space walk is great, but the money really should be used to improve this earth: medical research, population problems and pollution! CHENG HSIN CHANG

Olympic Gold

It's good that we can compete as friends. The most important thing is that you have fun competing. It's good if we have a medal to show for it. Terrific, if it's gold. WENDY YOUNG

We would win more if the officials were not unfair. LEONARDO PIMENTAL

The Olympics...one of our last civilized act of mankind. NANNY TUNNELL

Super Raiders Tops

The Raiders deserved to win because they're tough, and they showed it by crushing Washington. ALLEN CHANG

Devastating outcome. "RAIDERS!!" DARRELL ARNOLD

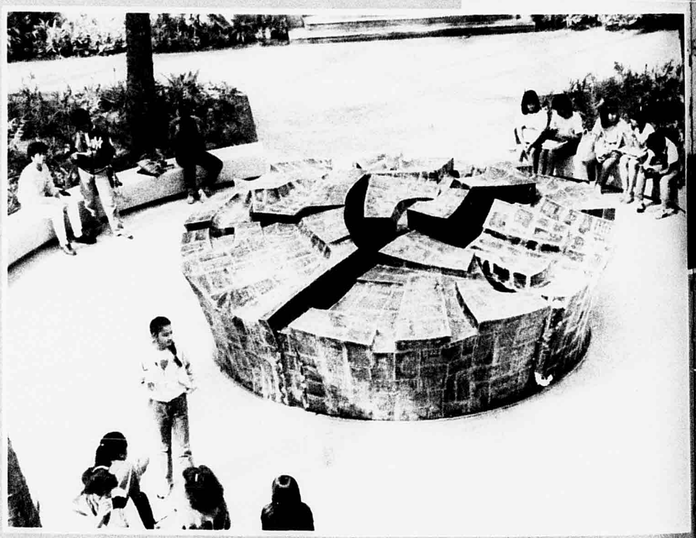

Leader's Last Stand

The firing of Dr. Donnis Thompson from her post as Superintendent of the Department of Education came at an unfortunate time. Surely the Board of Education could have waited to postpone their decision to release her from her duties until a settlement was reached between the government and labor unions. LIANE TONG

Death of Rap

It was a great loss when Rap Replinger died. He was a comedian who thought of new ways to make us laugh. MICHELLE YOSHIDA

He was a very funny man, and we'll remember him in our hearts. MERE TO'OMATA

Death of a Russian

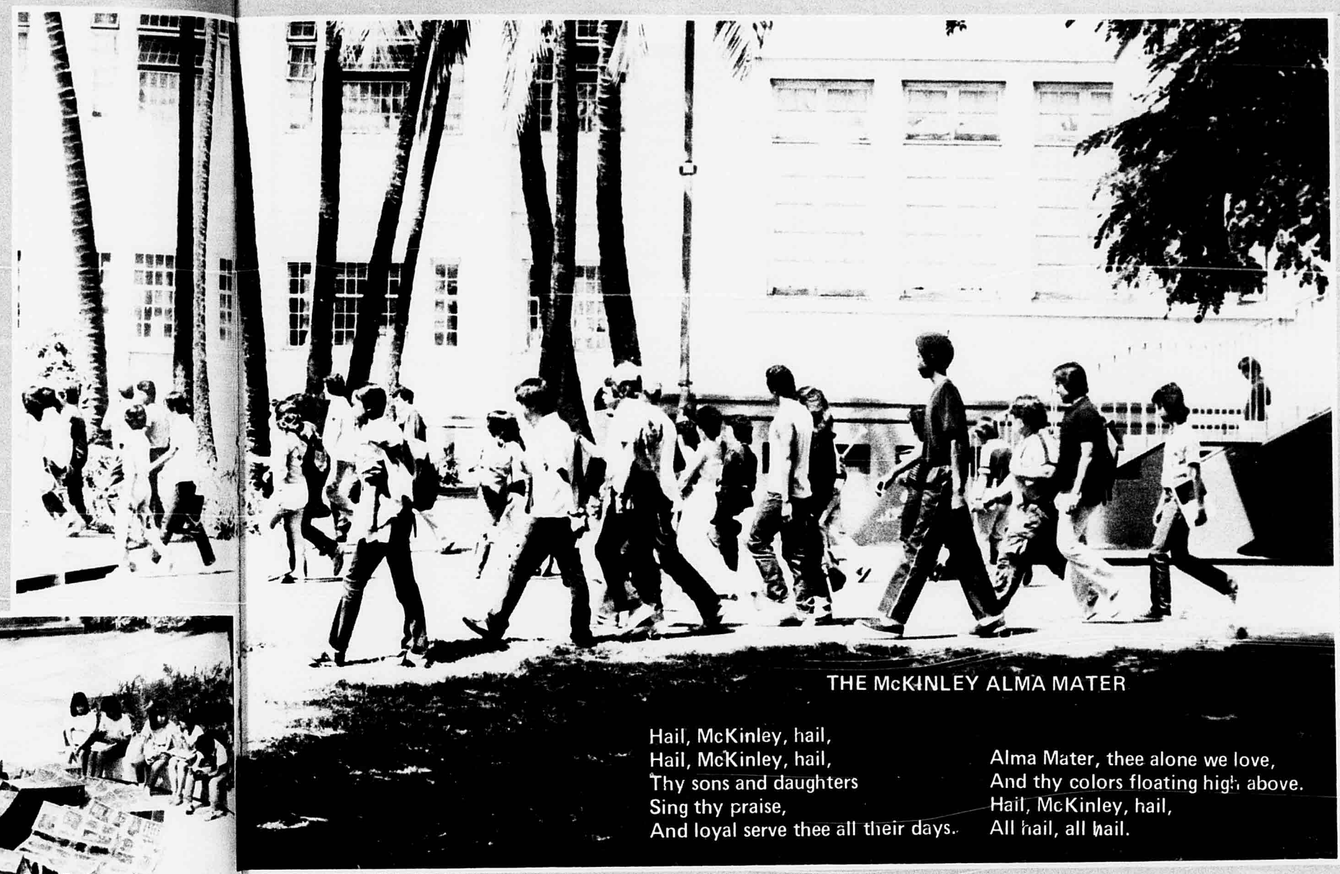

After the death of Andropov, I think we have an opportunity to settle down with the new president and discuss our nuclear weapons. MOON SOO LEE

I hope the U.S.A. and the U.S.S.R. can come to an agreement. MICHAEL CHAN-KIM

Art or Junk?

I think the new sculpture piece by the library is beautiful. I don't know what it is, but it is beautiful. KRIST SAMPAGA

It gives the school some modernizing to contrast with the traditional looks. KEITH JORDAN

Hail, McKinley, hail,
Thy sons and daughters
Sing thy praise,
And loyal serve thee all their days.

Alma Mater, thee alone we love,
And thy colors floating high above.
Hail, McKinley, hail,
All hail, all hail.

BLACK AND GOLD

Black and gold is waving,
Boys we're back of you.
Play your way to victory,
We'll be ever true.
Eager eyes are watching,
Hearts are beating fast,
For McKinley's honor,
Fight, boys, to the last.
